Search Begins In Atlantic For Missing Tanker

BOSTON (AP) — The Canadian and U.S. Coast Guards launched a search Monday for a missing tanker carrying 8 million gallons of heavy fuel oil from England to Providence, R.I.

The Panamanian tanker Grand Zenith left Teesport, England, with a cargo of No. 6 fuel oil on Dec. 19, and was last heard from Thursday, about 30 miles south-southeast of Cape Sable, Nova Scotia, the Coast Guard said.

A Canadian plane searched the northern part of the ship's course from Nova Scotia to Providence and the U.S. cutter Dallas patrolled the middle part as a Coast Guard helicopter searched the course from Nantucket lightship to Providence, a spokesman said.

Nantucket lightship was also a reference point for the Liberian-registered Argo Merchant, which went off course en route to Salem, Mass. (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 1)

$3.9 Billion Bail-Out Loan To Britain Wins Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund approved a standby arrangement Monday authorizing Great Britain to borrow up to $3.9 billion over the next 24 months.

The British had applied for the loan in October in an effort to bolster their sagging economy and to try and halt the slide in value of the pound relative to other currencies.

IMF staffers and officials have been studying the British economic situation since then in an effort to assure that the nation would be able to repay the money.

Last month, British Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey announced a series of measures designed to hold down inflation and cut government borrowing so that it would be better able to comply with any stipulations related to the IMF loan.

The program outlined by Healey involved two years of holding down government spending by some 2 billion pounds — about $3.4 billion — while at the same time levying only a few small increases in taxes.

A British Treasury spokesman in London said approval of the loan was expected. "There were no surprises," he said.

He said the first drawing would be sometime this month. Interest on the loan would begin at 4 per cent and rise in one-half per cent steps each year to a maximum of 6 per cent.

The British proposal had been hailed at the outset by U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, member of the IMF board and one of those responsible for voting approval of the credit.

Israeli Minister Commits Suicide

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Housing Minister Abraham Ofer, linked by a newspaper to alleged illegal real estate transactions, was found dead Monday. The state television said he killed himself and broadcast what it called a suicide note denying the allegations.

It was the first suicide of an Israeli government minister and the first time a cabinet member had been accused of involvement in economic corruption.

GARDEN GROVE — The public is "bending over backwards" to help police find the killers of Janet Stallcup, police say, but investigators are still stymied in their search for two men they want to question.

"People have really been trying to help," said Lt. Pan Corona. "We have some worthwhile leads we're checking into."

Corona said the department has received more than 100 phone calls since artist renderings of two possible suspects appeared in newspapers and on television over the weekend.

Descriptions of the men were provided by a witness police have not identified.

"Some people have called and said they have seen one of them in a bar, or cut their hair once, or pulled a tooth. Some of the information is way out, but some is worth checking into," Corona said.

The two hunted men may be linked to the rape-murder of the pretty 19-year-old Cypress College coed, whose body was found in the rear of a Yockey Street apartment complex Dec. 27. Her neck was broken and she had been sexually assaulted.

She had been missing since Dec. 19 and investigators said she had been dead about five days when the body was found, apparently leaving a mysterious three-day gap between her disappearance and death.

The victim's parents have offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of her killer or killers. Information should be directed to police headquarters.

Delay Rushed For 'Baby-Sitting' Insurance Law

By JOE CORDERO
Register Staff Writer

"Urgency" legislation to delay enforcement of a new law which requires that baby sitters and other casual employees be covered by workman's compensation insurance was introduced Monday in Sacramento by Assemblyman Richard Robinson, D-Santa Ana.

The note read over Israeli television denied accusations against Ofer that appeared recently in the weekly newspaper Haolam Hazeh. The note declared:

"...I did not embezzle or ste-persons hired to do odd jobs, such as the occasional baby sitter, house cleaner, gardener, plumber or dog walker.

Robinson also co-authored Assembly Bill 132 by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, which would repeal the new law. McAlister co-authored Robinson's bill.

McAlister is the chairman of the Assembly Finance and Insurance Committee, and Robinson is chairman of the workman's compensation subcommittee.

They received a waiver Monday from the Assembly

Rules Committee to the rule that requires that there be a 30-day waiting period between the time a bill is introduced and the time it is acted upon.

Additionally, both bills carry urgency clauses which would make them law 30 days after they were signed by the governor. Customarily bills go into effect the following first of January after they are signed.

Robinson said the intent of the legislature in passing the current law was to exclude part-time baby sitters, gardeners and similar odd job employees.

"But the courts have interpreted the law's loopholes to mean that every casual employee would be covered," he said.

"Plumbers, gardeners and other persons engaged in a personal private enterprise should be responsible for their own insurance coverage," Robinson said of his bill.

He said that the intent of the bill was to assure that only people who worked full-time as a domestic be covered by workman's compensation insurance.

The law was passed two years ago to comply with the workman's compensation insurance requirements set down by the National Commission on Workers' Compensation, a body established by former president Richard Nixon, Robinson said.

"If we had not complied with the federal regulations we would have faced additional OSHA-type problems," he added.

Demos Push $4 Billion Job Bill In Congress For Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $4-billion public works jobs bill, the first installment of President-elect Carter's economic program, will be introduced today when the Democratic-dominated 95th Congress convenes.

After the ceremonial swearings-in, the House will consist of 292 Democrats, 143 Republicans; the Senate of 62 Democrats, 38 Republicans.

Democrats, who controlled Congress for the past eight years, but found themselves in a constant, veto-punctuated dispute with Republican presidents, pushed the jobs bill as a token of their intention to work with a Democrat in the White House.

Rep. Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., said he expects to have 125 cosponsors for the measure by convening time, including the House Democratic leadership and the party steering committee, as well as key members of legislative committees.

Roe has been chairman of the public works subcommittee that would handle the bill and is scheduled to retain that chairmanship. He said that, although formal work on the measure cannot begin until House committees are officially reconstituted, his panel will begin preliminary staff work immediately.

The bill would expand from $2 billion to $6 billion an existing program of federal funding for a wide variety of local public works, all planned and required to be ready for construction start within 90 days. The original legislation was passed after a long struggle that saw a veto by President Ford overridden.

Roe and House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., said last week Carter had accepted the public works measure as part of his over-all package to stimulate the economy. The program is to be put in final shape Friday when Carter and Democratic leaders confer in Plains, Ga.

Speculation has centered on a $15-billion program, divided between job-creating legislation and tax reductions designed both to put more buying power into consumers' hands and give incentives to business to step up employment.

The public works program increase was originally announced as one of at least $2 billion. Roe said he set the figure at $4 billion as his own estimate of the amount needed, but that it may be amended as the over-all economic package is put together.

Both chambers also faced debate over changes in their rules. Outnumbered House Republicans, though they appeared to have little chance to block proposals already approved by the Democratic caucus, convened Monday to organize resistance. The rules changes are scheduled for House consideration today.

Among the amendments proposed by Democrats in the name of expediting the work of the House are easing the rule against committees sitting while the full chamber is in session, reducing the number of members required for committee quorums and making it more difficult to members to force time-consuming quorum calls.

Some Republicans see these as moves further to limit the action of the minority. Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the Republican conference, said the proposed changes are "nothing more than a coverup for the increasing inefficiency of the House."

The issue of broadcasting House proceedings, shelved last year may come up again, but with little prospect that it will be resolved soon.

Suicide Sparks Staff Shakeup At Fairview

By RITA ROBINSON
Register Staff Writer

COSTA MESA — The suicide of a woman employee has sparked a staff shakeup at Fairview State Hospital, but the man in charge is predicting from the outset that his efforts will be short-circuited by the State Personnel Board.

An extensive evaluation of the management staff is being undertaken, hospital director Dr. Michael Levine said Monday.

The employee, Deborah Lilian Guzlejka, 28, shot herself to death last Oct. 30 after an alleged wine and Valium "party" with two psychiatric technicians at the hospital, Levine said.

Dr. Levine ordered the two technicians fired after a two-month investigation of the case. But, he said, "I wouldn't be surprised if they were back to work tomorrow."

Levine said although the two men, whom he declined to identify, have not been back to work since the incident, he expects them to appeal his decision and for the personnel board to support their appeal.

He said the personnel board has overturned several of his decisions to fire employees in the past.

"It's a continual problem."

Levine said. "My recommendations to discharge people have been frequently overturned by the state board."

"It is hampering and even detrimental to my overall efforts to update the program here with new information and techniques dealing with mental retardation."

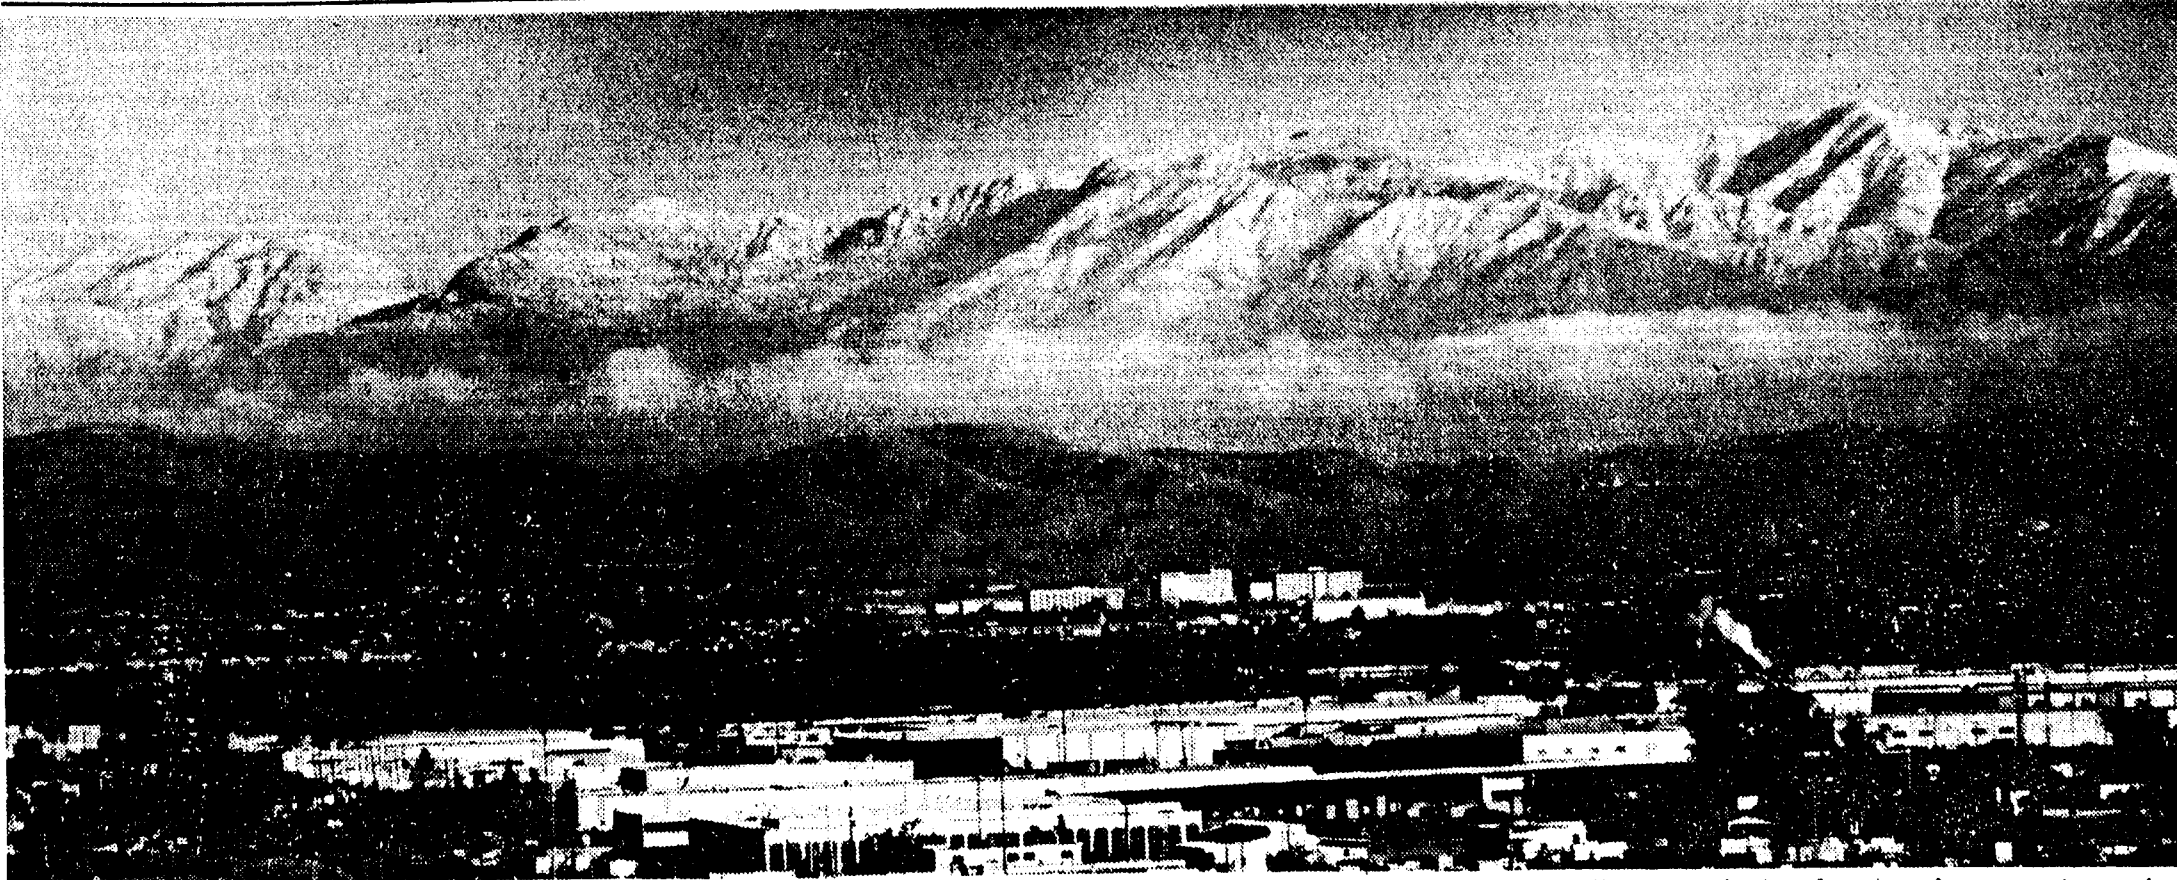

Levine said he also expects the personnel board to disrupt his efforts to evaluate the management staff.

He said he ordered the investigation to find out who was responsible for the Oct. 30 "party" at the hospital.

On that day, Mrs. Guzlejka, who had filed for divorce and (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 1)

NEWS BRIEFS

43 Known Dead
In Czech Mine

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Authorities said Monday that 43 miners were killed in an explosion at the Staric mine in the Ostrava coal basin four days earlier.

The cause of the blast remained unknown and there was no word on the number of injured miners.

When the explosion struck, 225 workers were underground in the mine, which was equipped several years ago with a computerized system to monitor gas emissions and other hazards.

The disaster struck last Thursday and was reported the next day by the state news agency CTK. First reports said miners were trapped by the explosion but gave no casualty figures.

The Staric mine, located at Chlebovice, is part of a Silesian coal field that stretches into Poland and produces high-grade coal.

An explosion in the same coal field killed 11 men in 1975. As in the latest explosion, the 1975 blast occurred in a mine with a computerized monitor system.

Explosion Kills 17 In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A powerful explosion at the gate of a Christian militia garrison in Beirut killed 17 persons and wounded more than 50 Monday, the Christian Phalange party radio reported.

"There were bits of bodies all over the street. It was horrible," said Mrs. Sophia Anttreasian, a housewife whose apartment overlooks the explosion site.

A Phalange spokesman said the blast was from a 155mm artillery shell. But witnesses said it appeared that a car packed with explosives blew up at a former police barracks that had been occupied by an elite security unit of the Phalange militia.

Two Explosions Rock Oil Refinery

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — Two explosions rocked an Exxon Oil Co. refinery near Billings on Monday night and fire erupted soon afterwards. Exxon officials said one employee suffered minor burns.

Fire officials said the blaze, apparently fueled by a ruptured diesel oil pipeline, was brought under control several hours after it broke out.

A large blast hit the plant about 6:30 p.m., followed by a lesser explosion, according to witnesses.

The cause of the explosions was not determined.

Jury Given Dale Car Fraud Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court jury began deciding Monday whether a transsexual auto company president and four other people committed fraud in creation and promotion of the three-wheeled Dale automobile.

During a marathon trial which started last June 1, the six-man, six-woman jury heard evidence about the unusual car, which supposedly was set to retail for $1,969, get 70 miles to the gallon cruising at speeds of up to 80 miles an hour and emerge unharmed from collisions at 30 miles an hour.

The defendants originally were indicted by the county Grand Jury on 34 counts of grand theft, conspiracy, and illegal sales of securities May 1975.

Ex-Compton Judge Put On Probation

LONG BEACH (AP) — A former Compton Municipal Court judge, defeated in last November's election following his arrest on misdemeanor drunken driving charges, pleaded "no contest" to the charges Monday.

Judge Joseph L. Armijo was placed on a year's probation by Long Beach Municipal Court Judge W.H. Winston Jr. He was also fined $315.50.

Appointed to the bench in 1973, Armijo, 38, is now seeking disability retirement, citing health reasons. If it is granted, he would receive a pension of 65 per cent of his $45,200 yearly salary.

8 Ohio School Districts Reopen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tax supported schools were back in session Monday for 70,000 Ohio students in eight school districts that had been closed for up to two months after taxpayers refused to provide extra money.

However, one other Ohio school district was closed down by a teachers' strike Monday, and another district was hit with a strike but kept schools open.

Ohio's General Assembly also reconvened Monday and was expected to produce several proposals, including tax increases, for avoiding school shutdowns in the future.

Indictments Sought In Arson Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Asst. Dist. Atty. James Shallek went before a grand jury on Monday seeking indictments against two men accused with setting a Bronx building afire, killing 25 persons.

Police said they were searching for a third suspect in the Oct. 24 blaze at the Puerto Rico Social Club and expect an arrest shortly.

Jose Antonio Cordero, 40, and Hector Lopez, 17, were arrested during the weekend and charged with murder and arson in what Dist. Atty. Mario Merola called an act of "revenge involving a jealous suitor."

He said the motive for the fire was a "lover's quarrel" between Cordero and Diana Sanchez, 20. Miss Sanchez and her sister, Evelyn, 22, died in the fire.

$2 Million In Heroin Seized

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Three pounds of almost pure Asian heroin, which could carry a street value of nearly $2 million, was seized in a Spokane suburb, authorities revealed Monday.

The drug was seized last September in a home at Greenacres and five arrests have been made, following secret indictments returned by a federal grand jury in Yakima last Dec. 13, said Michael Harvey, special agent in charge of the Spokane office of the Drug Enforcement Administration.

The box was initially intercepted in a routine parcel inspection at a U.S. Customs station in San Francisco, Harvey said.

from Venezuela and ran aground on Dec. 15, spilling its cargo of 7.6 million gallons of No. 6 fuel oil.

"People have been trying to raise her by radio for several days with no luck," Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Michael Calabro said of the missing Grand Zenith.

In Providence, Patrick Marcellino of J.F. Moran Co., agents for the vessel, declined to say when he had last heard from the tanker.

Lloyd's Register, the worldwide guide to ships published by the British insurance association of Lloyd's, lists the Grand Zenith as 18,717 tons, 644 feet long, with a capacity of 9.6 million gallons. It was built in 1953 at Quincy, Mass., and flew the American flag until about two years ago, according to Lloyd's Register.

The tanker's owners were listed as Zenith Navigation Corp. of New York City and its home port was listed as Panama City.

No. 6 oil is what is left after high-value products such as gasoline are refined from crude oil.

Klan Members
Don't Appear
For Hearing

PENDLETON (AP) — Three Marines who say they also are Ku Klux Klansmen failed to appear Monday at a pretrial hearing to which they were subpoenaed as witnesses.

The trio includes two Marines flown back from East Coast bases where they were transferred when their Klan membership became known. They were ordered to testify at hearings for black Marines charged with assaulting whites.

The whereabouts of Pfc. Ronnie Harper, 19, of Pensacola, Fla.; Pfc. Dennis Campbell Jr., 22, of Smith Creek, Mich.; and Pfc. Charles V. Smith, 18, of Houston was unknown, a base spokesman said.

Smith and Campbell were transferred a week after the Nov. 13 attack which allegedly was meant for KKK members but instead left six other white Marines clubbed and stabbed.

In nearby Fallbrook, a man calling himself a California dragon of the Klan said the three white Marines met with him in his home Saturday night.

Tom Metzger said they talked with him again Sunday night and, after visiting friends in San Diego, planned to show up at the hearing.

The base spokesman said they would be declared deserters if they stay away for 30 days. Attorneys for two of the accused blacks had asked for the trio's testimony.

Meanwhile, defense attorneys were instructed to use transcripts from other pretrial hearings at which the three whites testified last week.

negative response."

"Things have settled down now," he said Monday as classes resumed after Christmas break at the rural high school with 270 students. "I think the vacation period has given it time to die out."

"I've been unhappy with that class a long time," said George Opperman, another board member. "I've been concerned about class discipline and I took the principal to task about it."

After Opperman's visit, Miller authorized using the hidden recorder last month to prove to parents the need for disciplinary action.

Two of the 21 students in the popular "Bachelor's Training" class were later barred from the class because of a "culmination of things, not just the one incident," Miller said.

Miller would not specify what form the harassment of teacher Linda Himiker took, but he said that some boys took the class for "an easy grade" and that students sometimes gang up to give a young teacher a hard time.

Neither the teacher nor the students involved were available for comment.

One boy's parents had challenged the use of the recorder and requested a special school board meeting. But the board backed Miller last month in the special meeting.

"Some people were just trying to make a big issue out of a little thing," Miller said. "They ought to be more concerned with the total education processes than some little thing like this."

Monitoring is not done on a regular basis here, Miller said, but the board left the door open for possible future classroom bugging. However, students must be warned they are being monitored.

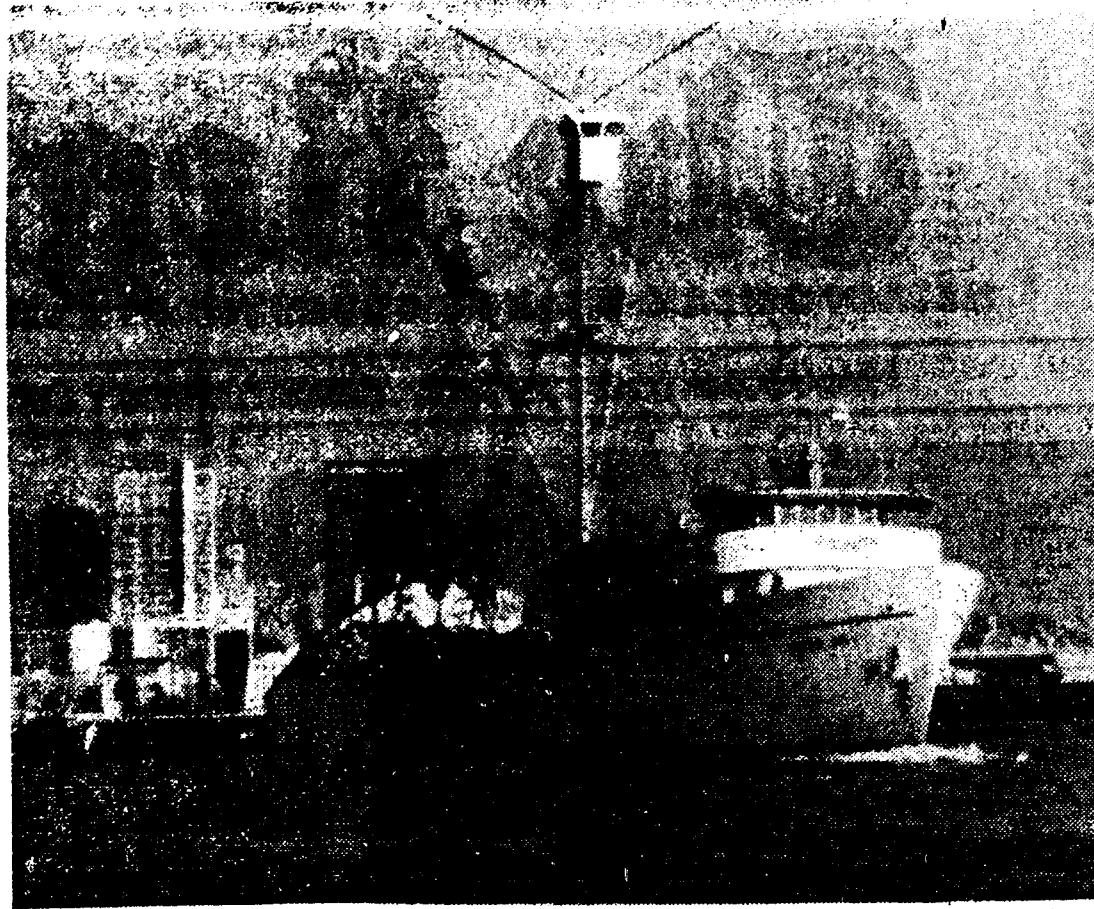

"If you go into a big department store or a bank, they don't tell you that you're being monitored," said Miller. "In the monitoring sense of the word, I don't believe there's anything illegal about it."

$19.4 Million
Navy Light Bill

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy says it paid a $19.4-million light bill from San Diego Gas & Electric Co. last year, partly because the big boats plug into sockets on shore.

The Navy homeports about 140 ships in San Diego with about 110,000 men and women in uniform. In addition, it owns or operates 8,000 buildings in the San Diego area.

A majority of the warships no longer stoke up boilers to provide energy for their generators while in port but instead plug into shore facilities.

was seeking custody of her two young daughters, asked to go home halfway through her shift as a psychiatric technician in the Adult Social Development Program. She said she was tired.

Instead, she allegedly met two other technicians in another part of the hospital for a two-hour wine and Valium "party," the investigation revealed.

One of the technicians was acting as supervisor because no regular supervisors on the management staff were scheduled to work the night shift. The only staff members there were the two men and Mrs. Guzlejka, according to reports.

Levine said he does not know how much Valium, a depressant, was consumed by the three, but he said he does know that a shot was fired that night in the hospital from what police identified as a snub-nosed .38 caliber revolver. No one was injured.

The gun belonged to Mrs. Guzlejka, who purchased it because she lived alone with her daughters a few blocks away from the hospital. Her estranged husband lived in Fullerton where the two daughters were staying that night.

The shooting death occurred later at 10:30 p.m. after a domestic argument between Mrs. Guzlejka and her 19-year-old boyfriend in her home, police reported.

Mrs. Guzlejka shot herself in the head and died 12 hours later at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital. Her death was listed as suicidal by the coroner's office. The boyfriend's possible involvement was ruled out by police.

Levine, who heads a statewide program to curb drug use by hospital patients, said he is initiating a system to control access to drugs at the hospital.

The drugs will be packaged in individual dosages and released only under the prescription of the hospital's psychiatrist, he said. This way, only the psychiatrist and the patient will be responsible for drug misuse. Currently, the drugs are stored in large quantities in employee-only areas of the hospital.

He also said he is changing the practice that management personnel only work the day shift from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. He said he will have supervisors working on all three shifts.

"Fairview will hire a full-time investigator because of the recent allegations of wrongful deaths at state hospitals. But an important side benefit will be for him to investigate employees' infraction of the rules," Levine said.

Levine contends that the only way to improve the conditions at Fairview is to work around the states civil service system.

"There's no way to obtain quality personnel under the civil service classification system because it's almost impossible to discharge incompetent employees," he said.

He proposes that anyone above the psychiatric technician level, which would include supervisors and professional physicians, be removed from civil service and hired on a contract basis with the condition that they may be terminated at any time.

The contract also would be renewable, but only after the holder completed required courses on mental retardation and passed both a written and verbal exam before each renewal period, he said.

"There have been 10 years of abuse and neglect of the state hospitals by underfunding and understaffing," Levine said. "The current situation was inevitable."

He said there have been other incidents of employee misconduct at the hospital, and he said he has apprehensions about overhauling the system.

But the first thing, he said, that must be done to begin improving the quality of care and the elimination of employee problems at Fairview is to conduct and complete an evaluation of the entire management staff.

Behind Every

NEW YORK (AP) — Most wives are thrilled to see their husbands' photographs in the newspaper, but Alexander Gouridine's wife felt no such pride when her husband's photo appeared in the New York Daily News.

It was a photograph of a bank robbery.

Police said Mrs. Gouridine threatened to leave her husband if he didn't surrender to police. He turned himself in and was charged with five bank robberies, police said.

Gouridine, 21, an unemployed lithographer, said his wife recognized the photo even though he has since shaved off a goatee he wore at the time.

Sanity Hearing
In Rape-Slaying
Case Postponed

SACRAMENTO — The state Supreme Court Monday ordered a continuance in the start of the sanity hearing for accused rape-slayer Kenneth R. Hulbert to allow time to consider a motion filed by Hulbert's attorney.

The sanity hearing for the 24-year-old Fullerton man had been scheduled to begin this morning after a long series of delays.

Public defender Walter Zech is seeking an order closing the courtroom to the public because of his belief the publicity from the hearing would jeopardize Hulbert's right to a fair trial later.

That motion already has been denied by Superior Court Judge William S. Lee, who is slated to preside over the hearing, and the Fourth District Court of Appeal. Zech filed his motion with the Supreme Court just before Christmas.

Hulbert is charged in a 14-count Orange County Grand Jury indictment with rape attacks on three women, including the rape-slaying of a Whittier housewife on Jan. 2, 1976.

British Loan

fourth big credit extended on Britain's behalf in about a year.

Major trading partners set up a standby $5.3 billion credit for Great Britain in June, and the IMF set up loans of $800 million in June and $1.7 billion in December 1975.

But much of the credit extended in June expired last month, so that some of the new loan presumably would be used to pay off the earlier debt.

Under the standby arrangement, the British authorities will be authorized to draw an amount equivalent to $1.16 billion immediately. Total credit is not to exceed the equivalent of $2.26 billion over the first 12 months.

Before Jan. 16, 1978, the fund will conduct a review of the progress of the British economy under the terms of the arrangement.

To finance the credit the fund will borrow the equivalent of $2.97 billion from eight participants in the fund.

The fund will make calls on the participants when needed up to the equivalent of $52.2 million in Belgian francs, $63.8 million in Canadian dollars, $910.6 million in West German marks, $58 million in French francs, $643.8 million in Japanese yen, $121.8 million in Netherlands guilders, $23.2 million in Swedish kronor and $1.08 billion in U.S. dollars.

In addition, arrangements have been made with the Swiss National Bank for a loan of $348 million U.S. dollars.

Evans, according to the report, became belligerent while being placed in the police unit, kicked out a squad car window and also kicked Kowalski.

The officer was treated at Fountain Valley Community Hospital and released.

Tuna Fleet Starts
'Unhappy' Voyage

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The boats of the U.S. tuna fleet went to sea Monday, three days after their traditional New Year's Day departure and with crews unhappy over U.S. fishing restrictions.

"My men will have to be lucky just to make a halfway profitable trip," said Manuel Silva, who owns two boats.

The American tunamen are prohibited from setting their nets in waters where porpoises are swimming with yellowfin tuna, the main catch of the fleet.

That restriction was imposed by a federal court in Washington pending action by the Commerce Department to set a 1977 porpoise-kill quota.

Porpoises, air-breathing mammals, become entangled in the tunamen's nets and drown. A necessary evil, say the fishermen, but the Marine Mammal Protection Act requires the federal government to set a limit on such porpoise kills. The 1977 quota, as yet unset, is expected to be much lower than the 78,000 porpoise kills allowed in 1976.

But pending a quota, and the issuance of licenses, the American tunamen must operate under the federal court ban on setting their nets over porpoises. Foreign boats, not bound by the ban, already are operating in the eastern Pacific fishing grounds.

A number of boat owners in San Diego have talked recently about either setting up foreign operations to escape the federal restrictions or selling out to fishermen in other countries.

The uncertainty of the situation delayed most of the fleet from leaving over the weekend, said Michael Zolezzi, assistant general manager of the American Tunaboat Association.

Under the new law all homeowners who have a homeowners insurance package were automatically covered for workman's compensation as of Saturday.

The cost of the additional coverage would be included as of the policy's renewal date.

However, approximately 3,000,000 California residents have only fire insurance and are currently unprotected against workman's compensation suits, Robinson said.

He predicted that AB 133 will face "strong opposition" in the legislature from the special interest groups which supported the law which went into effect Saturday.

He said organized labor and the insurance industry are expected to lead the opposition.

Robinson said a recent newspaper story was primarily responsible for making him aware of the magnitude of the loopholes in the new law.

Robinson said that if the legislature can't find a reasonable approach to the issue he would work for passage of McAllister's bill to repeal the current law.

McAllister told newsmen that it was unacceptable to him that "about half" of California residents don't now have the insurance coverage required under the law.

"In particular, the average renter doesn't think like a homeowner, and may take a cavalier attitude, saying, 'I never hire anyone.' Then he sends a kid to the corner to get groceries who gets hit by a car," McAllister said.

SANTA ANA — A Laguna Beach man remained in good condition at UCI Medical Center Monday after being stabbed in the chest in Orange County Jail New Year's Day, sheriff's officials reported.

Investigators said Byron J. Detweiler, 30, currently standing trial on suspicion of rape and parole violation, was stabbed about 7 p.m. Saturday.

The housing minister was the second prominent Labor party official recently touched by scandal. Asher Yadin, former head of a major health insurance agency, was arrested on suspicion of fraud and bribetaking last fall shortly after he was nominated to be governor of the Bank of Israel.

Police said Lavi's allegations had been under investigation before Ofer's death.

With corruption a potential issue in the election next May, political observers predicted the Ofer affair would cost Labor votes.

A few boats left San Diego harbor over the weekend, he said, but the majority of the 60 boats in the fleet did not set out until Monday.

Silva, president of the tunaboat association, said he is considering sale of his boats Sea Quest and Proud Heritage to Mexican interests.

He said few American fishermen expect to make a profit this year. "It's tough to subject your men to going to sea under this tremendous handicap," Silva said.

Silva said the fishermen will concentrate on two less popular tuna: the school tuna, younger and smaller than the yellowfin and one that does not travel with porpoises, and skipjack.

The skipjack, also ignored by porpoises, generally appear in numbers only once every four years, he said. The last big run was 1976.

Insurance Law

Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulates all facets of industrial safety and health.

Robinson said AB 133 would place a one-year moratorium on the new law while the state legislature sought to hammer out "a reasonable approach."

"I don't have the answers," he added, "but until we do, the execution of the present law should be delayed."

Under the new law all homeowners who have a homeowners insurance package were automatically covered for workman's compensation as of Saturday.

The cost of the additional coverage would be included as of the policy's renewal date.

However, approximately 3,000,000 California residents have only fire insurance and are currently unprotected against workman's compensation suits, Robinson said.

He predicted that AB 133 will face "strong opposition" in the legislature from the special interest groups which supported the law which went into effect Saturday.

He said organized labor and the insurance industry are expected to lead the opposition.

Robinson said a recent newspaper story was primarily responsible for making him aware of the magnitude of the loopholes in the new law.

OVERFLOWING AUTO — Monday 27 ex-addicts and drug offenders, members of Teen Challenge-People Challenge of Orange, crammed all 4,625 pounds of themselves into a Toyota Corolla station wagon in order to set a Guinness record.

The stuffies had an ulterior motive since Orange Toyota, 1400 N. Tustin Ave., has promised to donate $25 to Teen Challenge for each new car sold during January. Laughing and moaning abounded as one crushed volunteer confided, "We have to take turns breathing." The last one in was the first one to tumble out.

Nantucket Spill Rated Future Beach Menace

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — The millions of gallons of oil that spilled from the ruptured cargo holds of the tanker Argo Merchant could come back to haunt southern beaches several years from now, a marine specialist said Monday.

Dr. Jerry Galt of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration also said the spilled oil posed no immediate threat to British beaches should it be carried there by the Gulf Stream.

Meanwhile, a crew member of the Liberian-registered tanker testified in New York that an inexperienced helmsman was steering the ship alone during the night just before it ran aground off course.

In Philadelphia, the captain of another tanker, Olympic Games, said Monday his vessel lost power shortly before it went aground in the Delaware River, and the docking pilot told a Coast guard inquiry that he was unaware a buoy had been moved to warn of shallower waters.

And in Washington, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman reported that most immediate danger to U.S. shores from both oil spills was past.

Galt, who has been helping to map the oil slick, said much of the oil is caught up in an eddy on the north edge of the Gulf Stream, about 150 to 200 miles east-southeast of the original spill site.

He said that should the oil get caught up in the circular Gulf Stream, the gummy spill could head first north and east toward Iceland and Great Britain. Then, following the current's clockwise direction, it could head south and west back toward Bermuda.

"But we're talking about a long time," Galt said. "And we're not talking about a massive slick, but a slight increase in the amount of tar balls that will wash up on shore."

Tax Laws Proposed For Attack On Crime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charging that organized crime "endangers the quality of life," Los Angeles' top prosecutors are urging federal and state officials to use tax laws to mount a counterattack on crime.

Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp and City Atty. Burt Pines urged the action in letters to key government officials, spokesmen said Monday.

In a letter to U.S. Treasury Secretary-designate Werner Blumenthal, Pines and Van de Kamp expressed concern about a federal budget cut of $8.2 million from the Internal Revenue Service's intelligence division.

Saying that tax laws have long helped put mobsters behind bars, they said they "viewed with grave concern

Brown's 'Relief' Vow Doubted 'Can't Deliver Without Tax Hikes,' Lawmakers Claim

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s promise of no new taxes in 1977 was greeted with doubts from leaders of the California Legislature Monday as lawmakers returned from a holiday recess.

Some powerful Democrats said they don't think Brown can deliver on his promise to provide property tax relief and reform California's school finance system without raising taxes — even if reports of a budget surplus of $800 million to $1 billion prove true.

Even Republican leaders said a tax increase may be needed.

Assembly Speaker Leo

McCarthy, the legislature's most powerful member, predicted a big state budget surplus. But the San Francisco Democrat said it will probably not be enough to avoid an increase in the income, sales, or some other state tax.

Senate President pro tem James Mills said he saw "no substantial improvement in the state's economy," and therefore no reason to anticipate a big budget surplus.

But the San Diego Democrat was equally skeptical of the governor's promise to meet property tax relief and school finance needs without a tax boost. "I don't see how it can be done," he said.

Assemblyman Daniel Boatwright, D-Concord, who chairs the budget-writing Assembly Ways and Means Committee, said he expects "a fantastic increase" in state revenues due to improvements in the economy, especially increased taxable sales.

"I mean $800 million to $1 billion (surplus)," Boatwright said. "If we have a $1 billion surplus, the governor may be right that we won't need a tax increase, and from what I understand, the surplus could very well approach $1 billion."

McCarthy also said "there is going to be good news about the surplus" when Brown sends the legislature his proposed 1977-78 state budget. But McCarthy refused to give specifics except that even a big budget surplus probably isn't enough to avoid a tax hike.

Brown is expected to unveil a budget proposal in excess of $14 billion next Monday.

"I am not reluctant to increase taxes," McCarthy said, if that is needed to provide renter and homeowner tax relief and to comply with the California Supreme Court's Serrano case order to equalize school spending by 1980.

Brown said last week he had a proposal that would provide — without any state tax increase — both homeowner tax relief and "substantial compliance" with the court's order to provide equal educational opportunity statewide by eliminating differences in amounts spent per pupil in rich and poor school districts.

"I'm trying to control my cynicism on that (promise by Brown)," said Assemblyman Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades, the Republican leader of the lower house.

Bell said the two discussed "the general organization of the Justice Department" and some cases currently under investigation.

He said they did not discuss in detail the current investigations of FBI burglaries and abuses of power within the FBI.

He said he has made no decision about whether FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley should be replaced.

"In the event a new director is selected, I'll do the selecting in consultation with President-elect Carter," he said. "But I'm not saying there will be a change."

Last Resort Device, Bell Says Of Busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Griffin Bell said Monday he believes that busing should be used to desegregate urban schools only in rare cases.

"I think it upsets Americans to take children away from their neighborhoods," Bell told a news conference. "I think neighborhood schools are preferable, all other things being equal."

But Bell said busing may be needed to desegregate some school systems and protect the constitutional rights of minority children.

"In time," he continued, "we will have integrated housing. But you can't wait on desegregated schools until that day comes, so you have to use busing as part of the remedy."

"I think there's going to be some school districts where busing will be employed as a last resort."

Bell outlined his views on busing when he was asked whether he contemplates any change in Justice Department policy on the issue if he is confirmed as attorney general.

His reply generally follows the current department policy which is to support only the extent of busing necessary to correct the discrimination caused by official acts of school boards and other government agencies.

Bell talked with reporters after meeting for more than two hours with outgoing Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi.

Decontrol Of Gas Price Plan Fought

WASHINGTON — In one last brawl with the Ford administration, Congressional Democrats vowed Monday to resist the President's last-minute bid to lift price controls on gasoline.

A White House spokesman confirmed that Ford will propose decontrol of retail gasoline prices "as soon as possible" after Congress reconvenes today.

The controls would be automatically removed unless either the House or the Senate disapproved within 15 days — or by Jan. 19, one day before President-elect Jimmy Carter is sworn in.

At a Monday afternoon news conference, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, and several other lawmakers called the President's decontrol plan "unwise, unjustified and inappropriate."

They vowed to defeat it, Jackson said, "in an up-and-down vote on the floor."

Joining Jackson were Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., and Reps. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., and Herbert Harris, D-Va.

Last November, the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) insisted that the decontrol of gasoline prices would have a "minimal impact" on the economy.

But Metzenbaum and Maguire produced a freshly-printed copy of a Library of Congress study, indicating the opposite.

"The Library of Congress' analysis," Metzenbaum said, "indicates that the cost to the economy of decontrol would run between $6 billion and $8.9 billion a year."

Zorinsky said the increase would particularly hit farmers, whose profits already are shrinking as a result of falling grain and livestock prices.

The five lawmakers questioned Ford's timing in pressing for removal of the price controls in the waning days of his administration.

"There's something slick about the timing of this (White House) announcement," Jackson said.

He acknowledged that mid-winter demand for gasoline is low, so that removal of price controls now would probably not lead to an immediate increase in gas pump prices.

By late spring, however, as demand heightened, Jackson said, "the prices would shoot up. They're trying to do it now under cover of a seasonal slack period."

Zorinsky said the President's timing on the proposal is "bound to raise questions as to whether this is related to the repaying of a (campaign) debt (to the oil companies)."

Ford Backs Off On Puerto Rico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation proposing statehood for Puerto Rico may not be ready before President Ford leaves office Jan. 20, a White House spokesman said Monday. Thus, the issue may be dead for now.

If the bill isn't ready, it will be up to President-elect Carter's administration to propose such legislation. But Carter has said Congress should not consider making Puerto Rico the 51st state until the island's residents have expressed a clear preference for statehood.

President Ford proposed statehood last Friday and said he would recommend enactment of legislation to the new 95th Congress, which convenes today.

The idea was widely criticized by several congressmen and Puerto Rican leaders. Carlos Romero Barcelo ignored the issue when he was inaugurated Sunday as Puerto Rico's new governor.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Monday that the legislation, being prepared by the interior department "is very complicated and may not be completed in time for this administration to submit it."

"Then it would be up to the next administration," he said.

He said the President is personally committed to the idea of statehood for Puerto Rico and noted that it was a plank in last summer's Republican convention platform.

During the next few days, Nessen also said Ford plans to:

— Direct the end of government controls on gasoline prices today.

— Send to Congress his recommendation for a tax cut, expected to total about $10 billion for individuals, plus tax breaks for corporations.

Carter Reorganization Bill Expected To 'Sail'

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — A bill authorizing President-elect Carter to propose a sweeping reorganization of the federal government should sail through Congress, the chairman of the House Government Operations Committee said Monday.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., also made a "wild guess" that reorganization might save the government as much as 10 per cent of the annual federal budget, which is currently more than $413 billion.

Brooks also predicted that when Carter completes his reorganization plans, Congress will act favorably on them, although they inevitably will draw opposition from defenders of the status quo and will have lobbyists "jumping through hoops."

Brooks made the comments after discussing the reorganization authorization bill with Carter and Bert Lance, the designated head of the Office of Management and Budget, at Carter's home here.

Brooks said Carter's reorganization plans will be opposed by "all the lobbyists in Washington for one; all the lawyers that live out of (the agencies) for No. 2; and all the public relations people, No. 3. They will all jump through hoops when you change the format."

But Brooks added that "the world will go on" despite their criticisms, "and it may go on a little better if we make a few changes."

Lance would not endorse Brooks' guess of a 10 per cent savings from reorganization, but he said it would improve government services and "predictability," and reduce unnecessary regulation.

"If 10 per cent is what it turns out to be, I think the American people will be very proud," said Lance, who is expected to spearhead Carter's reorganization efforts as head of OMB. He added that the people would still be proud even if only 1 per cent was saved.

What Carter wants is enactment of legislation committing him to submit to Congress detailed reorganization plans which will go into effect if not vetoed by either the Senate or House.

Brooks said he believes the 60-day waiting period between each proposal and final implementation is necessary to give congressional committees a chance to evaluate each plan.

Brooks said he is hopeful that Carter will be successful in reorganizing the federal government's energy activities in particular.

Carter has proposed creating a single department of energy to replace the current system in which several agencies and departments divide the government's energy responsibilities.

The President-elect told reporters in an interview that while he does not object to summit meetings with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev early in his administration, he hopes "that if we do have them they will be in the United States."

"I wouldn't want to go out of the country right at first for such a meeting," Carter said.

Byrd Backers Claim Senate Leader Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia expressed confidence Monday that he will win election as Senate Democratic leader by a comfortable margin.

But an aide of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Byrd's only remaining rival for Senate majority leader in the new Congress convening today, talked of a possible upset victory.

Republican senators will elect a new minority leader, with Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan the only avowed candidate but with Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee acting like a candidate.

Jockeying for the top leadership posts intensified as senators gathered for the opening gavel of the 95th Congress.

House members already have chosen their leaders, but in the Senate party caucuses were to be held this morning to settle the contests for leadership posts.

Byrd, the Democratic whip, or assistant leader, since he ousted Sen. Edward M. Kennedy from the post in 1971, has been the acknowledged front runner to succeed Mize Mansfield of Montana as majority leader.

Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina previously dropped out of the race.

David Gartner, Humphrey's administrative assistant, said the secret balloting at the party caucus is the key to the outcome. He said two or three senators, whom he declined to name, have told Humphrey they will vote for him even though they are publicly committed to Byrd.

The majority leadership post is open because of Mansfield's retirement from the Senate. Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the GOP leader in the last Congress, also retired.

Hospital Care Ailing, Nurses Say

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of 10,000 nurses found that 38 per cent wouldn't like to be patients in their own hospitals.

The survey, reported in the January issue of the magazine Nursing 77, rated nursing care in the United States and Canada at a "low B" grade. The smaller the hospital, the survey indicated, the less the responding nurses thought of the care.

As reasons why nursing care of patients is less than excellent, Nursing 77 reported that the nurses blamed insufficient staff, the burdens of paper work and other obligations that took time away from attending to patients.

The magazine, last May published a "Probe of Quality Care," listing 78

questions and asking its nursing readers to respond to them. Those responses, more than 10,000 of them, formed the basis of the article in the current issue.

Concerning health care across the country, said Nursing 77, only 3 per cent of nurses rated it as excellent. Half said it was good, the magazine reported, while 42 per cent rated it as fair, and 5 per cent as poor.

The nurses rated physical care as good to high at their hospitals, the publication said, but considered emotional or psychological support of patients and families as being only fair and sometimes poor.

Only about one third of the responding nurses said they thought other nurses gave good or excellent psychological support to patients.

One nurse suggested a reason: "The physical (care) is stressed as all important. If we're found sitting in a patient's room offering support, we're not considered to be working — just talking."

Only 23 per cent said they thought doctors were good in providing emotional support for the sick.

As for nursing homes, 55 per cent of responding nurses who worked in such institutions said they would not want to be patients where they work.

Asked if they had seen deaths which they thought had been caused accidentally by doctors, 42 per cent said "yes." And 15 per cent said they had more than once seen deaths caused accidentally by doctors.

As for themselves, about 18 per cent said they knew of deaths accidentally caused by nurses.

Shirley Temple Black's Mother Dead At 84

GERTRUDE A. TEMPLE, mother of Shirley Temple Black, has died at a Palo Alto hospital after a long illness. She was 84. Mrs. Temple, a native of Chicago, was with her husband, George, when she died. It was their 64th wedding anniversary. In addition to her husband and daughter, both of Woodside, Calif., Mrs. Temple was survived by sons John S. Temple of San Pedro, and George F. Temple Jr. of Laguna Hills, five grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Mrs. Black, the former child movie star who is now chief of protocol at the State Department, said no services are planned.

President IDI AMIN of Uganda reportedly has had a private showing for his friends of "Victory at Entebbe," a film about the Israeli commando raid on Entebbe airport last July. And Amin decided he likes it even though it portrays a defeat for his army. Kenya's daily Standard newspaper reported Monday. The paper said Amin initially had decided to screen the movie in Uganda "to show how stupid it is," but instead found it enjoyable. Amin was quoted as saying: "I'm portrayed very well in the film." His role is played by American actor JULIUS HARRIS in the U.S.-made movie, which stars ELIZABETH TAYLOR, KIRK DOUGLAS, and BURT LANCASTER.

CROWN PRINCE VAJIRALONGKORN has married a first cousin in the first royal wedding to be televised in Thailand. Crowds throughout the country celebrated the marriage of the 24-year-old heir to the throne on Monday to 19-year-old SOMSAWALI KITTIVAKORN. There were parades, dancing and offering of food to Buddhist monks to gain merit for the givers.

Former President RICHARD M. NIXON, who resigned in disgrace because of Watergate, has been invited to Jimmy Carter's inauguration, a spokeswoman for the inaugural committee said Monday. "It's a tradition to invite former presidents," said the spokeswoman, citing protocol as the reason for asking Nixon and his family to attend the Carter inauguration Jan. 20. The spokeswoman said there has been no indication the Nixons will accept the invitation. She denied a published report that Carter staffers fear Nixon will attend.

KAREN ANNE QUINLAN is still breathing on her own in a coma at a nursing home in Morris Plains, N.J., more than seven months after life-support systems were removed, a spokesman says. Miss Quinlan, 22, a patient at the county-run Morris View Rest Home, was removed from a respirator at her parents' request last May, after a landmark ruling by the state Supreme Court. A spokesman at the rest home said Sunday that Miss Quinlan is given intravenous nourishment and is turned regularly to keep her from developing bedsores.

Secretary of State HENRY KISSINGER has been talking with CBS chairman WILLIAM PALEY about succeeding the latter as head of the network, the New York Post reported Monday. A state department briefing officer in Washington said he had no knowledge of any such talks, and the Post quoted a CBS spokesman as denying that they had taken place.

Sen. DONALD W. RIEGLE, D-Mich., announced Monday

that he and his wife, MEREDITH, have agreed to separate and seek a divorce. Riegle and his wife have been married five years. She is his second wife. "Our decision is a very personal one, arrived at amicably, and we will have no further comment to make," Riegle said in a brief statement issued by his Washington office.

The International Society of Girl Watchers said Monday in San Diego that ROSALYN CARTER, wife of the president-elect, is America's "most watchable wife." Mrs. Carter heads a list of 10 "most watchable women of the world," picked by the group which claims 27,000 "sworn-in-members." "In the presidential campaign, she gave Jimmy Carter tremendous support and real vote-getting help," said Joe

Beagin, who founded Girl Watchers in 1960. "She has a great personality and charmed everyone."

3 Juror Prospects Hold Longet Guilty

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — The mayor and two residents of this tiny ski resort community said in court Monday that they believe singer-actress Claudine Longet is guilty of manslaughter in the shooting death of her lover, pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

He insisted he could be fair and judge the defendant on the evidence.

He was one of two prospective jurors tentatively accepted by both sides in the first morning of questioning. However, no peremptory challenges were exercised, and lawyers predicted that many prospects would be excused due to their friendships with participants.

Mayor Stacey Standley and the two other Aspen residents were among prospective jurors questioned on the opening day of the French-born singer's trial.

Standley said he had written a letter to the court asking to be excused from jury duty because "I felt she was guilty based on evidence I had received through the municipal government."

A waitress who has served Miss Longet in a local restaurant and another woman called as a potential panelist also announced that they believe Miss Longet is guilty of the manslaughter charge against her.

The two women and Standley were excused for prejudice when they said they could not put aside their opinions.

Miss Longet blushed on occasion as the three made their statements about her. Otherwise, she maintained a stony, downcast expression, her brow furrowed.

Attorneys for both the defense and the prosecution had predicted it would be difficult to seat an impartial jury in the small-town atmosphere of Miss Longet, who recently purchased a $153,000 home in Aspen, arrived at the court house escorted by Williams. The prosecution announced that he would be one of its witnesses. However, prosecutors indicated they had dropped earlier plans to call Miss Longet's 12-year-old daughter Noel to testify against her mother. Noel reportedly was in the Sabich home on March 21, 1976, the day a gun went off and struck the ski star in the abdomen, killing him.

The dark-haired Miss Longet sat facing the jury box during much of the questions. She occasionally turned back to the spectator section where Williams sat in a backrow seat.

She has said she accidentally shot the 31-year-old Sabich, a member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic ski team. She said a gun went off as Sabich was showing her how to use it.

Miss Longet faces a possible penalty of 10 years in prison and $30,000 fine if convicted.

Another of the first prospective jurors questioned was a friend of Sabich and was acquainted with 11 potential witnesses. He also noted that his young daughter has been attending French classes taught by Miss Longet at a local elementary school.

One of the first jury prospects called turned out to be Sabich's lawyer, who now represents his estate. Anthony Mazza was immediately excused for cause.

Union Staffers Strike Against Own Union

SANTA ANA — Office workers and staff members set up pickets Monday outside the Santa Ana regional headquarters for the California School Employees Association (CSEA) as part of a statewide strike against the nation's oldest and largest classified school workers' union.

Kelly Horner, spokeswoman for the Associated Employees of CSEA, said the 10-member staff — including two secretaries and eight field representatives — started picketing the office, 1823 E. 17th St., at 8 a.m.

She said the 108-member statewide group called the strike last Thursday after rejecting a 3½-year contract offer proposed by CSEA management. "As a result of the strike, they've (CSEA) offered to resume negotiations Tuesday."

CSEA officials were not available for comment.

The Santa Ana office provides staff assistance to about 110 CSEA chapters representing 25,000 members in Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego counties, the spokeswoman said. The organization has 90,000 members statewide.

Areas of dispute include length of contract, salary and fringe benefits.

A spokesman at strike headquarters in San Jose said salaries currently average from $835 to $700 a month for secretaries to about $1,200 for a field representative. Some clerks make less than $600.

Welfare Rolls In LA County Continue Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County welfare rolls grew in October for the fourth straight month, the county Department of Public Social Services reported Monday.

Department spokesman Steve Monroe said statistics for November would be ready in a few days.

Officials said the number of people receiving aid increased by about 10,000 to 970,234, compared to 959,550 in September.

"It dipped during the summer and now it's going back," said Monroe, "but we can't say this indicates a trend."

He said in March 1971 figures reached their high point, around 980,000. "It's gone various ways since, but never higher than that," he noted.

Keith Comrie, acting director of the department, blamed the boost on a slowdown in improvement of the employment situation in the county.

$15,000 Worth Of Coins Missing

NEWPORT BEACH — Police here have been asked to help locate more than $15,000 worth of silver 50-cent pieces which are missing at a local coin dealer's.

Monex International, of 4910 Birch St., reportedly came up short during a weigh-in, a company spokesman said, adding that the firm hasn't been able to determine if the missing silver is the result of a theft or faulty scales.

The loss was discovered during an audit of the company's vault contents, police said.

Snows 'Too Late' For Ski Resorts

Blankets of snow coated Sierra Nevada slopes Monday, but some ski resort owners hard hit by a season-long drought are still singing the "It's-great-but-too-late" blues.

"It's certainly a little overdue. We'd like to have seen it two months ago," said Bob Roberts, executive director of the Sierra Ski Association which represents 35 resorts in California and Nevada.

The California State Auto Association reported 13 ski resorts now operating. Only four resorts had been able to open before New Year's, using manmade flakes to lure determined skiers.

The brown mountainsides received their first white coat last Wednesday and the most recent storm began Sunday, bringing the Sierra between two and three feet of snow. More high-altitude snowfall through the night was predicted by the National Weather Service.

Roberts said the storm left a good base, but no grace.

"This will not be a good season. It's already too late and most areas will end the year in the red. You just can't make up for the revenues lost during Christmas weekend," he said.

"As far as the ski areas are concerned, I'm sure we've easily lost $5 to $7 million in total sales this year," he added. "Generally by the end of the Christmas holiday, most areas have done within 30 to 40 per cent of their sales for the year."

But all things considered, skiers and resort owners managed a bit of revelry in the new snow.

Brady Hodge of Heavenly Valley chortled. "It's been nonstop snow all day" and said they had a 48-inch total. Squaw Valley's Bill Boardman said gleefully, "It's sticking... it's exactly what we wanted."

At Mammoth, California's largest resort, 16 of 22 lifts were open Monday, with plans to open all lifts this weekend, said public information officer Pam Clason. She said Mammoth's management had braced itself for the dry season by beginning only this weekend to hire its customary winter crew of 800.

"We're not thinking of the past, just the future," a spokesman at Mammoth said.

The crunch has hit hardest the small businesses that are punched around resorts and had little economic cushion for the drought. "Those are the guys that get stung," Roberts said, estimating total losses at as much as $40 million.

Some relief through federal loans is available to resorts and businesses, Roberts said, as a part of the state's drought relief program. None have yet applied for loans, he said.

Roberts shared the precarious optimism. "I think we'll have a good year of skiing this year. It's just that there won't be a great deal of high living as far as the skiing industry is concerned."

Bobby Fischer Loses Chance To Regain Title

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Former world chess champion Bobby Fischer of the United States has lost his chance to regain the title because he failed to register for a series of elimination matches, the International Chess Federation (FIDE) announced Monday.

FIDE's secretary general, Ineke Bakker, said Fischer had not met the Jan. 1 deadline to enter the forthcoming candidates' matches that will produce a challenger to world champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union.

Fischer was stripped of the championship in March 1975 when he rejected the federation's game arrangements to meet Karpov, and Karpov won the title by default.

His place in the elimination series will be taken by another former world champion, Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union, Miss Bakker said.

Spassky lost the title to Fischer in a match in Reykjavik, Iceland, in 1972.

Spassky had notified the federation he would be willing to play if Fischer failed to register.

Other qualifiers for the candidates' matches confirmed their willingness to participate long before FIDE's deadline expired.

They are Vlastmil Hort of Czechoslovakia; Viktor Korchnoi, the Soviet grandmaster who defected to the West last July and now lives in the Netherlands; former world champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union; Henrique Mecking of Brazil; Denmark's Bent Larsen; Hungary's Lajos Portisch, and Lev Polugaevsky of the Soviet Union.

Miss Bakker said a match between Larsen and Portisch will be held in the Netherlands. Sites for the other matches — Korchnoi-Petrosian, Mecking-Polugaevsky and Spassky-Hort — have not yet been decided, she added.

Under the federation's regulations, this series of matches must be completed by April 1.

Miss Bakker said Fischer's forfeiting play in the candidates' matches would not affect a possible game between him and Karpov, "but the world title, which ultimately belongs to FIDE, can of course not be at stake in such a match."

BP Stabbing Victim Serious

BUENA PARK — A service station attendant stabbed during a weekend petty theft at the station remained in "serious" condition Monday in Martin Luther Hospital.

Police said Eugene Philip Muras, 16, of Fullerton was stabbed in the lower left abdomen about 6 p.m. Saturday near a service station, 8001 Orangeflower Ave.

A man, about 40 with a short beard, had volunteered to stay at the station as "security" while a friend went home to get money to pay a $9 bill for gas, cigarettes and oil, according to police.

Reports said the "collateral" suddenly started to run and Muras chased him. After running about 100 yards the man turned struck Muras in the stomach and then fled.

Muras told police he didn't know he was stabbed until he felt himself bleeding while walking back to his station.

High School Building Burns Down

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Fire destroyed the administration building at Bakersfield High School early Monday with an estimated loss of $850,000.

No one was injured. Firemen suspect arson as the cause of the blaze because fire doors had been pulled open and a tray of files was found sitting on a chair in one office.

Officials said most records for the school's 2,750 students were lost, but microfilm records for previous years remain intact.

Classes resumed on schedule Monday after the Christmas holiday but students were dismissed at noon as administrators shifted offices into the school auditorium.

Public information officer Ken Brown said the administration building was connected to a classroom building but the fire was contained before reaching the classroom area.

Brown said both telephone and school bell systems were destroyed and alternate ones were being installed.

A special meeting of the school board has been scheduled to plan further emergency measures.

PAPER PLANE — Students and alumni of Nihon University flew a man-powered plane Sunday at the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force base at Shimofusa, near Tokyo. The plane, made of balsa and tough hand-made paper, weighs over 80 pounds and has a wingspan of more than 69 feet. The crew claimed they surpassed the old world record of 3,500 feet when they flew more than 6,900 feet at an altitude of three to six feet, staying airborne more than four minutes. Photos show last-minute inspections and plane flying.

Witness Testifies Scudder Set Up His Own Kidnaping

SANTA ANA — A Laguna Hills mechanic testified in Superior Court here Monday that potato chip heir John H. Scudder told him that he had set up his own kidnaping in August.

Frank Sortino's surprise testimony came late Monday in the jury trial for William Rudy Wesson, 44, of Tustin, and Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Long Beach. The two men are charged with abducting the 64-year-old Scudder on Aug. 19 in an abortive bid for a $250,000 ransom.

Scudder, of Newport Beach, allegedly escaped from his kidnapers by faking a heart attack shortly after the abduction occurred.

Wesson and Sellers contend however that Scudder helped plan the kidnaping and was a willing "victim."

Sortino testified Monday that he had been a partner of Scudder's son, Craig, in an ambulance business in Laguna Hills. He said that when the partnership ended, he kept the ambulance the partners had used when they first started.

He said that Scudder and his son hounded him at regular intervals in their attempts to regain control over the ambulance.

Sortino said that Scudder talked to him about a week after the kidnaping and again demanded that he (Sortino) return the ambulance.

During that conversation, Sortino said, Scudder asked, "did you hear about my kidnaping?"

Sortino said that he replied he had, and that Scudder responded by stating "wasn't that smart of me to fake the heart attack?"

Sortino said that Scudder then blurted out that he "planned the whole thing."

The witness said he attempted to phone Scudder later that night and get a tape recording of Scudder's comments about setting up the kidnaping, but that Scudder failed to respond.

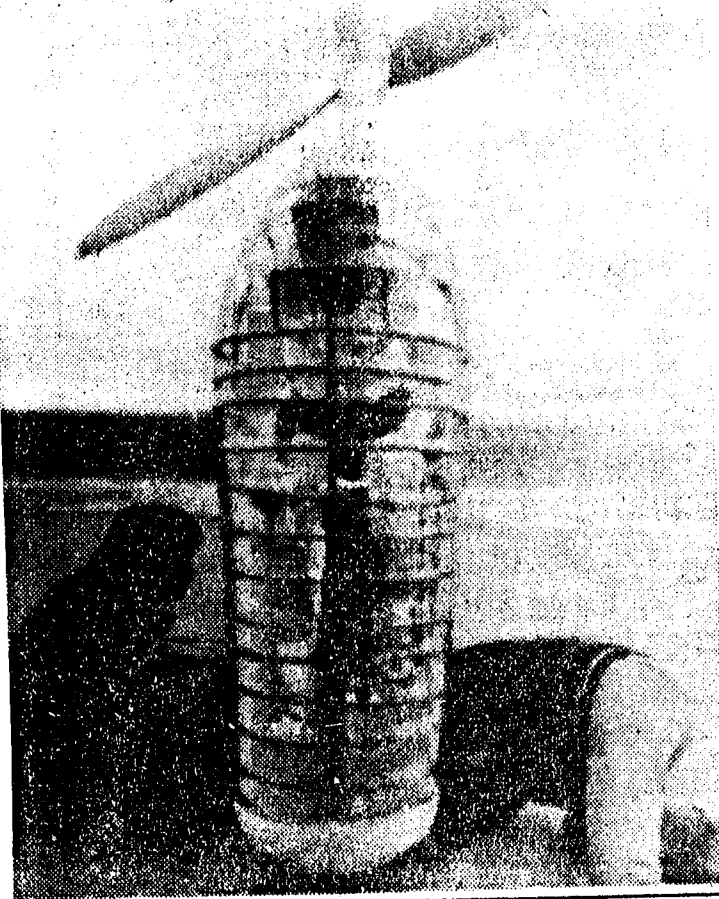

He said he asked Scudder by phone what he had said about the kidnaping, but that Scudder replied after a long pause, "cute, Frank, real cute," and then terminated the phone call.

Sortino said he never brought Scudder's comments up before because he couldn't prove them and he was concerned "about the hassle Scudder can cause."

Sortino also replied that he first told his story in December when he was interviewed by a district attorney's investigator.

Wesson concluded three days of testimony earlier Monday by stating that he never seriously thought about getting arrested, mostly because Scudder was a willing victim.

6 (Then 7) Carters To Share Mansion

By CHRISTOPHER BONNER
Knight News Wire

WASHINGTON — When Jimmy Carter takes over the White House he will bring along a lot of his family — at least six of them — and very soon, a seventh.

Living in the second and third floor private quarters of the executive mansion will be Carter, his wife, Rosalynn; daughter Amy; son Chip and his wife, Caron; son Jeff and his wife, Annette.

Adding to this clan will be Amy's two cats, a Siamese, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, and another, described as an alleycat, Sawl Shoes. There are no plans for a White House dog.

The prospective first family's staff hasn't figured out yet who is going to live where, but a family spokesman said there would be room for everyone.

The President and his wife, and probably Amy, will be situated in the spacious second floor private quarters, which include a living room, two sitting rooms, two bedrooms, kitchen and dining room in the west end of the mansion.

The third floor, which is rarely seen by outsiders, consists of a series of private rooms, one of which is now occupied by Jack Ford, the President's son. It could easily be remodeled into two apartments for the two younger Carter couples.

From his perch in the White House, son Chip, 26, will be in prime position for his new job, which will be playing "some active role for his father," Carter spokesman Ann Anderson said.

While her easygoing husband is assisting the President, possibly as a family emissary on overseas trips, Caron, 25, will be waiting to have her first baby, which is due in March.

Chip has about a semester to go before he receives a college degree as a political science major, but is putting off his studies for a while. Caron has a master's degree in education, and she was once a teacher of slow learners in Plains.

Jeff, 24, meanwhile, plans to attend George Washington University, eight blocks from the White House. He will be a junior majoring in urban geography.

Annette, 24, who has a bachelor's degree in home economics education, is looking for "some role in the life of the White House," Anderson said.

Amy, who is 9, will be a fourth grader at nearby Stevens Elementary School.

The President-elect's eldest son, Jack, 29, will remain in Calhoun, Ga., practicing law with his wife Judy's father.

Miss Lillian, Carter's sprightly 78-year-old mother, has indicated that she will often visit the White House, but will continue to live in Plains.

Privacy Act 'May Restrict' Probe On Welfare Cheats

SEATTLE (AP) — The president of the National Welfare Fraud Association said Monday that proposed recommendations of a federal commission on privacy could thwart investigations of welfare cheats.

"It would be impossible, just impossible, for us to function in our designated responsibility at the state level with these (proposed) federal restrictions," said Robert Neilson, head of the organization of about 600 state and local prosecutors and officials who investigate welfare fraud cases.

Neilson is also director of the Washington State Social and Health Services' Department office of investigation.

The proposed recommendations are contained in a draft study prepared by the Privacy Protection Study Commission, created by Congress in 1974 with passage of the Privacy Act. The final study is due to be submitted to Congress in six months.

The commission is charged with recommending ways to protect the privacy of individuals, especially in an era of computer technology which allows information to be kept indefinitely and recalled in moments.

Public hearings are scheduled this month in Washington, D.C., on the draft study. Neilson said a member of the welfare fraud association would testify at the portion of the hearings dealing with public assistance and social services.

He said one recommendation would virtually erase subpoena powers because it suggests "that when a record about an applicant or recipient is subpoenaed, the subject should be notified and given opportunity to contest the subpoena."

"It (subpoena) is of no value if we need the recipient's approval," said Neilson. He also said that under the commission's draft recommendations, a welfare recipient would be allowed to see any file — including an investigative report — pertaining to the recipient and would have to be contacted for permission before an investigator could see the file.

David Linowes, chairman of the study commission and a professor of politics and public policy at the University of Illinois at Urbana, said recommendations in the study are far from complete and that comments from any quarter are welcome.

SNARLED TAPE

Dear Trouble Shooter

I more or less "inherited" a dear 93-year-old man from my late aunt who had been his wife's best friend and tried to care for him after the wife's death. I try to visit him at least once a week in the Costa Mesa convalescent home where he now lives. I have no financial responsibility for him. I just try to see that he is comfortable and is properly taken care of.

This dear man is almost totally blind and very hard of hearing. His mind, however, is alert and active. Three months ago, somebody in the convalescent hospital stole his dentures. They had just been relined by a dentist under the state Denti-Cal program. Hospital personnel said they had tried unsuccessfully to locate the missing dentures. Here is where our problem began.

In order to obtain new dentures under this program, there are numerous forms to be filled out. We did the necessary paper work on Sept. 16. The dentist could not proceed with new dentures until he received authorization from a "screening authority." This we were told would take several months.

Meanwhile, this fine man has had to exist for almost four months on a bland diet. He has lost almost 30 pounds because he cannot chew any food.

To make matters even worse, on Dec. 6, a letter was sent by the state dental program to the convalescent home setting up a "screening" appointment. The letter was forwarded to me. It reached me at 4:30 p.m. on Dec. 15. The appointment had been set for earlier that morning.

I called the authorized dentist to explain what had happened and asked for another appointment. He told me the state requires the "paper work" to be done on the day of the appointment, whether the appointment was kept or not, and that we would have to start all over again. This means at least another three months' delay.

My old friend has now lost his will to live. He cannot see. He cannot hear. He cannot read or watch television. His only life's pleasure is being able to eat. Without his dentures, this is denied him.

Is there anything you can do to speed up a new appointment for him?

L. McC.

Santa Ana

The Trouble Shooter's not even going to try. Ma'am. By the time he managed to snip through the red tape involved in the state dental program, it might be too late.

One of the Trouble Shooter's anonymous "secret angels" has authorized your charge's dentist to make him some proper dentures pronto and to send him the bill.

What a great offer! You're bound to hear from a passel of interested teachers. Let's suggest that they give you a jingle at 536-4640 evenings, all right?

MESSAGE RECEIVED

Dear Trouble Shooter

I had an experience this holiday season which will stay with me the rest of my life. I recall going to one of the local stores with a friend of mine to do some of my Christmas shopping. As we entered the store, we heard the familiar ring of the Salvation Army. Thinking nothing of it, we continued on with our own business. After making my purchases, I went outside and waited for my friend to join me. Standing not more than five feet from the familiar ring I had heard before, I overheard a conversation which at that time aggravated me. An elderly lady walked up to the Salvation Army representative and dropped some change in her cup. The response from the receiver was very gracious with a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year" - but she also added, "If all the people who passed by me would just drop a dime in this cup, I wouldn't have to stand here ringing this bell." As she finished thanking the donor my thoughts went to the normal defense that we all use - "If I give to every charity that comes around, I'll be nicked and dimed to death and, besides, the Salvation Army just helps those at missions you see in the movies on television." After I had convinced myself I had done the right thing by passing that cup, I went home.

Last night I had a startling recollection of that day with the familiar ring of the bell. Because of a stroke which left my grandmother paralyzed on her left side, she lives in a convalescent home in Costa Mesa. Last night was the Christmas party at the home and relatives were invited to join the older folks to listen to carolers, talk to Santa and enjoy cookies. The joy on all the older folks faces was overwhelming as Santa handed out gifts to each and every one of them. As my mother held the gift from Santa, my grandmother excitedly ripped the package open with her good hand. It didn't take long for all that wrapping to come off to reveal what was inside. I couldn't believe my eyes - it was a plastic bag full of lotions, toothpaste and powder. But it wasn't what was inside that set me back. On the outside of that plastic bag was printed as big as life - "Salvation Army". All I could hear from that point on was "if all the people who passed by me would just drop a dime in this cup, I wouldn't have to stand here ringing this bell." My defense I had offered before didn't mean anything. The Salvation Army brought great joy into those older folks' lives that night, and I'll never pass that cup up again.

I can spare a dime to them, and I hope sharing my experience with you will help other people not to pass that familiar ringing bell. Someday I may be in the same position as my grandmother - for age avoids no one.

Thank you for letting me share my experience with you.

L.M.M.

Huntington Beach

And thank you for a beautiful letter. The message it carries rings as loud and clear as a Salvation Army bell!

HUMAN ERROR

Dear Trouble Shooter

Some time in early November, I put a down jacket on lay-away for my husband's Christmas present. I made regular payments on it. When I went to pick it up just before the holiday, I was informed they could not find the jacket and that they didn't have any more like it since they had had a sale on the jackets. They said all they could do was refund my money.

Is this legal? I thought that once I put the jacket on lay-away and made regular payments, the sale could not be cancelled. Do I have any rights in a situation like this?

T.J.

Stanton

The Trouble Shooter's no lawyer, Ma'am, so he's not qualified to render a legal opinion. However, he reckons that most judges would consider that human error falls under the law of averages and that the store's offer to refund your money exonerates it.

Record Year Cooking For OC Restaurateurs

By TIM SKROVE
Register Staff Writer

Orange Countians love to eat - away from home.

Sales in the county's restaurants, coffee shops and fast food businesses during the past 15 years have made the dining and beverage industry here the fastest growing in California - the state which leads the nation in food industry growth.

Analysts attribute the growth to affluence, population increases and "the lifestyle" enjoyed by Orange Countians, along with increased numbers of single persons and working wives.

Whatever the reasons, statistics from the state Board of Equalization show more than $557 million was spent in county eating places during 1975 alone. That's $331 for every man, woman and child living here.

And sales statistics for the first nine months of 1976 indicate that the food service industry is pushing toward another record year.

Compiling exact figures on the total volume of food service sales in Orange County, however, is difficult. Board of Equalization figures do not include food and drinks sold in hotels, retail stores and a number of other establishments and probably reflect only 65 to 68 per cent of the industry's total business.

That means the $486 million spent in county eating places during the first three quarters of 1976 is only a part of an estimated $714 million in food sales.

Going out to eat and drink is big business.

The National Restaurant Association (NRA) estimates Americans now spend one of every three food dollars eating away from home. And by 1980 that figure is expected to two out of five, the NRA predicts.

Bob Wisely, vice president of marketing for Carl's Jr. Restaurants, headquartered in Anaheim, said the growth of the restaurant industry in Orange County represents a "compatible profile" with population, industrial and commercial growth here.

"It would be unreasonable if the (food service) industry didn't follow the expansion of all sectors of the economy," he said.

Board of Equalization statistics show the county had 1,146 prepared food businesses (excluding the hotels, retail outlets and those listed as "others") with $79.8 million in sales in 1960. By 1975, there were 2,813 establishments with more than $557 million in business.

And during most of that 15-year period, Orange County growth has led the state in both sales and the number of eating places. Even with inflation, real growth in the food industry here in 1975 was double the national average, according to the Southern California Restaurant Association (SCRA).

Today, only Los Angeles County boasts more places to eat than Orange County. And statistics from the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) indicate the county ranks third behind Los Angeles and San Francisco in the number of dinner houses, where full menus and mixed drinks are served.

Anaheim had 77 dinner house-type restaurants as of April 1, while Newport Beach had 67 and Santa Ana 44.

But even with the industry's success, it's not without its problems.

Competition is intense.

To meet it, many dinner houses have adopted exotic names and decorate their establishments with relics, memorabilia and artifacts that create "themes" ranging from Merry Ol' England to the Spanish bull ring or the "Roaring Twenties."

Skyrocketing costs also have created a trend toward restaurant chains, which some say is making it increasingly difficult for the individual entrepreneur to break into the food service industry.

"The idea of a restaurant has become a total business," said Doug Rys, vice president of the Ancient Mariner-Rusty Pelican chain.

Douglas Salisbury, president of Jolly Roger Inc., said it cost his firm over $1 million just to "open the doors" of a new restaurant in Lake Forest.

A typical restaurant in the Carl's Jr. chain costs about $350,000 to open, Wisely reported.

Salisbury added the restaurant business is a "very intricate industry that takes expertise, skill, time and financial backing to provide service to the public. And it is getting tougher," he said.

But Talbot, executive director of the California Dining and Beverage Association (CDBA), headquartered in Orange, added it takes a "shrewd operator" to make money in the business these days, with small independent businessmen having to "marry their establishments" to make a profit.

Food service industry spokesmen agree that rising costs on all fronts coupled with government regulations and skyrocketing insurance premiums are cutting into business gains.

"Even with next year's sales expected to be up, the profit picture is very tight," said Bob Riley, of SCRA in Los Angeles.

Industry spokesmen said third-party liquor liability insurance has increased up to 800 per cent for some firms.

"And that is if you can get it at all," one spokesman said. Such insurance has increased dramatically since courts started awarding large monetary settlements in accident cases involving drinking drivers. The CDBA plans to introduce legislation this month that would set limits on third-party liquor liability settlements.

Also, the industry, which has traditionally paid low wages in lieu of tips, was hit with a 25 per cent increase in wages last October when the state industrial welfare commission raised the minimum wage to $2.50 per hour.

Industry spokesmen say they have had to pass those increases on to the consumer either in higher prices - between 4 and 11 per cent - or by reducing the number of employees, which means skimpier service.

And service, along with food and atmosphere, is one of the key selling points of any eating establishment - perhaps even more important than price, Riley said.

Even with recent price increases, industry spokesmen said they haven't noticed a reduction in clientele.

In fact, the food service industry seems somewhat immune to most economic fluctuations, with statistics showing that the industry continued to grow statewide during the recession of 1973-75.

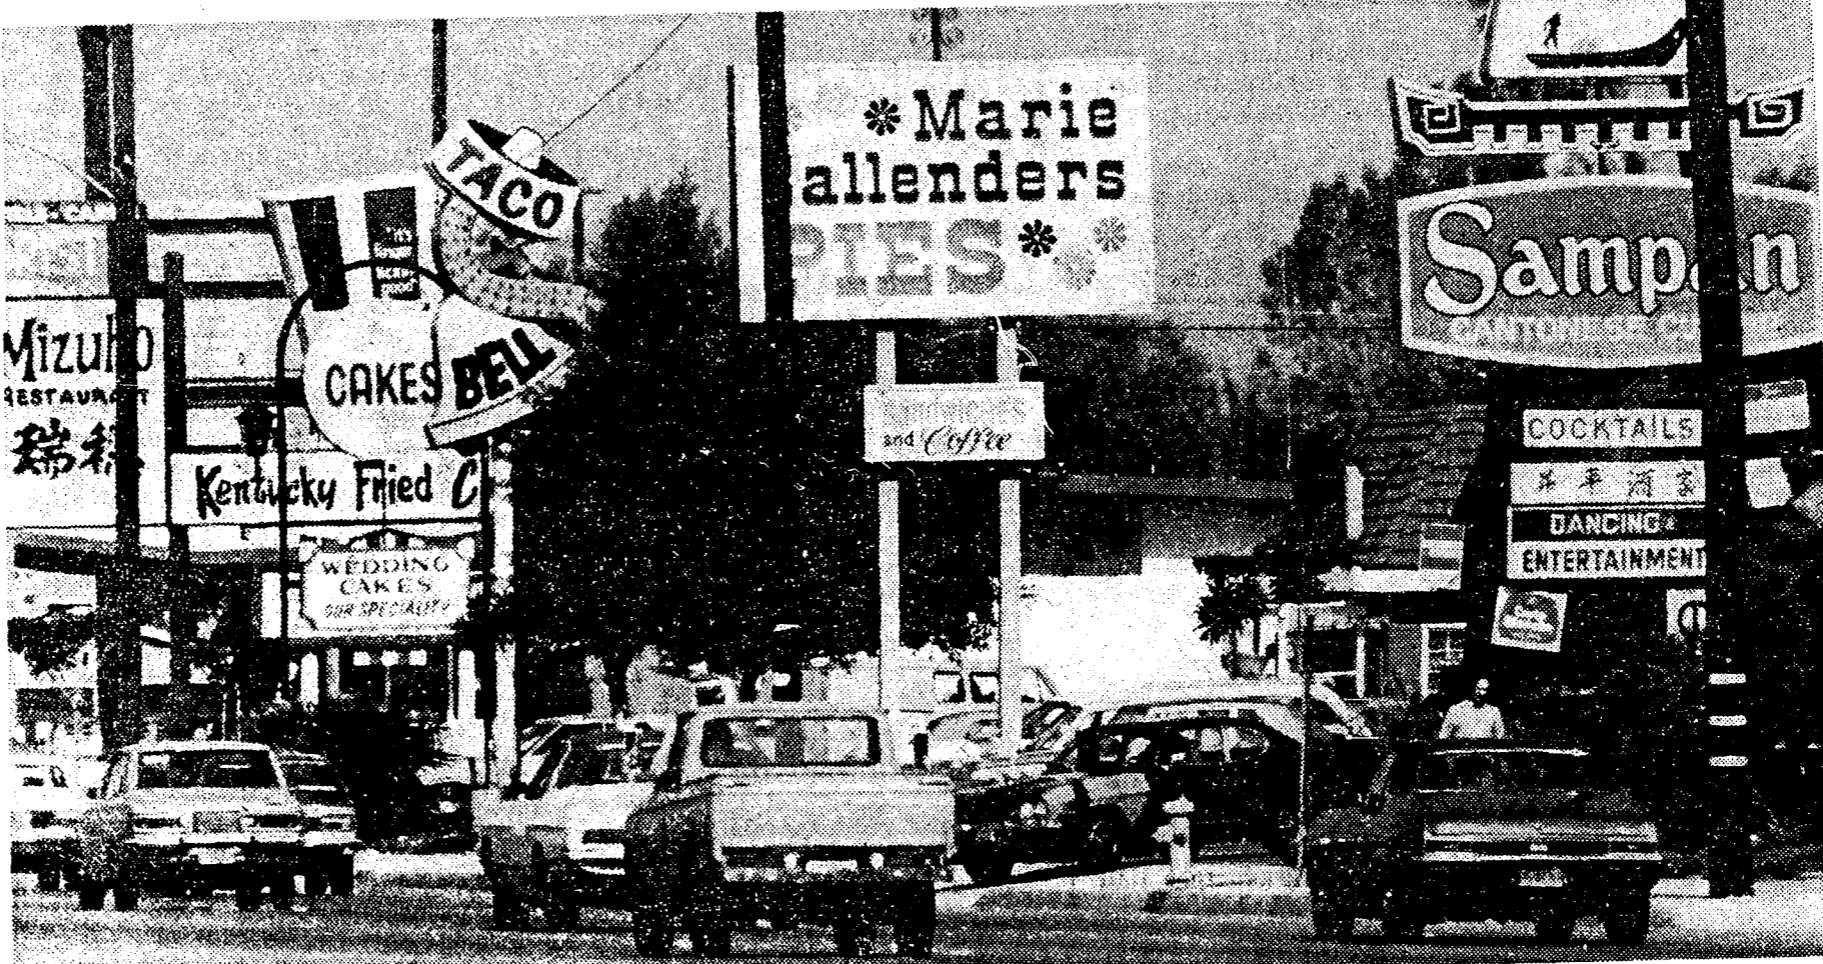

Salisbury said Jolly Roger Inc. even saw an additional increase in customers during the economic slump - probably captured from more expensive dinner houses.

"People are in the habit of eating out three times a week, and they don't like to change," he said.

United California Bank's economic forecast for next year predicts continued economic growth, more jobs and a higher median family income.

The county's population also is expected to increase by 59,000, which probably means more individuals will live the "lifestyle" that caters to eating away from home.

"Orange County is the best place in the country to get a restaurant," said Talbot of the CDBA, "and people are applying for licenses in droves."

Dial-A-Ride Expansion Plans Ordered

By CHARLES ROBERTS

Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA - In the wake of last week's court ruling on dial-a-ride, Orange County Transit District directors Monday asked their staff to begin work on plans to restart the program in Orange.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal decision reversed an earlier Superior Court ruling that could not expand dial-a-ride without paying privately owned taxi firms for the privilege.

But OCTD general manager Edward Loritz warned that, despite the project being the staff's top priority item, it may be months before there is action.

Loritz said the study will involve a complete re-evaluation of dial-a-ride in light of recent developments.

He had reference to the appellate court's ruling and to an agreement reached last month between OCTD and Yellow Cab of Northern Orange County, one of the taxi companies that brought the suit.

The agreement calls for Yellow Cab to operate a dial-

a-ride system in Fullerton, beginning Feb. 7, using a mixture of taxis and transit district-provided vehicles.

Loritz said that the contract with Yellow Cab is the most economical approach to operating dial-a-ride and future dial-a-ride systems also might be operated by taxi companies.

Prior to the Yellow Cab agreement, OCTD contracted with two transit management firms to operate dial-a-ride systems in La Habra, Brea and Orange.

Yellow Cab brought the lawsuit out of fear that OCTD would continue expansion of dial-a-ride without either compensating the taxis for the lost revenue or paying them to operate the systems.

The Orange system was suspended last spring after OCTD lost the lawsuit brought by Yellow Cab. A Superior Court judge ordered the transit district either to cease competing with the taxi firms or buy them out.

OCTD paid Yellow Cab $4,000 to begin dial-a-ride in Brea and agreed to pay $6,000 for rights to operate in La

Habra if the transit district lost its appeal, which it did not.

Since dial-a-ride was suspended in Orange, OCTD has used a management firm to operate its "Easy Rider" - an intra-city loop system - in that city because the cost of buying out Yellow Cab there was considered "prohibitive."

Easy Rider is not an "on-demand" system but a fixed-route and schedule operation that is not considered direct competition with taxis.

But transit district directors have said they are dissatisfied with the number of riders using "Easy Rider" in Orange, as well as in Buena Park and Westminster which also began "Easy Rider" rather than dial-a-ride because of the Superior Court order.

Until Yellow Cab won in Superior Court in late 1975, OCTD had plans for dial-a-ride systems in cities all around the county.

Director William Farris, an Orange attorney, made the request for resumption of dial-a-ride in Orange. He was unhappy with seeing "Easy Rider" passenger figures.

Director Robin Young, La Habra mayor, said she "heartily agreed."

Loritz said one of the considerations in the dial-a-ride study will be the number of buses available should OCTD expand its current three-vehicle dial-a-lift program to a countywide system.

Dial-a-lift is a telephone summoned vehicle fitted with a special lift for transporting persons confined to wheelchairs.

Loritz said he expects to have a plan ready within 30 days as to how OCTD could expand dial-a-lift to southern Orange County. He said vehicles could be drawn from those that might otherwise be used for dial-a-ride.

Before dial-a-ride was suspended in Orange, it was using 19 mini-buses, Loritz said. Easy Rider in Orange uses 30-35 mini-buses, he said.

SUPERVISORS SWORN IN

Riley Expected To Head OC Board

By SANDI MOSLEY

Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA - Ralph Diedrich, sworn in Monday for his second four-year term, said he will not seek appointment for a third year as chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

Thomas Riley, supervisor from the fifth district (south county area), was expected to be named today by fellow supervisors to take over as chairman of the board.

Riley, a Newport Beach resident, said Monday he has sought the post "because I think the people of the fifth district want their supervisor to be chairman." A poll of supervisors Monday indicated he had enough votes to win the job.

Selection of a new chairman is one of the first official acts of each new year by the supervisors.

Every other year, it is preceded by one day the swearing-in of newly elected supervisors.

Philip Anthony, former Westminster mayor who was elected supervisor for the central county area (first district) in November, and Fullerton's Diedrich, who won an unchallenged second term in June, Monday were sworn in to office in separate ceremonies.

Riley, who also won election to office in June, was not sworn in, according to his staff, because he was elected to continue filling the unexpired term of the late Ronald Caspers. He was sworn in after being appointed in September 1974 to the term that runs through 1978.

Diedrich, breaking with tradition, was sworn in Monday by Mrs. Mary Quandt, a 33-year resident of Brea named as the city's Woman of the Year in 1976 by the chamber of commerce.

Anthony, who took a similar oath in November when he assumed the unexpired term of convicted supervisor Robert Battin for two months, took it again Monday from Ray Rhoads, Diedrich's chief aide who emceed the inaugural, said the supervisor wanted "someone representative of the community" to administer his oath of office.

Mrs. Quandt, a widow and a former Fullerton school teacher, also is immediate past president of the Brea Women's Club and, as one city official said, "she keeps us on our toes."

Anthony, who took a similar oath in November when he assumed the unexpired term of convicted supervisor Robert Battin for two months, took it again Monday from

MacDOUGALL HEADS O.C. PLANNING COMMISSION

SANTA ANA - William R. MacDougall, the appointee of fifth-district Supervisor Thomas Riley, was unanimously elected chairman of the county planning commission Monday.

MacDougall's victory was assured when he was nominated by Peggy Cranston, the appointee of third district Supervisor Ralph Diedrich. Mrs. Cranston, the only other person considered a candidate for the chairman's post, was then unanimously elected vice-chairman.

MacDougall, a Newport Beach attorney, was appointed to the panel last June.

He succeeds Earl Wooden as chairman. Wooden announced last week that demands of his job as a painter's union official would prevent him from seeking re-election.

Orange District Eyes School Bond

ORANGE — Year-round classes and a school construction bond election will be considered as possible alternatives to a proposed home builder surcharge of up to $3,400 for each new student by school trustees at 7:30 p.m. here Thursday.

The Orange Unified School District board scheduled a hearing to obtain public opinion on proposed changes in the student-home building fee plan, said Supt. Donald Ingwerson.

The meeting will be held at district headquarters, 370 N. Glassell. The board will consider final adoption of the building-fee at its Jan. 20 meeting.

Ingwerson said the board hopes to come up with a solution for "providing adequate classrooms for the increasing number of new students moving into the district."

Currently, enrollment is at a record high of 31,106 students. It is expected to climb to 33,269 by 1982 — a seven per cent hike.

The special student surcharge for each new home built in the eastern and north-eastern portion of the district was proposed last month by Taxpayers Against Crowded Schools (TACS).

The committee wants the district to ask the cities of Orange, Villa Park and Anaheim to require home builders to pay a per-student surcharge tax to the school district as part of the approval of an environmental impact statement.

Pioneer Minister Dead; Rites Today

COSTA MESA — Funeral services for the Rev. Greenleaf St., Whittier, with interment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Cypress.

Rev. Bazan was born Dec.

22, 1900, in Mexico, and died Dec. 31 at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital. He resided most of his life in the United States.

Survivors include his widow, Nellie; seven children; 48 grandchildren; eight great grandchildren; two brothers and two sisters.

A minister for the past 56 years, Rev. Bazan pioneered churches in the United States — mostly in Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

He served as superintendent of the Spanish Assemblies of God for 19 years, an organization which grew to include 600 congregations and 800 ministers in the United States. Rev. Bazan recently attended the 50th anniversary of a church he founded in Houston, Texas.

GARDEN GROVE — Funeral services have been held for Teresa Cecilia (Tracey) Houlihan, 76, who died Friday after a lengthy illness.

A mass was celebrated Monday at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Westminster, and burial was at the Good Shepherd Cemetery, Huntington Beach.

Mrs. Houlihan, 9062 Central Ave., is survived by her widower, John; a daughter, Rose Kathleen Douragian, Stockton; two sons, Maurice, Garden Grove, and Jackie, Huntington Beach; 13 grandchildren, three great grandchildren, and two sisters, Ann Noonan, Orange, and Barbara Keith, Glendale.

Stanton's Bid To Stop Park Buy Advances

SANTA ANA — Superior Court Judge William Murray Monday set Jan. 19 as the hearing date on the city of Stanton's latest attempt to block the purchase of park land in Orange.

Stanton wants to block the purchase to reserve the money for park land acquisition and development in western Orange County which it claims has been neglected.

The city failed in its attempt Dec. 30 to obtain a temporary halt in the county's planned purchase and filed new papers Monday.

At issue is the board of supervisors' Nov. 10 action to buy 30 acres bounded by Hewes Street, Bond Avenue and Santiago Boulevard.

Stanton claims in its suit that a new environmental impact report is needed before the purchase can be made because the original report was based on the planned development of all 68 acres of the parcel for park land.

According to the suit, since 38 acres will remain available for development, the project is sufficiently altered that the city should have a new opportunity to present evidence of adverse environmental impact.

The property is owned by Warrington Development Co. Supervisors exercised an option that expired Jan. 1 approving the purchase.

Police Probe Burglary In SC

SAN CLEMENTE — Police here are investigating a burglary which they say cost a resident at least $50,000 in lost property.

William Barton, 717 Avenida Colombo, told police Saturday that burglars had pried open a window while he was away for a few days and had taken television monitors and playback equipment, a fur coat, guns, jewelry, and cash.

There is a real blunder in the play of today's hand. A real blunder, but of the sort that almost everyone makes.

South won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, led the six of hearts and finessed his queen. The finesse worked, but West dropped the jack. Now South couldn't lay down his ace and concede one trump trick. He had to lead a low heart to dummy's 10.

East took his king and led out the ace-king of spades.

South ruffed the second spade, entered dummy with the queen of diamonds, led the eight of hearts and let it ride after East played low. Now he tried to get back to his hand with a diamond, but East ruffed for the third defensive trick. South still had to lose a club and his contract.

Do you see where South made his blunder?

It was at trick two. He led the six of hearts from dummy. If he had led the eight when it came time to play that third trump from dummy he would have been leading the six. Then he could overtake with his seven, pluck East's last trump and chalk up the game.

Ask the Jacobys

A Mississippi reader asks what happens when the first defender fails to follow to the suit led by declarer, but discovers the error after dummy and the other defender have followed to the trick.

The answer is that the player announces, "I could have followed suit." Declarer may now demand that the offender play her highest or lowest card and then change the card played from dummy if he so desires. As for the other opponent, his card remains as played.

Kaiser Aetna Sues Brea Over Redevelopment Plan

SANTA ANA — In an action that could demolish Brea's redevelopment plan, the Kaiser Aetna Corp. has sued the city to remove its land from the plan and free it for construction of a housing project.

Kaiser claims in the suit, filed here in Superior Court, that the city is attempting to help the Brea-Olinda Unified School District obtain the 47-acre parcel for a school site.

In so doing, the suit alleges, the city claimed the land was "blighted," but failed to provide proof of that in its rush to enact the redevelopment plan in time to have it become effective Jan. 1 and escape changes in state law affecting redevelopment.

The suit claims that Kaiser, doing business as Ponderosa Homes, obtained approval in September 1972 for a phased construction of a planned community on a 283-acre parcel.

That project, known as Country Hills, is complete except for the final phase involving 47 acres.

According to the lawsuit, construction of that final phase is now in limbo because the land is designated as a future high school site.

The existing high school is located across from a new shopping mall making the land on which it sits very valuable as commercial property.

The suit alleges that the school district wants to sell the old school site and relocate it to the Kaiser property.

But, the school district has seven years — the life of the redevelopment project — in which to decide to buy Kaiser's land and make the move.

According to Kaiser's attorney, Marlene Fox, her client is willing to sell to the school district but, it is not willing to wait up to seven years to learn if and when the sale will be made.

Pills Might Kill More Than Her Pain

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother always has something the matter with her. It's either a "splitting headache," "dizzy spells," or eating something that didn't "agree" with her.

She eats "pain-killers" like you wouldn't believe. If the directions say to take two, she takes four. She buys every kind she can get without a prescription. I've tried to tell her this is dangerous, but she won't listen to me.

She reads your column faithfully and thinks you know everything, so maybe you can straighten her out.

I'm not exaggerating, and I'm not a child. I'm a 30-year-old married woman who loves her mother and is worried sick about her.

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Tell your mother that Abby said a "pain" is Nature's signal that something is wrong. And to kill the pain and ignore the warning instead of seeing a physician is not only foolish, it could be fatal.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to someone's home for dinner, and when I arrived, the stereo was blaring loudly. All during dinner and even afterward when we were talking, the stereo was turned up so high I could scarcely hear anything else, and I had to practically shout to be heard.

Needless to say, I didn't enjoy the evening. In fact, when I left I had a headache.

Don't people realize how rude it is to have a stereo turned on so loud that it's impossible to carry on a normal conversation? I hope you print this.

PAT FROM PARKLAND

DEAR PAT: I'll print it for: those who aren't aware that loud stereo music is often more irritating than entertaining, plus those who timidly tolerate it rather than ask their host (or hostess) to please turn it down—a reasonable request.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a grown man who cheats at cards, and when confronted, throws the cards up in the air, runs to his room and broods for the rest of the evening?

Abby, this man has a Ph. D. in nuclear physics and holds a $40,000-a-year job.

We have been playing bridge regularly for over three years. This past weekend when I caught him cheating, I confronted him and asked for a re-deal. He literally threw a tantrum. We're not speaking now as a result of all this.

Should I have kept my mouth shut, or was I justified in letting him know I was on to his sleight-of-hand trick?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You should not have kept your mouth shut. But had you waited to tell him privately instead of humiliating him before the others, you could have avoided an ugly scene.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Romance Blooms In Portland Dialysis Ward

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The clinical silence of a kidney dialysis ward isn't the world's most romantic place, but when you spend 24 hours a week there you get to know the people in it pretty well.

Mike Leite and Robin Perry know. Both have been on the dialysis program since early in 1974.

She was on the morning shift, and got off the life-saving machine at noon. He came on at 1 p.m. for his treatment.

Then one day she ran late and he arrived early, and they met.

Last week, they announced their engagement.

The machines act as artificial kidneys and clean blood for persons whose kidneys have failed. "This nurse at the hospital was always trying to set me up with people," said Mike, 26, an administrative trainee at the U.S. Veterans Administration Hospital in Portland.

"One day she stuck a piece of paper with Robin's phonenummer in my pocket, and I gave her a call." Last Valentine's Day, they went out for the first time.

George Wann of the Kidney Association of Oregon said there are few if any other dialysis patients married to each other.

"But there's no reason why they shouldn't be," he said.

Mike and Robin say they are in a better position to understand each others' problems because they both have to go through the process three times a week at Portland's Good Samaritan Hospital.

"If one of us feels bad after a run (a stint on the dialysis machine) the other can understand it better," Mike said. "We can relate to each other better."

Except for hospital personnel, he said, few understand the problems of kidney patients.

They plan a week's honeymoon in Hawaii after their Sept. 10, 1977, wedding, but will have to make arrangements to get the thrice-weekly treatments while they are there.

The treatments cost $23,000 a year each. Medicare pays for most of it. The rest is paid for by insurance and by the KAO, which operates on contributions.

KAO spokesman George Wann says it is much cheaper to support a home dialysis program for a patient, but that each must have a helper to be in attendance throughout the six to eight hour procedure.

If the couple helped each other alternate nights, it would take up six nights a week, leaving little time for anything else, Wann said.

Leite, who jogs regularly, says kidney patients can do almost anything other people can. "We might not be as strong as someone else," he said.

His body rejected transplanted kidneys on two separate tries, and he says he doubts if he'll try again. "I spit out a kidney pretty fast," he said.

Robin, 22, has never tried it and says she doesn't plan to. Since his condition is hereditary, they say they probably will adopt children.

Toilet Watcher Finds A Way To Save Water

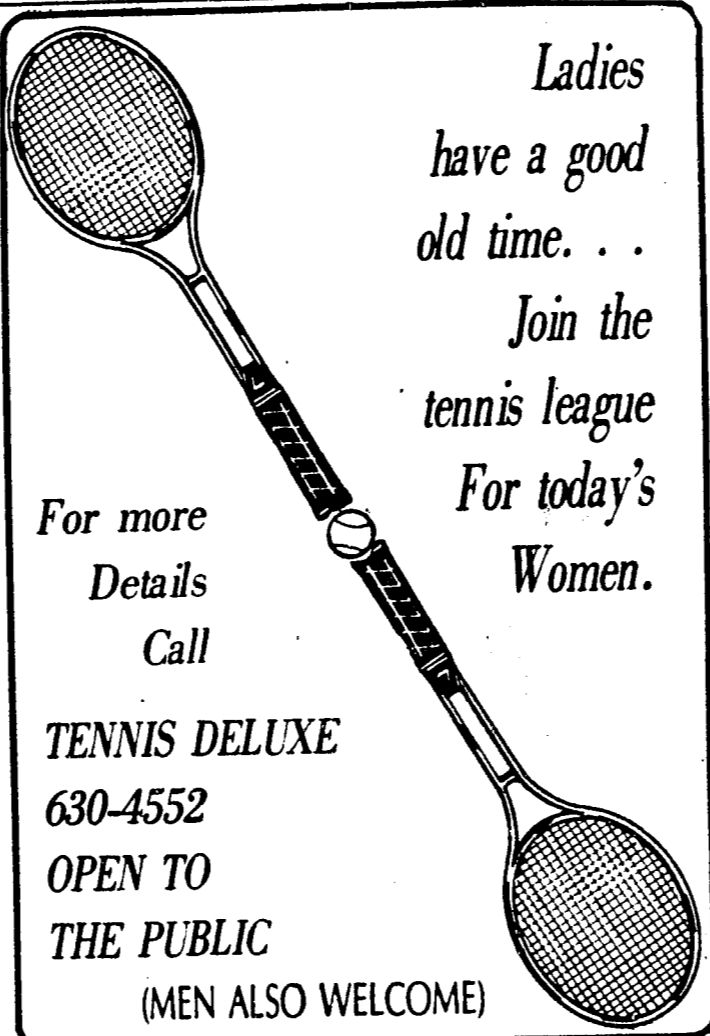

NORTH SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Nicholas Ludovici has spent the past year looking in the backs of toilets. And now he thinks he's found what he's been looking for.

Ludovici has filed for a patent on a device that can be put in the back of toilets and which he claims can save two gallons of water every time a toilet is flushed — a saving of about 40 per cent.

The impact of such a saving could amount to billions of gallons of water each year and could dramatically lessen pressure on the country's water resources, he said.

Ludovici, 50, said the device is made of a rubberized compound and forms a protective collar around the outlet of the toilet, creating a small dam that prevents some of the water from disappearing.

your horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 5

Your birthday today: Brings you into collision course with destiny, with many events of dramatic quality all year. You must choose time and again between long-established habit and a future that breaks off from the past. Relationships are delicately balanced, occasionally tense. Today's natives include many students of occult and mystical subjects, fewer businesspeople. Those born this year will develop profound wisdom, objectivity, but need much encouragement while very young.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Somebody you depend on drops the ball, so you work harder than usual. What you relinquish now is gone forever. Let it be choice, not negligence.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Mechanical gear needs careful checking, use, especially if related to travel. Arguments tend to get out of hand. Look for a surprise at home.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Avoid meddling or speculating in unfamiliar materials. Today's written word will stand but verbal agreements are a problem from the outset.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: What seems rational to you doesn't to others. Your insistence, backed by hard work, will prevail but right now nobody is going to bat for you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Don't pass the buck; sign nothing unless you're sure details are correct. Some old conveniences end, your challenge is to develop some- thing better.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Note where time, money, energy come from. If it's mainly yours, redo matters to serve your interests best. Don't try to change anyone's mind.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Since you can't please everybody, please yourself. Quietly achieve a long-desired, personal goal. Life at home is full of important observations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You're on your own in dealing with officials, do better if you can put it off till tomorrow. Bad advice comes from the most plausible sources.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Comparisons are made as your eye is caught by others' resources. Don't let this draw you into plans beyond your means. Travel with caution.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your knack for organizing details now causes disturbance. At work, speak plainly. At home, listen before making judgments, corrective action.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Unsuspected factors affect almost all enterprises. You have plenty to do to find out what's happening. Keep it from creating misunderstandings.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your opinions are right on the surface. Let friends know you care what they do, but don't criticize petty faults, errors. Keep travel to minimum.

MEMBER OF $2 BILLION GOLDEN WEST FINANCIAL CORPORATION

LA Candidate Wants Vote On Redevelopment

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state senator who wants to be mayor of Los Angeles reintroduced legislation Monday aimed at allowing voters to throw out the Los Angeles downtown redevelopment plan.

At the same time, Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, denied

he was unethical in his actions on redevelopment legislation last September.

Mayor Tom Bradley made the accusation at a Los Angeles news conference earlier Monday, when he announced he would be on the April 5 primary ballot for reelection.

Robbins countered with an accusation that Bradley has been "stuffing his pockets" with some $200,000 in campaign contributions from owners of high-rise buildings in the redevelopment zone.

Robbins said the redevelopment plan is a subsidy by which $75 million a year in taxes goes to redevelopment instead of schools, and the suburbs have to make up the difference.

Another redevelopment bill, by Assemblyman Joseph Montoya, D-La Puente, has been proposed again. It was the subject of bitterness last September between Montoya and Robbins as the latter sought to include a retroactive provision for a referendum on the Los Angeles plan.

The Senate, where Robbins made his effort in the waning moments of the session, refused to pass an amendment fixing a typographical error.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. cited the error — petition signatures of one per cent instead of 10 per cent of those who voted in the last mayoralty election — when he vetoed the bill.

Montoya's bill, which is not retroactive, is proposed again with the 10 per cent provision, said Montoya aide Jerry Asher.

It affects cities and counties over 500,000 in population, Asher said, and provides 90 days to collect signatures instead of the current 30-day limit.

Among cities, only Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and San Jose have populations over 500,000. There are 10 counties — Los Angeles, Alameda, Contra Costa, Orange, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Mateo and Santa Clara.

These cities and counties would have 90-day petition requirements for signatures of 10 per cent of voters who cast ballots in the last citywide or countywide election, unless they have different percentages in city or county codes, Asher said.

Smaller cities are covered in existing laws that allow 30 days to collect signatures.

Any major revision of a previously adopted redevelopment plan would be subject to the referendum provisions, Asher said.

Robbins' bill would be retroactive to Aug. 4, 1975, and require that each redevelopment plan with market value of more than $500 million would be subject to referendum. Although aimed at Los Angeles, Robbins said it was conceivable that plans in larger cities could make the $500 million plateau.

He said that the Los Angeles city council had given tax breaks to owners of Arco Towers, the Times-Mirror Building, the Hyatt Regency Hotel and other high-rise buildings in the redevelopment zone.

But he acknowledged to a reporter's question that they were not paying less in taxes, just that less of it goes toward support of city schools and services which means a tax increase in suburbs.

Asked to elaborate on his statement that Bradley was "stuffing his pockets," Robbins said that a January 1976 fund-raising dinner brought him $150,000 and the president of ARCO was a dinner chairman.

Mother, 3 Children Found Asphyxiated

LOVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Neighbors described Betty Lee Tracy as a woman overwhelmed by her troubles.

Those troubles — particularly over the breakup of her marriage two years ago — came to a head this past weekend. The 32-year-old mother and her three children were found asphyxiated in the closed garage of their home Sunday.

Found with Mrs. Tracy were her daughters Teresa, 11, and Patty, 9, and her son Curtis, 6.

"She was an awfully good person, but I guess she had enough," said Jean Young, who lived nearby.

The four were found in the family car. Mrs. Tracy's will was on the dashboard and a suicide note was found on the kitchen table, according to Miami Township Police Chief Harry Snyder.

Dr. Nick Capurro, county coroner, ruled the deaths a triple murder and a suicide. Snyder said Mrs. Tracy's suicide note accused her ex-husband, Patrick Tracy, of not spending enough time with his children. It indicated Mrs. Tracy did not want the youngsters to be hurt further, Snyder said.

People are losing interest in Southern California.*

If you were faced with a sudden need for a substantial amount of cash, what would you do? Dip into your hard-won savings account? Borrow money at today's interest rates? Either way, you'd lose interest. But if you had your savings in an account at Mutual Savings, you'd have another choice.

The 1% Account Loan.

Savers who have certificate accounts with Mutual Savings can borrow up to 90% of their savings account balance. The interest charge is 1% per year more than the interest their account is earning.

We look on these savings account loans as "just-in-case" loans. Having them available means you can put your savings in a certificate of deposit that pays considerably higher interest than a passbook account. For instance, a six-year, $1000 minimum, certificate account pays 8.06% interest per annum when 7.75% is compounded daily. And your account, like all Mutual Savings accounts, is insured to $40,000 by an agency of the federal government with returns guaranteed. If you do need cash, account loans are easily arranged because your account is the security for the loan. The account remains intact, earning full interest, and you avoid the penalties for early withdrawal of funds required by law.

Compare before you choose.

Our 1% loan proves that all savings institutions are not alike. Call a few of the others and ask them about 1% loans. Then bring your passbook to any of our 16 offices in Southern California and a Savings Counselor will arrange the transfer of funds to your new high-interest account.

Devil At It Again In New Series

NEW YORK - Producer Don Kirshner first launched the British rock group, The Monkees, on television. He hopes to have the same success with a group called Top. Comprised of three musically talented performers - Paul Shaffer, Judith Cohen and Greg Evigan - they are featured in the new Kirshner-Norman Lear comedy musical series, "A Year At The Top," which premieres Wednesday, Jan. 19.

The series, drawn from the Faust legend, stars Vivian Blaine, Robert Alda, Phil Leeds and Mickey Rooney, as four aging vaudevillians who have had minimal success so they're easy prey for an emissary of the devil who offers them "a year at the top" and youth in exchange of their souls. The emissary is the devil's daughter, played by Kelly Bishop, of "A Chorus Line" fame.

Kirshner says that Rooney is the one skeptic who becomes the group's manager. When they're granted their wish Vivian Blaine turns into Judith Cohen, Robert Alda into Greg Evigan and Phil Leeds into Paul Shaffer.

Kirshner's "Rock Concert," which follows "Saturday Night Live" on NBC, proved there was a market for rock music on television. In "A Year At The Top," was written by Howard Greenfield ("Love Will Keep Us Together") and Paul Shaffer. "The market is ready for original music introduced on television," said Kirshner, a man whose name is synonymous with rock music. As a music publisher and record producer he has helped launch the careers of a host of stars including Neil Sedaka, Carole King, Olivia Newton-John, David Gates, Bobby Darin and Tony Orlando.

His confidence is not only placed in audience readiness but also the musical skills of the three performers who'll make up Top. "They're not to be compared to The Monkees," he insists. "They're musically far ahead and much more talented. Both he and Lear, who'll act as executive producer of the series, believe the group will spin off into records and albums. The TV series will just be the beginning.

Jack Klugman

Klugman's Quincy Wins Weekly Spot With NBC

Next month "Quincy" will become a regular weekly television series on NBC. The move is a tribute to Jack Klugman, whose performance in the title role has been one of the ornaments of the season so far.

Klugman won two Emmy Awards while playing sports-writer Oscar Madison on "The Odd Couple" series for five years. He has moved with admirable authority and seemingly effortless assurance from that situation comedy into the crime drama of "Quincy."

Quincy has not one, but two bosses like this. One is Dr. Astin, his superior in the medical examiner's office. Played with maddening primness by John S. Ragin, Astin is a prig, so prissy and obnoxious that it is hard to see how Quincy can work with him all day without trying to break his face.

Garry Walberg is less aggravating in the role of Lt. Monahan, the policeman who always seems to be handling Quincy's cases.

Quincy (like Columbo, his first name is never mentioned) is a medical examiner in Los Angeles. He lives on a boat, which always seems in need of repair, during the rare interludes when violent death is not occurring on shore.

New Game Piloted By Geoff Edwards

NEW YORK - NBC's Studio 6 in Rockefeller Center was bustling with excitement the other afternoon. It was all happening at the taping sessions for the new game show, "Shoot for the Stars," which premiered Monday.

Executive producer Bob Stewart (in his usual casual attire, sneakers and all) and producer Bruce Burmester were scuttling about setting up scenes; talent coordinator Edith Chan was brushing up cues with the contestants; director Mike Gargiulo was busy in the control room, and guest celebrities Soupy Sales and Anne Meara were hobnobbing with host Geoff (pronounced Jeff) Edwards.

Even the stagehands were excited. "Oh, I know the answer to that question," one member of the crew was overheard saying to his partner. "Oh, that's easy," said the other. "It's Goldfinger."

"That's the secret of a successful game show," said Edwards during a break in his dressing room. "When the audience in the studio and at home (stagehands included) play the game along with the contestants, you know you're doing something right, and you'll probably have a bit."

"The idea behind making a game series work is not to take it too seriously. Then the audience has fun, too. And, speaking of audiences, those here in New York are far better than they are in California. I don't know what it is, but they're always more alert and alive in the Big Apple. They have so much enthusiasm."

"Shoot for the Stars" is a rather simple game to play, according to the game show host. It's a word-association series in which two teams compete against each other to win a game worth $1,500 and the opportunity to try for the jackpot, which is started at $1,000 and increases $500 each time it is not won. A contestant can win up to $25,000.

Entebbe Exploit Still Exploited

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — 'Tis the season for Entebbe movies. One has already been on ABC-TV, another is airing Jan. 9 on NBC. Now, a third film about the Israelis' daring rescue of a plane-load of hostages in Uganda is being made in Israel.

Menaheem Golan, co-producer of that one, which will be released theatrically, called me from Israel with the latest report. His film, "Entebbe: Operation Thunderbolt," has no stars. (The others are all star-studded). "The Entebbe operation is not a Hollywood story," Golan says. "Having stars in it destroys the illusion."

But Golan did ask Uganda's Idi Amin to play himself in the film. Amin has not responded to the offer. Golan, however, has Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin playing himself, and other Israeli officials will do likewise.

He says he has uncovered a few previously undisclosed facts about the incident. One widely publicized feature of the raid was the use of a black Mercedes — supposedly a duplicate of Amin's car — to fool the defenders.

"We found out," Golan says, "that the black Mercedes was a mistake. Amin had actually sold his car a few weeks before and, at the time of the raid, actually was driving a Rolls. So the ruse didn't fool the defenders. The only way they survived was through fast driving. The surprise element was gone."

At first, Golan wanted to use as many of the real hostages as he could. He found 16 who expressed willingness to play themselves.

"We used them for a few days," he says. "But when we got to the Entebbe building — we built an exact duplicate, based on the plans of the engineers who actually had built Entebbe Airport — they started to cry. They couldn't go through it all again."

Ricardo Montalban is symptomatic of the change in TV in Hollywood.

"I used to make a good living out of being a TV guest star," he says. "I'd make six or seven guest appearances a year, at $10,000 or so each, and that was comfortable. Maybe not in Steve McQueen's class, but comfortable."

"Today, those six or seven guest appearances might net me, if I was lucky, $12,000 to $15,000 total. That's how much salaries have gone down. So I can't afford to make my living that way."

Instead, he does a lot of stage work (the pay not be much, but it is constant), movie roles and, like many in Hollywood, keeps looking for a series of his own.

At the moment, he's excited about two projects. He did a movie-for-TV called "Fantasy Island," which has series possibilities. It's about a man who runs a resort where he charges $50,000 for three days — but, for that money, he'll make your fantasies come true.

The second is a part he's doing on Executive Suite. He was originally supposed to be killed off after four weeks, romancing Sharon Acker along the way, but now the producers have indicated that his death may be postponed. They are thinking of having the character stick around.

GOOD YEAR AT D-LAND

ANAHEIM — Disneyland, now a ripe 21 years old, posted record revenues during the Bicentennial Year just concluded, according to Walt Disney Productions Annual Report.

However, attendance at Disneyland during 1976 was shy of the all-time record set in 1970.

Still, the park welcomes on June 22 its 150 millionth guest just about five years after the 100 millionth guest entered Disneyland on June 17, 1971.

Revenues during the year increased 10.2 per cent to a record total of $120.2 million, according to the report.

The attendance during fiscal year 1976 came to 10,211,000 or 1.5 per cent ahead of the prior year but just shy of the all-time record set in 1970.

Disneyland's out-of-state attendance increased by 5 per cent.

LOSER BECOMES WINNER — This is a scene from film, "Rocky." Judging by the overwhelming response to the $860,000 film, the trade is calling it Sleeper of the Year. Movie stars little known Sylvester

Stallone, second from left, and is the story of a boxer. Next to Stallone, at right, is Carl Weathers, who stars as the current world champ in the movie.

Strange Mesh Of Talents

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — There were snickers all the way from Burbank to Malibu when Steve McQueen announced that he would star in a film version of Henrik Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People."

Steve McQueen, who last played the fire chief in "The Towering Inferno," Raquel Welch as Desdemona might seem likelier casting.

Yet McQueen in full beard has completed filming the $2.5 million "An Enemy of the People," and the results will be seen in theaters next fall. When production was completed, he told his producer-director, George Schaefer: "I never worked as hard or enjoyed myself as much."

The project was a strange wedding of talents: McQueen, the tight-lipped superstar, accustomed to big budgets and fast action; Schaefer, the scholarly director of a long string of distinguished television dramas, many for the Hallmark Hall of Fame.

"We're taking a long chance," the director admitted. "But if we can intrigue the McQueen fans and combine them with a more classical audience, the thing might work."

Surprisingly, it was McQueen's idea. After a string of commercial efforts like "The Getaway," "Papillon" and "Towering Inferno," he wanted a change.

"Steve sought something different, something more classic, serious and highly demanding," said Schaefer during a break in editing sessions at MGM. The star had two commitments with First Artists, the company he owns with Paul Newman, Barbra Streisand, Sidney Poitier and others.

"Steve wanted to do 'The Inspector General' of Gogol, which I thought was a bad idea," said Schaefer. "Also 'Waiting for Godot,' but Samuel Becket would not sell the film rights, since the play is his best source of royalties."

"Before I entered the picture, Steve had bought the Arthur Miller version of 'An Enemy of the People,' which Freddie March and Florence Eldridge had played in New York about 25 years ago. Steve knew that I was deeply steeped in the classics, and he proposed the film to me."

"I thought it was a good subject, since the play had always been surefire on the stage. It was an enormous success when Ibsen wrote it in 1882. He had been in a fury over the rejection of 'Ghosts,' and he turned it out in a hurry to show the Norwegians he could still write hits."

But how to transform a talky, almost century-old classic into a movie?

"We decided to stick close to the original," said the director. "In fact, I had a Norwegian scholar translate the original text, and we used it in conjunction with the Miller version. Alexander Jacobs did a screenplay that was pretty much what Ibsen would have done if he could have moved around, instead of playing it on a stage."

"An Enemy of the People" concerns a town doctor who fights the local interests over pollution of the water supply. Added Schaefer:

"Any story that concerns integrity in government and touches on environmental matters has got to be contemporary. In fact, they borrowed the theme for 'Jaws,' by having the town's powers ignoring the danger for commercial reasons."

McQueen was involved in all aspects of the film, performing as executive producer although he is not so billed, said Schaefer. The star was surrounded by a distinguished cast, including Bibi Andersson, Charles Durning, Michael Cristofer, Richard Dysart, Michael Higgins. The company rehearsed three weeks before shooting, which helped McQueen in his task.

"He warned me it wasn't going to be easy for him," said the director. "He hadn't been on the stage since 'A Hatful of Rain' in New York, and he worried about learning all those lines. But he did an 8-to-10 minute speech to the townspeople at the climax of the film and did it perfectly in the first take."

Nude Dancing OK'd In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time, strippers in the city's "Combat Zone" can take it all off with the approval of the Boston Licensing Board.

The board voted to permit nude dancing in the city's adult entertainment district but with certain restrictions. The board set minimum lighting requirements for the clubs and required that the dancers stay at least two feet away from customers.

The regulations take effect Jan. 15 for a six-month trial period.

A ban on nude dancing remains in effect for the rest of the city, the board said.

Year Of 'B' Movies

By JOHN HUDDY
Knight News Wire

"Due to the abnormal subject matter of this motion picture, absolutely no children will be allowed with or without their parents. Special uniformed police will supervise admissions."

In its own perverse and ludicrous fashion, the breathless and ostentatiously stark "WARNINGS" that ran in newspapers last summer, exploiting an instantly forgettable B movie, inadvertently brought the rest of the film year into gritty focus, like a crudely lit horror film that reveals every wrinkle and bulge of a once-lovely glamour queen.

Most of the films of 1976 — the best and the worst — were indeed abnormal, not for the family trade, often unsightly. If theaters really did require "special uniformed police," one can only speculate why: to protect us from ourselves — or to keep sickened moviegoers from wringing the theater manager's neck.

For 1976 was the year of the B movie, the brash, vulgar, violent and soulless throwaway that caused attendance to slump by as much as 10 per cent in the first three quarters of the year, despite a growing economy and an even greater demand for movies.

B movies: They came day and night, and they played front-line theaters as well as rural drive-ins.

("Stomach-Turning Triple Horror Bill! 'The Barn of the Naked Dead'...Bloodthirsty Butchers'...The Torture Dungeon!")

B-movies: Cheap movies. Not cheap in the sense of a low budget and limited technical values, but cheap in their overall lack of intelligence, integrity and intent.

(A real-life review of 1976 film titles: "Hustler Squad," "High School Honies," "The Sex Machine," "Black Stud," "The Happy Hooker," "The Hippy Hooker," "Girls for Rent," "Nurses for Sale," "Females for Hire," "High School Hookers," "The Pompadour Girls.")

In 1976 several prestige theater chains turned to X-rated pornographic films for their suburban theaters. "We're not happy with what we're playing any more than you are," was the typical explanation from a chain executive. "But what else is there to play?"

Not much. The great, and the not-so-great, certainly attempted to make good movies, but too many failed. Robert Altman tried, with "Buffalo Bill and the Indians."

dians." The film became part of a national spectacle in which producer Dino De Laurentiis denounced his own film and fired its director from his next project, "Ragtime."

The most elegant and stylish flop came from the most elegant and stylish director, Stanley Kubrick. Suitably, "Barry Lyndon" was a movie without a heart in a year without a heart. With the vacuous Ryan O'Neal droning through the lead role as a moral adventurer, Kubrick dazzled his peers — but not his audience — with splendid composition, breathtaking lighting, masterful camera movement. Few cared; "Barry Lyndon" fizzled like the rest.

Others tried. George Cukor directed "The Blue Bird," working with the Russians. He set detente back five years. Margaux Hemingway launched her film career in 1976, may have ended it with the same film, the messy "Lipstick."

With such unpleasant thoughts, we move on to the movies that did entertain, in some fashion or another. We searched far and wide to find 10 respectable Hollywood movies, and of the 10, half would not normally make our list in other years. And these are frequently violent movies, in which, for example, a man's hand is blown off ("Taxi Driver"), two unfortunates are attacked by demonic dogs in a graveyard and cruelly mauled ("The Omen"), an innocent college student is subjected to prolonged dental torture ("The Marathon Man").

1. "All The President's Men" — It is the single movie of high distinction released in 1976. Flawlessly written, acted and directed, it recaptures a moment in American history that is both evil and glorious. The best newspaper film ever made.

2. "Taxi Driver" — A vicious but effective film about a deranged cabbie who sets out to slay a mighty dragon — the forces of evil in New York City. Another powerful performance by Robert De Niro, more good work from Martin Scorsese. Quite violent.

3. "Silent Movie" — A zany gamble by Mel Brooks that pays off: There's no spoken dialog, only silent-picture music, and if the end result is silly, it's also funny.

4. "The Omen" — Not original, but handsomely done; this was the best of the satanic films made in 1976. Excellent action sequences, a fine performance by Gregory Peck. Violent and bloody.

5. "The Marathon Man" — Sleek and polished and tinged with red. One is likely to have serious moral reservations about John Schlesinger's tale of intrigue and murder, for if we remove the torture scenes, what is left? Still, a gripping movie.

6. "Silver Streak" — A red-blooded, old-fashioned comedy and thriller aboard a train. The train itself, plus Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor, is enough.

7. "Robin and Marian" — A fine, under-rated film by Richard Lester with many outstanding performances, including ones by Sean Connery, Robert Shaw and Audrey Hepburn. I like the description given the film by Charles Champlin of the Los Angeles Times: "Autumnal." A lovely, seldom-employed mood.

8. "Bad News Bears" — Another offbeat comedy, about a neglected, foul-mouthed squad of Little League baseball players. The language is quite authentic — take it from a former kids league baseball coach.

9. "The Shootist" — Also underrated. Could be John Wayne's best western of this decade. A touching, well-written account of an aging gunfighter who only wants to be left alone to face death with dignity. Wayne at his best — and that is quite good.

10. "The Seven Percent Solution" — A competent, quirky job that brought a few holiday smiles to the nation. Certainly the most original Sherlock Holmes film.

There's no better way to show you care than to secure your loved ones' financial future!

The Gerber baby—a symbol of quality

Now... budget-priced protection FOR TODAY'S ADULTS $10,000 Life Insurance for as little as $4.84 a month (man age 26) and this low monthly premium is guaranteed not to increase for a full 20 years

Gerber Life knows how tough it can be to squeeze out a few dollars for insurance with today's high cost of living. We also know that most people don't have enough insurance, especially while they're young and need it most. That's why we designed this low-cost 20-Year Term Life Insurance Plan for people on the way up—people whose income and savings have just started to grow.

20 YEARS

Term insurance is designed to give you more protection for less money than any other type of life insurance. But there is a difference between term policies.

Many term policies are Annual Renewable Term Policies (1-Year Term). These policies may look cheap but every single year the premium goes up! A most unwelcomed birthday present. But this need not happen to you because...

GERBER LIFE'S TERM POLICY IS A 20-YEAR TERM POLICY

With Gerber's Term Life, the amount of your protection never decreases, and the amount of your premium never increases... for a full 20 years... the period during which our children are growing to maturity and our expenses are so high.

AFTER 20 YEARS

After you have had your plan for 20 years, you have the right to renew your coverage every five years up to age 65... without a physical exam... at the monthly rate for your age at the time of renewal.

Also, any time before age 65 you have the right to change your term policy to our Whole Life Plan (which builds cash surrender and loan values) regardless of your health or occupation.

NO PHYSICAL EXAMINATION IS NEEDED TO APPLY†

One of the special features of our 20-Year Term Policy is that in most cases you don't have to take a physical to apply†. All you have to do is answer the few brief questions on the application; then, return the completed form with just $1 ($2 for $20,000). If we find you're in average good health... and almost 90% of the people who apply are... we'll promptly issue your policy and your $1 (or $2) will cover you for the first full month. After that, you only pay the low monthly premium, shown in the Rate Chart, for your present age.*

We may make a brief report on information we receive with your application to the Medical Information Bureau. (A non-profit membership organization of life insurance companies which operates an information exchange on behalf of its members. P.O. Box 105, Essex Station, Boston, Mass. 02112, Tel: 617/426-3660.) The Bureau, upon request from a member company to whom you may apply for insurance or to whom a claim for benefits may be submitted, will supply the company with such information. If you ask, the Bureau will arrange disclosure of the information in your file (medical information will be disclosed only to your attending physician), and you may seek a correction of any inaccurate information in accordance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act procedures.

EXAMINE YOUR POLICY WITHOUT OBLIGATION

You not only enjoy the full protection of your 20-Year Term life policy (TTP-701) for just $1 for the first month ($2 if you select the $20,000 plan) you also have the privilege of examining it in your home without obligation.

When you receive your policy you have 10 days to look it over carefully. If you are not completely satisfied, we will refund your initial payment.

How to start your Gerber Life 20-Year Term Life Insurance Plan

- Decide how much you want to budget each month, which will determine the amount of protection you can get. The minimum amount of adult insurance per policy is $10,000. Husband and wife, for example, can have $5,000 each; if just one adult is insured on the policy, the minimum is $10,000.

You get a $1 per month discount if both husband and wife, with or without children, are covered on the Family Plan.

Our expenses are less and the savings are passed on to you.

- Fill out the application form. Be sure to check the amount of protection you want and the plan of your choice.
- Mail your completed application to:

Super Bowl Teams Both With Us

Super Bowl XI may be Pasadena's baby but right now you might not know it.

The Oakland Raiders are practicing at UC Irvine and are "in residence" at Newport Beach. The Minnesota Vikings are stopping at the South Coast Plaza Hotel (Costa Mesa) while training at Long Beach. Wives of the Vikings are registered at the Registry Hotel, Irvine.

Six hundred Minneapolis fans, and between 600 and 700 Oakland bugs, are expected to bus the Rose Bowl Sunday morning from Anaheim after spending a couple of nights around Disneyland. Thirty-four buses have been engaged to transport the gang to Pasadena. They are paying $89.50 each for the entire bundle: Super bowl tickets, transportation both ways, refreshments, a program and a souvenir. Pictures of the Vikings-Rams game are to be shown at the Anaheim Room of the Convention Center Saturday night. Sponsors say the package still is available by calling 778-5220....

They say something like 25,000 Super Bowl tickets remain at this date but a sellout seems assured when the scalpers cut loose before weekend. Pasadena does not want this one to fall on its face. As a good neighbor, even Santa Anita has entered into the spirit of the weekend. There will be no racing at the track to conflict Sunday, and Santa Anita will let everybody in free Saturday who can show a Super Bowl ticket. Only a nominal city of Arcadia tax (20 cents) will be levied. How long has it been since a horse track shut down in respect of a football game?

L.A. IS PRESS CENTER

Super Bowl press headquarters will be set up tomorrow at the Los Angeles Airport Marriott Hotel although both teams are quartered in Orange County. Wednesday night the news media will be guests of KCET at a preview of "The Way It Was," the award-winning TV cavalcade which was shot at Miss Viejo several months ago....

The Oakland Raiders arrived yesterday at the Marriott Hotel at Newport Beach. The pre-game buildup gets under way at UCI with what is billed as camera day. "We'll try to keep everything as normal as possible," promises Raider coach John Madden. "I won't fight the press coverage. I'll just live with it."

Madden says there's a vast difference in the buildup given today and when the club made its only other Super Bowl appearance in 1969. Madden was an assistant then. "It wasn't the spectacle then that it has become," he says. "Each year since it has grown in stature with exposure, more media, more fan interest."

VIKINGS THE 'HOME' TEAM

Because they are the National Conference champions, the Vikings are the "home team" in the Super Bowl so got first choice of workout quarters. They went for Blair Field in Long Beach, where the Rams condition after they depart from Fullerton State early in the fall (when schooling begins there).

At the South Coast Plaza, the Vikings will have breakfast sessions for press interviews Wednesday and Thursdays.

At the Newport Marriott, coach Madden said he hasn't decided whether he will convoy the Raiders from UCI all the way to Pasadena and back just so they could look at the Rose Bowl in a pre-game workout. "It's more than an hour's bus travel from our hotel and I don't know that I want our people sitting in a bus for two hours. I don't know that that's as important as having a workout right here."

GURNEY TESTS 'EAGLE'

Dan Gurney's all new Jorgensen Eagle, smaller and lighter than previous models, will be given the first of many road tests Sunday and Monday. Ontario Motor Speedway will be the scene.

Duane (Pancho) Carter of Huntington Beach will be driving the sleek machine when it rolls out on the racing surface. The first test originally had been scheduled Dec. 16 but was delayed because of carburation problems. The track was not available because of the holiday.

Gurney and his family are vacationing in Colorado but will be home early enough to put final touches on the car—hopefully destined to make history at Indianapolis in May. The car is six inches narrower, creating less wind drag. The theory is, this will up the speed yet maintain a low fuel consumption rate.

Russians Beat Mariners, 6-3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Russian hockey veteran Vladimir Petrov scored one goal and had three assists as the touring Russian all-star team beat the San Diego Mariners of the World Hockey Association 6-3 in an exhibition game Monday night.

Petrov had two of his assists and one goal in the second period as the Russians overcame a 2-0 San Diego lead.

He then assisted on the final goal of the game as the Russians blew open a 4-3 advantage with a pair of goals in the final three minutes.

San Diego, which has the best record in the WHA, got first period goals from Don Burgess and Wayne Rivers.

Boris Mikhailov and Aleksandr Yakushev scored in the second period off passes from Petrov to tie the score at 2-2. Then Petrov scored with 43 seconds remaining in the period in a power play to give the Russians a lead they never relinquished.

Just two minutes into the final period, Vladimir Krikunov scored the apparent game-winning goal.

But with six minutes remaining and both teams playing with just three attackers, San Diego defenseman Paul Shmyr took a pass from Andre LaCroix to pull the score to within one goal at 4-3.

Then the Russians put the game away with goals by Alexander Maltsev and Mikhailov.

Playing before a sellout crowd of 13,029 the Russians outshot San Diego 33-29.

The victory gave the Russians a 4-1 margin in their eight-game series with WHA teams.

Raiders, Vikings Check Into O.C.

Super Bowl Rivals Practice At UCI, Long Beach

By MIKE WOJCIECHOWSKI

Minnesota's Vikings and Oakland's Raiders are taking advantage of Orange County hospitality while preparing for Sunday's Super Bowl, although the Vikings will slip out of the area early to avoid any rush to the game.

The Raiders arrived in Southern California Monday afternoon and checked in at the Marriott Hotel in Newport Beach, while the Vikings flew in Monday night and checked in at the South Coast Plaza Hotel in Costa Mesa.

Both squads will be using area facilities in preparation for the National Football League championship contest at the Rose Bowl on Sunday.

The Raiders will be practicing at UC Irvine while the Vikings will be using the Rams' training facilities at Blair Field in Long Beach.

The Vikings, afraid a possible traffic snarl might cause the team to be late for the Super Bowl, will be transferring to a hotel in Pasadena on Saturday.

General manager Mike Lynn completed arrangements Monday to transfer the team to a closer location to the game site.

"I asked two policemen in Pasadena how long it would take for the team bus on game day and they didn't have any idea," said Lynn.

Police officials explained that the Rose Bowl crowd, in excess of 100,000, is usually on hand for the parade and fans then continue on to the stadium. The upcoming Super Bowl will be the first time more than 100,000 fans will converge on the stadium at one time, without a parade leading the way.

"The league said it didn't consider idiosyncrasies of the coaches when they set up the Orange County facilities," said Lynn. "We don't plan on being late and we're not about to ride a bus for three hours on game day."

The bus trip would take only one hour under ideal circumstances, but Super Bowl day won't be ideal.

Minnesota coach Bud Grant was vocal about the setup in Houston for Super Bowl VIII. His Vikings were totally unprepared for what they found when they arrived, namely a high school field assigned to them for practice. And it took a 10-minute bus ride every day to get the Vikings to the practice field, while the Miami Dolphins simply walked across the street to their field, the same one that the Oilers used during the regular season.

Both the Raiders and Vikings are about 10 minutes from their practice field this time.

Grant's complaints in 1975 cost him $1,500 in fines by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle who fined him for his "editorial comments."

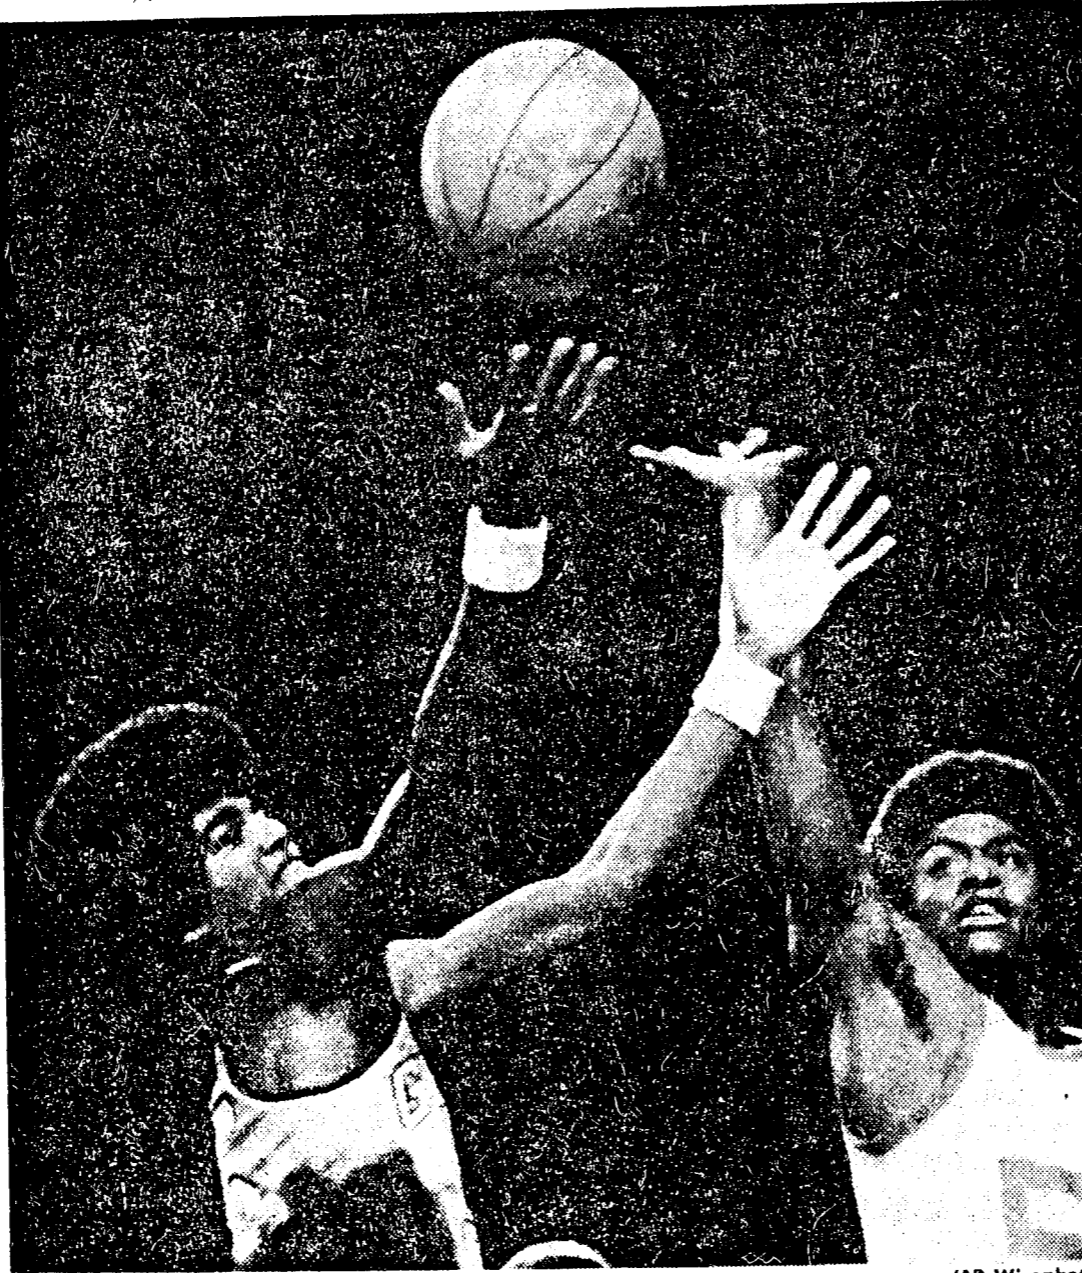

The change of hotels this week will cost the Vikings roughly $4,000. Minnesota reserved 40 rooms in Pasadena for a minimum of three nights for nearly $100 per player.

Concerning the training site at Long Beach, Grant said he was looking forward to the "first class" facility.

It is not known whether the Raiders, who are about 15 miles further from the Rose Bowl, will stay at the Marriott through the weekend or whether they too will be making a move closer to the Rose Bowl.

Coach John Madden and his assistant coaches arrived Sunday to scout the UCI facilities, which have been used in the past by the San Diego Chargers as a summer training site.

A crowd of 103,000, slightly less than the crowd at the USC-Michigan contest, is expected for Sunday is 12:30 p.m. kickoff. The game will be televised on Channel 4.

Ali Gets Divorce, For $2 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — The wife of heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has been granted a divorce decree providing that he pay benefits to her in the range of $2 million, it was disclosed Monday.

Judge Robert L. Hunter of Circuit Court issued the decree Wednesday to Khalilah Ali, who had been married to the boxer for nine years and had four children by him.

The hearing was held quietly in the judge's chambers and Ali did not attend. Knowledge of the court action did not become public until Monday.

Under the settlement, Mrs. Ali will receive a large apartment building on Chicago's South Side, a home in south suburban Flossmoor and two automobiles, including a Rolls Royce. She was awarded custody of the children under the agreement, which also sets up a trust fund for the youngsters.

A portion of the money settlement, the exact size of which was not learned immediately, was paid to Mrs. Ali on Wednesday, sources familiar with the case said.

They placed the settlement in the $2 million range.

The only witness at the final hearing was Mrs. Ali, who met the boxer after he spotted her in a school hallway. She said in her divorce suit, which charged desertion, that the champion "violated his marriage vows, contrary to the teachings of Islam."

Ali appeared in public last year with a woman, Veronica Porsche of Los Angeles, and later acknowledged in court papers filed in Michigan that he has a child by Miss Porsche.

Mrs. Ali testified for less than an hour. Her attorney, Jewel Lafontant, said that she was "far from happy. She was somber throughout the hear-

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Blankets of snow coated Sierra Nevada slopes Monday, but some ski resort owners hard hit by a season-long drought were still singing the "It's great-but-too-late" blues.

"It's certainly a little overdue. We'd like to have seen it two months ago," said Bob Roberts, executive director of the Sierra Ski Association which represents 35 resorts in California and Nevada.

The California State Auto Association reported 13 ski resorts operating. Only four resorts had been able to open before New Year's, using man-made flakes to lure determined skiers.

The brown mountainsides received their first white coat last Wednesday and the most recent storm began Sunday, bringing the Sierra between two and three feet of snow. More high-altitude snowfall through the night was predicted by the National Weather Service.

Roberts said the storm left a good base, but no grace.

"This will not be a good season. It's already too late and most areas will end the year in the red. You just can't make up for the revenues lost during Christmas weekend," he said.

"As far as the ski areas are concerned, I'm sure we've easily lost $5 million to $7 million in total sales this year," he added. "Generally by the end of the Christmas holiday, most areas have done within 30 to 40 per cent of their sales for the year."

But all things considered, skiers and resort owners managed a bit of revelry in the new snow.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A history of failures haunted the Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings as they arrived Monday to begin preparations for Super Bowl XI.

The National Football League extravaganza will be Sunday at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, where a record crowd of more than 104,000 is to be on hand when one of these teams finally sheds the loser's image.

Since 1970, when pro football's merger was finalized, the Vikings have the NFL's best record, 75-22-1 for .770. The second-best record belongs to the Raiders, 71-21-6 for .755.

So why the loser's image?

Well, this is the fourth Super Bowl for Minnesota, and the Vikings haven't won one yet. The Raiders have won the AFC West Division title nine of the last 10 years, but this is only their second Super Bowl. That was in 1968 when they lost 33-14 to Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers.

When Minnesota kayoed Los Angeles to capture the NFC championship, the first thing Fran Tarkenton said was, "We're going back to the Super Bowl, and we want the world to know that this time we're going to win it."

That was as close to a guarantee as any quarterback has given since Joe Namath said the New York Jets would win Super Bowl III. He was right. The Jets pulled off the biggest upset of the series, beating the Baltimore Colts, who had been 17-point favorites.

That was the year before Minnesota's string of Super Bowl disappointments began. In 1970, the Vikings came into the game with a 12-2 record and were subordinated by Kansas City, 23-7. In 1973, they were 12-2 again but came up short in the big game, losing to Miami, 24-7. The next year, the Vikings finished 10-4 and lost the Super Bowl to Pittsburgh, 16-6.

So here they are again, determined to snap the Super Bowl hex. To do it, they must beat a team that seems just as starcrossed as the Vikings have been.

Starting in 1967, when they won their first division crown, the Raiders have come up short in the playoffs. They lost Conference title games to the Jets in 1968, to Kansas City in 1969 and to Baltimore in 1970.

Oakland didn't make the playoffs in 1971, lost to Pittsburgh in 1972, to Miami in 1973, and to Pittsburgh again in 1974 and 1975.

Failures Haunt 'Super' Teams

Irish Surprised By Princeton

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Forward Frank Solwinski scored 18 points and a tenacious Princeton defense helped the Tigers to a 76-62 upset over second-ranked Notre Dame in college basketball Monday night.

Sowinski had a perfect shooting night, hitting six-for-six from both the floor and the foul line, although he was forced to the bench for about 10 minutes because of foul trouble.

Notre Dame used a full-court press throughout the game but never succeeded in rattling the Tigers, who worked the ball around for good shots and hit them with consistency.

Princeton ran off a 10-2 spurt late in the first half to take a 35-25 lead.

Notre Dame, and its high-scoring forward Don "Duck" Williams, were plagued by cold outside shooting and never solved the sticky Princeton defense, the nation's best going into the game.

"Believe it or not, we're a pressing team," said dejected Irish Coach Digger Phelps.

Princeton guards Bill Omeltchenko and Tim Olah displayed sound ballhandling ability, dribbling around the Irish to eat up the clock and passing the ball with precision to set up shots.

"But the other thing that beat us was turnovers," added Phelps. "I can't overemphasize this, both in our loss to Kentucky and tonight—they killed us."

The Irish gave the ball away 26 times and also sent Princeton foul shooters to the line 34 times.

Princeton forward Bob Slaughter was high scorer with 19 points. Bill Paterno led the Irish with 15.

Both teams are now 7-2 for the season.

Chargers Sign Ex-Nebraska Star Rodgers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After trying for five years to get him, the San Diego Chargers on Monday signed former Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers to "a long series" of one-year contracts.

Rodgers, now 25, spent the intervening four years with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League for whom he spurned San Diego in 1973.

"If I was ever going to move, it had to be now," Rodgers told a news conference.

No contract terms were disclosed, but owner Eugene Klein said Rodgers agreed to one-year contracts — "a long series of them."

The Chargers selected the former University of Nebraska running back and All-American as the nation's No. 1 pick in the 1973 college draft, but Rodgers instead snubbed the National Football League for a more lucrative money offer at Montreal.

Coach Tommy Prothro, who went to San Diego a year later, said Rodgers is "just what we need, a wide receiver with speed....He's been the best everywhere he's played."

Rodgers averaged 18.9 yards, scoring 28 touchdowns on 186 catches over the year with Montreal.

Skiers Get Snow, But Resorts Sing Blues

By ANGELA NOEL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Blankets of snow coated Sierra Nevada slopes Monday, but some ski resort owners hard hit by a season-long drought were still singing the "It's great-but-too-late" blues.

"It's certainly a little overdue. We'd like to have seen it two months ago," said Bob Roberts, executive director of the Sierra Ski Association which represents 35 resorts in California and Nevada.

The California State Auto Association reported 13 ski resorts operating. Only four resorts had been able to open before New Year's, using man-made flakes to lure determined skiers.

The brown mountainsides received their first white coat last Wednesday and the most recent storm began Sunday, bringing the Sierra between two and three feet of snow. More high-altitude snowfall through the night was predicted by the National Weather Service.

But all things considered, skiers and resort owners managed a bit of revelry in the new snow.

Brady Hodge of Heavenly Valley chortled, "It's been nonstop snow all day" and said they had a 48-inch total. Squaw Valley's Bill Boardman said gleefully, "It's sticking ... it's exactly what we wanted."

At Mammoth, California's largest resort, 16 of 22 lifts were open Monday, with plans to open all lifts this weekend, said public information officer Pam Clason. She said Mammoth's management had braced itself for the dry season by beginning only this weekend to hire its customary winter crew of 800.

"We're not thinking of the past, just the future," a spokesman at Mammoth said.

The crunch has hit hardest the small businesses that are bunched around resorts and had little economic cushion for the drought. "Those are the guys that get stung," Roberts said, estimating total losses at as much as $40 million.

Some relief through federal loans is available to resorts and businesses, Roberts said, as a part of the state's drought relief program. None have yet applied for loans, he said.

Roberts shared the precarious optimism. "I think we'll have a good year of skiing this year. It's just that there won't be a great deal of high living as far as the skiing industry is concerned."

The ski resorts in Utah were singing the same tune after their first winter storm hit on Monday, allowing the resorts to open today or Wednesday — the latest opening date in the state's history.

The resorts had estimated losses even before the Christmas-New Year's holiday period at $7 1/2 million.

Terps Richer, But Would Rather Win

DALLAS (AP) — Maryland's football team earned $452,000 for appearing in the Cotton Bowl, a balm to ease some of the pain suffered in the 30-21 loss to Houston.

But it was evident that members of the Terps' official party, despite their brave postgame front, would have exchanged great gobbs of loot for a victory on Saturday.

Maryland's program, making great strides since it was revived by Coach Jerry Claiborne, can be expected to retain its high level of excellence. Yet, the Cotton Bowl loss was particularly untimely.

The Terps went into the game ranked No. 4 in the nation with an 11-0 record and had a chance to silence critics who said they had played a soft schedule.

Instead, in spite of 41-16-2 record at Maryland and action in four consecutive bowl games, Claiborne had to defend his team.

Coach Bill Yeoman of Houston graciously came to Claiborne's rescue at a joint news conference, praising the Terps despite their third post-season loss in four years.

"Alabama lost seven or eight bowl games in a row," Yeoman said. "But nobody's going to tell me they have a poor team, because we've lined up against them."

Following another Yeoman compliment for Maryland, Claiborne broke in and added:

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge said Monday that any malice baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may have had toward Oakland A's owner Charles Finley is irrelevant to the outcome of Finley's $3.5 million suit against Kuhn.

Judge Frank J. McGarr told Peter Bleakley, one of Kuhn's attorneys, "I don't think if there was a feud or personal animosity between Kuhn and Finley, it has any relevance in this case."

Finley had charged that Kuhn voided the sales of Joe Rudi, Rolfe Fingers and Vida Blue for $3.5 million, in part, because Kuhn had a dislike for the owner. Finley's civil suit charged Kuhn with malice.

Bleakley cross-examined Finley on the stand Monday and attempted to show that Finley himself was "difficult," "troublesome" and "obstructionist" in some baseball dealings.

But McGarr said, "I'm not interested if the commissioner liked Mr. Finley or not."

McGarr told the lawyers again the case will be decided on the question of whether Kuhn had the authority to void the June sales.

"That's the gut question that's still open," said Bleakley after the court session concluded. "I'm still hopeful of our case."

Neil Papiano, Finley's attorney, said he will conclude the prosecution's case today by reading pretrial documents into the record after which Bleakley may begin calling defense witnesses.

Earlier, McGarr told Bleakley the financial situation of Finley's Oakland club at the time of the sales "is peripheral at best. Whether he's rich or poor doesn't mean a lot to me. The issue is the commissioner's power."

After a short recess, Bleakley then cited a subsection of a baseball rule covering misconduct. No specific act mentioned in the rule, which covers violence, gambling or gifts to umpires, should be "construed as exclusively...defining acts...not in the best interests of baseball," Bleakley said.

That is the crux of Kuhn's defense — that he acted in the "best interests of baseball" when he voided the sale of Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox and Blue to the New York Yankees.

Bleakley also contested Finley's earlier contention that unsigned players on the Oakland A's were "unsignable."

Under cross-examination, Finley revealed that he made no contract offers to the players between the end of the 1975 season and the day before the trading deadline — June 15.

Finley explained that agents for Rudi, Fingers and Bert Campaneris, Sal Bando, Gene Tenace and Don Baylor insisted on multiyear, no-cut, no-trade contracts. "That's the reason we could not get together," he said. "I begged and pleaded with them to take out the no-trade provisions. I couldn't handcuff myself...or my manager."

Women's Sports May Need Court To Decide Recruiting Issue

MEMPHIS (AP) — The future of women's collegiate athletic recruiting may be decided in the courtroom, a committee chairman for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women said Monday.

"We can take a stand one way or the other, but I think the court may well say to us that you can or you cannot do that," said Christine Grant, women's athletic director at the University of Iowa and chairman of the AIAW ad hoc committee on recruiting.

Recruiting is a matter of high concern for the more than 500 representatives to the 1977 delegate assembly of the AIAW.

Under current policy, coaches in AIAW athletic programs are not permitted expenses or time off from regular teaching duties to recruit.

The policy is more restrictive than that for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which governs men's sports.

Lawyers have advised the AIAW that the restriction jeopardizes the legal position of the association and its more than 800 member institutions by forcing them to violate federal equal pay regulations. They also say the policy may conflict with Title IX of the federal education act which requires institutions which accept federal funds to provide equal facilities and programs for men and women.

NCAA rules permit full-time paid recruiters and expense-paid campus visits for prospective athletes.

A four-member committee has been working on the recruiting problem for the past year. The committee report, will be decided in a court of law.

She indicated she favors limiting recruiting activities in an effort to reduce pressure on both athletes and coaches.

"I can only speak for the students on my campus, but I think the general feeling is that possibly the best thing is no off-campus individual solicitation for either men or women," she said.

"That would be the ideal thing. To recruit by telephone and mail. It's difficult for the women, when they see the men getting freebies, but if you take the legal aspect out of Option One and say what would be good for all the people, then I think it tends to support our philosophy," she said.

"He's completely back to normal. Ricky, is as of now, planning to go to Hawaii to play in the game."

The first contingent of Hula Bowl players, led by East Coach Johnny Majors of Pitt, arrived late Sunday night. Dorsett was among those expected to arrive later Monday because he had remained in Los Angeles to confer with his business agent.

The East and West teams begin workouts Tuesday.

Winning players will get $1,500 each while players on the losing team get $1,250.

Proceeds of the game, sponsored by the Gannett Newspaper Foundation, go to charity.

The annual all-star clash set for Saturday was being billed as a head-to-head running duel between Bell and Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh.

But the confrontation seemed threatened in the Rose Bowl game when Bell suffered a mild concussion in the first quarter and spent the rest of the day on the bench as the Trojans beat Michigan.

"The symptoms are all gone," said USC team physician Dr. Charles Semel.

Lexington, Ky. (AP) — James Lee hit a layup and two free throws for a rare four-point play with 1:22 left in overtime Monday night to send sixth-ranked Kentucky to a 64-55 victory over Georgia in a Southeastern Conference college basketball game.

Lee, a reserve, drew Kentucky away from a one-point lead when he stole the ball, scored a layup and made both of his free throws after an intentional foul by Georgia's Pete Fusi.

Only 15 seconds later, Lee again was at the free throw line in a one-and-one bonus situation and made them both for a 62-55 Kentucky lead, and the Wildcats held on for the victory.

Jack Givens led Kentucky with 17 points and Rick Robey added 16. Walter Daniels topped all scorers with 20 points for the Bulldogs and Curtis Jackson had 17.

Georgia, using a super-slow offense, frustrated the Wildcats and took an 8-7 lead with 12:35 left in the first half and hung on to the advantage through the first period.

The Bulldogs led 25-24 at halftime, but Kentucky's Jay Shidler hit a free throw five seconds into the second half to produce the first of seven ties.

Kentucky led by four with 9:15 left in regulation, but two baskets by Jackson and one each by David Reavis and Daniels gave Georgia a four-point advantage with 5:58 to go.

Robey scored Kentucky's last eight points in regulation. With the score tied at 53-53, the Wildcats stalled for nearly a minute before Robey was called for a walking violation. Lee's block of the inbound pass sent the game into overtime.

Sweet Sorrow In Locker Room

Rickey Bell said it. Otherwise, it might have sounded immodest: "I was proud of the way the guys hung in there and won it without me."

He was talking about the University of Southern California's 14-6 triumph over Michigan in the 63rd renewal of the great commotion in the Rose Bowl.

Well, who would have thought the Trojans could produce such heroics without Bell? It is Ricky, the authorities say, who may be the greatest of all in the endless parade of tailbacks to operate at USC.

The Wolverines put the boff on Bell Saturday on USC's first series of downs after he had carried four times for 16 yards. They rang Ricky's Bell and he was still suffering from a severe headache and dizziness in the locker room when the noise of congratulation commenced.

"I wish I could have played," Ricky said, looking at the floor, "but we won and that's the idea of coming here."

Crying Shame

A guy suggested it was a crying shame Ricky Bell could not have concluded his college career with a day befitting the archives at Pasadena. But Ricky has been visited by bad luck in the months of football just passed.

Bell entered the 1976 season as one of the favorites to win the Heisman Trophy, the item of silverware which makes millionaires out of penniless football players. Bell missed one game of the regular season with an assortment of injuries and fell too far behind to catch Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett, the subsequent winner.

Now there was a report that Bell and Dorsett were planning to engage the service of the same flesh peddler and enter professional football as a package deal.

Some package. But Bell said the report may have come from a celebrant of New Year's Eve sitting alone in a wire service office someplace. "There is no truth to that at all," Bell said. "I have offers from several agents and I haven't made up my mind."

Improving Huskies Meet Cal First

SEATTLE (AP) — For Coach Marv Harshman and his University of Washington basketball team, there is no better time to put the ball where the basket is.

The Second Season is here. The young Huskies, losers of their first four games but winners of their last eight, enter the dogfight for the Pacific-8 Conference title Thursday night when they entertain the California Bears at Edmundson Pavilion.

Less than 48 hours later, Washington hosts Stanford in a regionally televised conference matchup Saturday afternoon.

Eight straight victories, including a championship in the Cabrillo Classic at San Diego, give the Huskies momentum. But "I don't think there are any easy games for us the rest of the way," said Harshman. His preseason talk had his team pegged for post-season play. Critics believed otherwise after the Huskies opened with consecutive losses to Seattle University, Nebraska, Wake Forest and Duke.

"We did a lot of experimenting early and the competition was good," the sixth-year Washington coach explained. "Seattle was playing very well. Nebraska probably wasn't the best team in America, but we didn't play well enough to beat anybody right then. And both Wake Forest and Duke are certainly good teams."

With six new players in the program—five of them freshmen—it took time to find the right combination. Harshman, for the time being, has settled on 6-foot-7 junior Kim Stewart and 6-5 freshman Stan Walker as forwards, 7-foot senior James Edwards at center, and 6-1 senior Chester Dorsey and 6-3 sophomore Mike Neill at guards.

Corona del Mar Faces Rugged Fight For South Coast Title

With two big scorers in post men Jack Tuz and Alex Black, Corona del Mar has to be the favorite in the revamped South Coast League, which gets under way tonight.

But the Sea Kings won't find clear sailing in their new loop since all but one team finished the pre-league slate with winning records and four different squads nabbed tournament titles.

The Sea Kings (7-4) won the prestigious Westminister-Marina Tournament, beating CIF 3-A champion Lynwood. Corona's four losses have all been to 4-A schools, including setbacks to Verbum Dei, Long Beach Poly and Compton.

Tuz and Black have supplied most of the offense for the slow methodical attack, scoring 208 and 227 points respectively in 11 games.

Corona del Mar opens league action at El Toro while Costa Mesa is at Mission Viejo, Dana Hills is at Laguna Beach and University is at San Clemente. All the games start at 7 p.m.

Costa Mesa, also 7-4, won the Anaheim Tournament as well as placing third at San Clemente and taking the consolation title at Orange. Steve Parrino, a 6-3 forward has led a balanced Mustang squad with 221 points in 11 games.

While Corona del Mar and Costa Mesa are newcomers to the South Coast this year, San Clemente is a long time resident and will be out to protect the integrity of the old timers.

The Tritons are 7-3 and fresh from an impressive first place showing in the strong Katella Classic.

Led by 6-2 forward Tim Dunham, who has 183 points in 10 games, the Tritons have defeated Katella and St. Anthony, while losing to Fountain Valley, Downey and Bolla Grande.

El Toro, with a 6-4 record is the other team to win a tournament title. The Chargers defeated league foe Laguna Beach Thursday to win the Elsinore tournament. Dana Hills was also in the Elsinore tournament.

Laguna Beach is 7-5 in non-league while both Dana Hills and Mission Viejo are 6-5. University, with a 5-8 mark, is the only squad with a losing record.

South Coast Vs. Mission In Basketball

It will be the South Coast Conference vs. Mission Conference in final tuneups for conference basketball play tonight as Saddleback College and Fullerton College go into action.

Saddleback, the early favorite along with defending champion Riverside in the Mission, will host Mt. San Antonio College at 7:30 while Fullerton, a South Coast member like Mt. Sac, will venture to San Marcos to face Palomar College of the Mission.

Southwestern College travels to Grossmont and defending state champ Long Beach City College for other final tuneups.

Coach Bill Mulligan's Gauchos will be facing one of the South Coast's finest clubs in Mt. Sac. Coach Gene Victor's Mounties are defending co-champs of the South Coast and will go into their conference race next week as the team to beat.

Winner of eight games in 15 starts, Saddleback will bank on its excellent team speed and accurate shooting to turn back the ball control conscious Mounties.

Fullerton will be looking for its fifth win in 14 pre-conference starts at Palomar where coach Andy Gilmour has one of his best Comet clubs gearing for a shot at the Mission Conference title.

Saddleback hosts the UC Irvine JV team Wednesday night and Santa Ana visits Chaffey and Orange Coast hosts district rival Golden West as they continue working toward the conference schedule.

The Mission Conference race opens Saturday night with Saddleback traveling to San Bernardino.

La Habra, Fullerton In Key O.L. Clash

Over the last three years, the Orange League has produced some of the toughest basketball races in Orange County. But the race in 1977 could be even tighter with the addition of La Habra and Fullerton into the previous six-team league.

The two newcomers clash at Fullerton tonight in the feature attraction, while Brea-Olinda is at El Dorado, Canyon is at Sonora and Valencia is at Esperanza. All league action starts at 7.

La Habra, currently 8-1 and ranked second in the county, could be an odds-on favorite to take the crown. The Highlanders, behind shooters Ted Whittington and Scott Schamber, have captured the Clansmen and Monte Vista Tournaments, with their only loss a setback to Sunny Hills.

But several other clubs, including Fullerton, Brea-Olinda, Canyon and surprising Valencia, are expected to challenge the Highlanders.

The Tigers of Valencia haven't won an Orange League game in three years, but 1977 could be their year. The team is 9-2 on the year, capturing its own tournament and finishing second in the Anaheim and Pioneer Tournaments.

Paul Gilbert has led the methodical Valencia offense with 226 points in 10 games.

Brea-Olinda High has made a practice of avoiding big stars this year, with no man averaging over 15 points a game and three averaging over ten. The Wildcats are 8-4 in pre-league and captured the Cerritos Tournament and took third in their own Tournament.

El Dorado has won the last three league titles and is currently 7-4, having taken third at the Santiago and Troy tournaments. John Heller, a 6-4 senior forward, has led El Dorado in scoring, with 161 points in 11 games.

Canyon High boasts the third highest scorer in the county in 6-7 senior Mike Maxam and an offense which could make the Commanches contenders in 1977.

The team is only 6-5 on the year, with three of those losses to Santa Ana Valley, Lowell and Boulder City of Las Vegas.

Fullerton was champion of the Freeway League in 1976 and Hoby Brenner, and Roger Childs, both returning starters, make the Indians a contender this year. The team lost its first three games, with Childs sitting out two of them, and is now 4-6 in pre-league action.

The losses have been to highly rated teams, including a 10-point loss to La Habra in the finals of the Clansman Classic.

Esperanza and Sonora have also struggled in the pre-season schedule. Esperanza is 6-7 on the year, while Sonora has a 3-7 mark. Both schools have strong offensive threats though in Rich Buchanan and Charlie Amaral. Buchanan, in 13 games for the Aztecs has scored 197 points, while Amaral, an all-league selection as a junior, has 191 points in 10 games.

Ward, Kaiser MVP On 1-A

Junior Gary Ward of the CIF 1-A champion Rim of the World High and Gary Kaiser of Bishop were named co-most valuable players in the all-CIF 1-A team, it was announced today by Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

Ward, DeAnza League defensive player of the year, accounted for 2,050 yards for the Scots and scored 134 points while Kaiser scored 152 points and accounted for 1,827 yards for Bishop.

Chacon, Leal Fight Jan. 13

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former world featherweight boxing champion Bobby Chacon, now on the comeback trail after losing his crown, will fight Mexico's Julio Leal in a 10-round bout at the Olympic Auditorium on Jan. 13.

Matchmaker Don Chargin announced the pairing Monday. Chacon stopped Miguel Meza in three rounds on Dec. 16 at the Olympic and now will appear in the first regularly scheduled weekly fight for 1977 at the same arena.

UCI Girls Play Cal Poly Cagers

With only two returnees from a 10-4 team that won all seven conference starts, new UC Irvine women's basketball coach Millie Burns unveils the 1977 Anteaters tonight at 8 in a league game at Cal Poly Pomona.

Her experienced players are 5-10 senior Karen Floyd, who averaged 6.1 points a year ago, and 5-9 sophomore Kim Foltz, a 4.3 scorer Junior Carol Winell (5-2), soph Marilyn Johnston (5-9) and Karen Crovella, a 5-10 freshman, complete the lineup.

Cypress Starts Title Chase

If height, court savvy and good depth win basketball championships, Cypress College may have a Southern Cal Conference cage title waiting for it in March.

Coach Don Johnson and his Chargers, all fired up with a 12-1 December record in the log, begin finding out tonight if they have what it takes to win the Southern Cal Conference championship.

Because of its near perfect December record, Cypress goes into the conference race as the team to beat but strong competition is insured by Santa Monica College, defending champ Harbor and a crew of quick Roadrunners at Rio Hondo College. Golden West draws an opening bye.

Tonight's opening volley should be an informative one

Santa Fe Cagers At Chapman

With two wins in their last three starts for a 3-9 record, College of Santa Fe (N. Mex.) begins an Orange County invasion tonight at 7:30 against Chapman at Orange High School.

Then Wednesday the Knights move on down the road to UC Irvine for an 8 p.m. contest.

Chapman has dropped eight games in a row — the last three at home and four here in all since winning its first two outings at Orange.

Although 3-1 at home, UCI slipped to 4-6 overall by losing its last three games of 1976 on the road.

"We've worked hard in practice. When you're losing, you work all the harder," says coach Rich Rider, whose Panthers have blown some good leads and lost twice by one point and another time in overtime.

"We're all healthy so if we don't get snafked we still could turn things around."

He plans to return seven-footer Guy Kinsley to the starting lineup after experimenting in a one-game switch to El Modena High. Ty Bauler and Tim Davis complete the front line with Reg Newson and John Johnson at guards. Bauler is averaging 13.2 points, Newson 12.4, Johnson 11.9, Davis 11.8 and Marv Thurman 10.

Santa Fe has two returnees from a 3-20 team in 6-4 Tom Flack, who averaged 15 points, and 8.5 scorer Tim Dowdell (6-0). Larry Gordich (6-10) and Greg Pope (6-3) are freshmen starters while 6-4 Phil Todd is JC transfer.

Scott Jenkins and Lou Stephens share the UCI point lead at 128.

They are the only sure starters, according to coach Tim Tift, who resumed drills after a layoff Monday and can scout tonight.

Kirk Christ is expected back from illness, but the academic status of Kevin Davis remains unsettled so another freshman may be added to the varsity "because we need someone scoring coming off the bench."

as Cypress hosts Los Angeles City College, Rio Hondo visits Los Angeles Southwest and Harbor opens at Santa Monica.

Several of coach Johnson's Chargers have taken turns being heroes while Cypress scored impressive wins over Santa Ana, Pierce, Saddleback, Grossmont, Cerritos and Pasadena, but the most consistent individual continues to be 6-6 sophomore forward Tyrone Branan.

Averaging 19.3 points per game, Branan is the key to Cypress' success and title hopes. He's a major force on the boards and directs the tenacious Charger defense, a glove-tight man-to-man.

Barry Weston, Rick Cromwell, Bob White, Jim Sargent, Bob Diaz and Dave Shuts also play prominent roles and will have much to say about the Cypress bid for a championship.

The conference has numerous individual standouts. Talented players to watch will include Pete Aronchick and Matt Jordan, Ray Potlongo at L.A. City, Steve McGuire and David Koza at Rio Hondo, Carl Washington, Ken Anderson, Bob Johnson and Jim Batiste at Harbor and Golden West's Tom Rowan, Todd Zibel, John Hirschler, Dan Bush and Darrell Briggs.

Southern Cal Conference teams will play two rounds of conference games culminating Feb. 22 with the champion advancing to the Sunbelt-State JC Tournament at Fresno in March.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football League shrugged off scores of "kooky" suggestions and decided to let Mickey Mouse, brotherhood and 104,000 spectators reign at halftime in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"In the past we have shot cannons, staged mock wars and hoisted giant gas-filled balloons," Bob Cochran, the NFL's broadcast coordinator, said Monday. "This one will be a folksy show, produced by Walt Disney Productions, and everybody will get into the act."

Super Bowl XI matches the Minnesota Vikings and the Oakland Raiders but, if tradition prevails, the football game may be overshadowed by halftime ceremonies.

For the first time, every ticket holder — there will be 104,000 of them in the Rose Bowl — will have a part in the show.

"Midway of the second period, 90 Eagle scouts will pass through the stadium, handing out cards of four colors," Cochran said. "Pompom girls will stand in front of each of the 26 sections, choreographing the card colors."

Television viewers will benefit most from the spectacular. A television camera in the Goodyear blimp overhead will catch a sea of moving, dancing colors changing from one configuration to another.

"The scene," said Cochran, "will be a gigantic kaleidoscope — a non-stop, 12-minute spectacular."

The game will be televised nationally by NBC.

The halftime show will be embellished by 600 Los Angeles school kids, going through maneuvers on the infield: A 250-piece marching band with vocal support from Disneyland's Kids of the Kingdom and the march of the Mickey Mouseketeers.

The theme will be based on the "It's a Small World" attraction at Disneyland and Walt Disney World, with such musical numbers as "It's a Big, Wide Wonderful World," "Una Paloma Blanca" and "Brotherhood of Man."

"It will be unprecedented," Cochran said, "and it will all be on the ground."

The NFL official acknowledged that some previous halftime undertakings had been overly ambitious and not without some unnerving consequences, such as the notorious foulup in Super Bowl IV at New Orleans in 1970.

There, the presentation got off to a shaky start when one of the flame-powered "Around the World in 80 Days" balloons, with a horned Viking in the basket, was caught in a gust of wind and slammed into the stands. No one was injured.

Also, Pat O'Brien sang the national anthem a beat ahead of the band, Al Hirt and Ella Fitzgerald never got in tune. A $50,000 float of a Mississippi River boat never got through the portals. And in a recreation of the Battle of New Orleans, British red coats wiped out Andrew Jackson and his Tennessee Sharpshooters.

"We've had all sorts of offers this year," Cochran said. "One man wanted to jetison into the stadium with the coin for the teams to flip. Another wanted to fly from atop a Los Angeles building with self-made wings. We had all sorts of kooky suggestions. We feel safe with Disney."

Boxer May Leave Prison Champion

THOMASTON, Maine (AP) — When Ricky Burgess is released from Maine State Prison next month, he's hoping to leave as a boxing champion. The 27-year-old Waterville, Maine, native will be fighting Billy Duquette of Brockton, Mass., in the Portland Exposition Building on Thursday for the vacant New England junior middleweight championship.

The fight will mark the first time that a prison inmate has competed for a professional boxing title, says promoter Sam Silverman.

Silverman said the title became vacant when Irish Jacky Smith moved into the middleweight ranks. At first, the Maine Boxing Commission announced the Burgess-Duquette fight would be only for the right to fight Smith for the title, but it later gave the bout sanction as a title bout.

In trouble with the law for much of his life since being nabbed for truancy at age 11, Burgess views the upcoming bout as one of the biggest breaks to come his way.

He was serving a 1-to-2-year sentence for being an accessory after the fact on a breaking and entering charge when he came in contact with the prison's recreation director, Al Barlow.

"Barlow took me under his wing, turned my head around, made me gym supervisor and got me back on the boxing training track," said Burgess. "I've seldom missed a workout in the last five months."

He trains at least four hours a day in the well-equipped prison gym. Four miles of daily roadwork are lapped off in the yard during good weather, inside the gym in bad.

The 155-pounder has been boxing for eight years, six of them as a professional. He claims to have chalked up about 50 victories against eight losses and a draw.

He said he's gotten into good shape through steady training and an adequate prison diet, but still yearns for an occasional steak.

Burgess, who has been at Thomaston for about six months on his current conviction, said the prison "has been behind me 100 per cent."

The prison lined up four fights, and he won them all — two by knockouts. One came in November, when he returned to Waterville to defeat a neighborhood rival in a benefit card for Cerebral Palsy.

Burgess says he's confident about the future. Scheduled to be released on parole in February, he's planning to marry his fiancée, Wanda Moulton, and hopes to land a trucking job while continuing his boxing career.

Spurs Thrash Buffalo With 17-Point Spree

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, paced by forward Allan Bristow, struck for 17 unanswered points in the second half to roll to a 142-109 thrashing of the Buffalo Braves in a National Basketball Association game Monday night.

The Braves trailed 87-76 in the third quarter before the Spurs blew the game open, raising their lead to 104-76. Bristow hit seven of his 13 points in the flurry.

The victory was San Antonio's sixth straight at home and 15th in 17 home outings. The Braves fell to 4-15 on the road.

The Spurs were sparked by guard George Gervin's 24 points and 20 each from

Bengals, Steelers 'Drift Away' NFL Players Meet Amid Rift

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals players have all but drifted away from the National Football League Players Association, which will hold its winter convention in Las Vegas this week.

Only two members of the team — player representative Tommy Casanova and rookie Scott Perry — have bothered to pay their dues for 1977.

A year ago, nearly half the team belonged to the organization.

"Our players didn't like the direction the players' association was taking," said Casanova in a telephone interview from his home in Crowley, La. "That was the only form of protest they had."

Casanova explained he paid his dues simply because he felt it was in the best interest of the team. He said when he attends this year's winter meetings, he does not want to be told: "If you didn't pay your dues, shut up."

Casanova admits he doesn't know who to believe in the struggle between NFLPA executive director Ed Garvey and the owners concerning the long expired contract between the two sides. Garvey hasn't been able to reach an agreement with the owners, but he has been able to beat them in the courts.

"Management tells us they have us crawling to them; Garvey says we have management crawling to us. It's kinda comical. You get two different stories."

"These court suits (which struck down the college draft and the Rozelle Rule) are good," said Casanova. "They've brought the owners down a little bit. The owners have got to come to us a little bit now."

The Bengals all-pro safety is certain about one thing.

"The owners are going to do some serious bargaining," he said. "Football is about ready to go on the rocks."

The Bengals rank along with the Pittsburgh Steelers as two of the teams with the fewest NFLPA members. The Steelers have no members in the organization.

On the other hand, teams such as Washington, Atlanta, New England and Los Angeles have nearly all of those eligible signed up.

Jet's Rapid Lady Vs. Tough Field

Jet's Rapid Lady, a winner in four of her last five races as a sophomore, gets her four-year-old season under way tonight against Tru Tru's Debut and a strong field in the Wrightwood Purse at Los Alamitos.

Be Merry, Valley Superstar, Top Bug Too, Pacific Dan, Mr. Capri, Dial Jester, Wicked Warrior and Sun Shine join the field for the feature event.

Cadillack and Jet Don are on the also eligible list for the 350-yard race.

Jet's Rapid Lady had four consecutive victories dating back to last June before she wound up seventh in a division of the St. Nicholas Express on Dec. 24. She won six of 10 races and finished worse than third only twice during her sophomore season.

Le Fleur, the fastest qualifier to last month's Golden State Futurity, is scheduled to get her first start as a three-year-old against a classy field of sophomores in the eighth race.

The Azure Te filly will be going against such outstanding speedsters as Doc's Express, The Candidate, Moon's Kinda Man and Chlidip.

Swingtime Making S. Anita Debut

Stakes willing Swingtime, idle since mid-summer, will return to competition for her 1977 debut in Santa Anita's headline Wednesday.

The six-furlong filly-and-mare contest, offering a purse of $16,000, will mark the daughter of Buckpasser's first non-stakes start since she made her American bow late in the 1976 Santa Anita campaign. Her entire two-year-old and three-year-old seasons were spent racing abroad for her former owner, Geraldine Riley.

Swingtime recorded triumphs in divisions of the Brentwood and Hawthorne Handicaps before being sold.

Jays Sign Allen, Ex-Angel Pitcher

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays, who begin play in baseball's American League this spring, announced Monday the signing of second baseman Pedro Garcia and right-handed pitcher Lloyd Allen.

Signing of the two players who had been released by their previous clubs brought the Blue Jays' roster to 39 players.

Garcia, 26, was released this winter by the Detroit Tigers. He was originally signed by the Milwaukee Brewers where he played 3 1/2 years. He was traded to Detroit midway in the 1976 season and in 118 games last year, batted .204 with four homers and 29 runs batted in.

In 1973, Garcia was runner-up to Al Bumbry of Baltimore for AL Rookie of the Year honors.

Allen, 26, was originally signed by the California Angels and pitched in 159 major-league games with the Angels, Texas Rangers, Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals. He was released by the Cardinals this winter.

In 1976, Allen pitched for Tulsa of the American Association where he compiled an 11-6 record with a 2.81 earned-run average, third best in the league.

Her final two starts of 1976 were in the Milady and Wilshire handicaps where she finished second and third to Bastonera II and Miss Toshiba, respectively, California's top distaffers of the season.

Bill Shoemaker is set to handle Swingtime in her return, in which she will carry co-top weight of 121 pounds with Mystery Mood (A.L. Diaz) and Vol Au Vent (Don Pierce).

Making her first start since the fall Oak Tree meeting is Sun Festival, which will be handled by Darrel McHargue.

Recent Bay Meadows winners Nana Lee (Frank Olivares) and Crimson Palace (Enrique Munoz) are fresh from victories at Wednesday's distance and hold a condition edge over many of their rivals. Completing the field are Powerful Lady (Bill Major), Dan's Hooley (Roberto Gonzalez), Karaling (Angel Cordero), Pet Lable (Fernando Toro), and Winter Sleet (Francisco Mena).

Cold, Scouts At Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Cold, wet weather and a flock of professional scouts greeted collegiate standouts for the North and South as a week of practice began Monday for the Senior Bowl football game.

Despite the rough weather, practice began on schedule with Forrest Gregg of the Cleveland Browns at the North helm and Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins coaching the South.

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Serrano Again

The California Supreme Court last Thursday reaffirmed its 1971 stand, in Serrano v. Priest, that the property tax is an unfair means of financing the compulsory school system. The temptation is to welcome the new stand as an official acknowledgement of the unfairness — and the exorbitance — of property taxes. There will be halleluiahs coming, not only from the "poor" school districts the court meant to assist, but from suburbia as well.

Nonetheless, it is difficult to believe the justices acted with firm constitutional resolve. The decision seems more a reiteration of their predilection for ideologized visions of equality. Nor, in the long run, will the decision greatly benefit the quality of education.

The real world simply does not work the way the justices would have it enforced. They would have all sub-university education be "equal" — as elusive a concept as ever was — to all comers. Ultimately, we suppose, the state should be carved up into school districts of equal size, geographic as well as demographic. Why rest a design on the economic only?

Surely, if education means learning how the world operates, it means growing up mature. It means understanding there are certain disparities of livelihood, of home life, of intellectual equipment and, yes, even of social cruelties that can be surmounted only with individual initiative. It is abundantly clear that the nation's leaders did not all come from the "best" schools; many were graduated from what educational theorists, to whom you may now add state Supreme Court justices, thought the worst.

Furthermore in these times especially, when school systems everywhere function as enmeshed bureaucracy, in which youngsters can no longer write grammatically or perform computations, there is probably more hope in isolated backwater schoolhouses whose only violence is the noise of hydraulic furnaces. These are cozy reassurances of common sense, which has all but evaporated in the modern compulsory system.

So the court gave the state legislature less than four years in which to enact a substitute means of financing. In effect, the decision all but mandates a statewide property tax of some sort. California's political script for the rest of the decade is written: local government units hassling over ways to get local taxes down. That's not as happy as it sounds: the statewide tax will be new, additional, on top of the rest.

The so-called "voucher" plan, which has not enjoyed favorable reception in the courts thus far, will be re-examined. The plan, devised in the 1960s by the likes of Milton Friedman and Christopher Jencks, would allocate chits to parents who would then send their children to the schools of their choice. The plan has the virtue of reintroducing competition to the schools, and it is a positive response to the requirements of Serrano.

But the voucher plan too rests on shaky assumptions. Redistribution of personal wealth, filtered through government agencies, can never be "fair."

Better yet to arrange for tax credits and for a free-market system in which parents and students shop around for suitable classrooms. Why not the best? Why not liberty? Never mind what educational theorists say, ultimately the families themselves know best where to purchase instruction.

NATION'S PRESS Local Socialism

(The Gastonia Gazette, North Carolina)
Socialism, like twins, is something that happens to the other guy. It doesn't really relate to us or anybody we know personally. Sweden and Russia and places like that have socialism, and they're messing around with it in Washington and even in Raleigh, but there are no socialists in Gaston County. Check the party registrations if you don't believe it. How many friends and neighbors ever told you they were socialists?

Still...
The most classic example of socialism is a tax-supported school system; but that isn't really socialism because it's local and the people on the board are all good free enterprisers who hate socialism and are smart enough to know it won't work, right? So, cross that one off.

We have a city-owned power distribution system, which an objective observer might call an example of socialism, but there is not a single socialist on the city commission so how can that be socialism? Not a chance.

Now the city is thinking about some other enterprises which might be mislabeled socialism if we didn't know that there aren't any socialists around here.

The Insiders

In the fall of 1976, NBC treated its viewers on a series of Thursday nights to Taylor Caldwell's novel of political power and intrigue entitled "Captains And The Kings." Many of those viewers were surprised to learn that, even in the imagination of the author, if not in reality, there existed a behind-the-scenes group that controls elections in the U.S.A.

Such an organization does indeed exist. It contains names from the top levels of industry, labor, government, education, finance, entertainment and communications. It is the Council On Foreign Relations, Inc. or CFR, with headquarters in New York City. Of its total membership of 1,725, 1,152 reside in the Boston, New York and Washington areas, while the remaining 573 are scattered elsewhere.

The CFR is sometimes referred to as "The Eastern Establishment" or "The Invisible Government" or "The Insiders." Since its founding in 1921, its membership roster has provided hundreds of top-level appointments in the administrations of ten presidents, including Jimmy Carter.

Of the dozen and a half persons selected by (or for) Carter for cabinet-level jobs and announced publicly prior to Christmas Day, no fewer than eight are CFR members. They are: Cyrus Vance, Harold Brown, Ted Sorensen, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Michael Blumenthal, Joe Califano, Patricia Harris and Walter Mondale.

The head man at CFR is David Rockefeller, its board chairman. Its vice chairman is Carter's Secretary of State, Cyrus Vance. CFR directors include Carter's Treasury Secretary Blumenthal and Carter's National Security Adviser Brzezinski.

Based on policies pushed by CFR members in prior administrations, the prime dedications of the CFR appear to be: increased domestic socialism or collectivism with the attendant increased cost and power of government; disarmament of the USA along with increased exportation of U.S. products, weapons, technology and money to communist governments, thus enabling the merging of the USA into a one-world collectivist system of government. The code word for this among the insiders is "new world order" or if you prefer the Latin

Antiquated Defense

The latest edition of Jane's "All The World's Aircraft," the most authoritative annual on comparative air power in existence, has made the very alarming claim that the Soviet Union is so far ahead in military airpower that the U.S. might be forced to use nuclear weapons if war broke out between the two countries.

It documented its grim warning by contrasting our aging and rickety fleet of B-52 bombers of 1950 vintage with the vast aerial armada of Russia's sleek supersonic swept-wing bombers and fighters, being feverishly built by the Soviets. It urged quick production of our new B-1 bomber to offset this wide lead the Russians have.

By way of contrast, the publication cited Russia's fleet of over 100 new Backfire bombers, which can strike targets in the U.S. from bases inside Russia, flying at a speed greater than that of the British-French Corcorde. Yet the Russians continue to demand that this bomber be considered a tactical or close support weapon and therefore not be considered under the umbrella of the new SALT agreements. J.W.R. Taylor, editor of this publication, flatly stated that if we accede to this demand, we will in fact be lessening the chances for a lasting peace.

When one recalls that the companion publication, Jane's "Fighting Ships," recently gave a similar second rank rating to our navy vis a vis the Russian navy (an evaluation essentially seconded by no less an authority than retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt), one is forced to question the viability of our military forces to defend this nation in the event of a Soviet attack.

Yet our bemused liberals in Congress continue to opt for greater cuts in defense spending and to hold up production of our B-1 bomber, the long overdue replacement for the antiquated B-52.

Americans can only hope that

President-elect Carter, whose campaign rhetoric included an equally alarming promise to cut our defense budget by $15 billion (later toned down to $5 to $7 billion), will take heed of this warning and urge Congress to make whatever expenditures are necessary to regain our lead as soon as possible. Americans should write President Carter and their own representatives in Congress and demand this.

History's bloody trail of communist conquest, inexorable and on-going, assures us of one thing — we will not be second rate militarily very long, and still remain a free people.

County Politicking

The County Planning Commission has suffered a great loss by the recent removal of Ralph Benson as legal advisor to the commission. In my four years on the commission I have never known Mr. Benson to fall short of his responsibilities to the county and to its citizens in any of the legal advice that he provided.

I know that those who have served on the commission with me share my feelings and observations in this regard. Apparently Mr. Benson's legal advice, although professionally sound and correct, has not been satisfactory to certain members of the Board of Supervisors and we are left with the conclusion that Mr. Benson's removal could only be for political reasons.

The citizens of this county have suffered another loss in this, the latest of a series of board actions designed and masterminded solely to facilitate the political power of the board over the commission so as to accommodate the campaign fund tradeoffs that have become a way of life with certain members of the Board of Supervisors.

I for one can not condone the removal of any competent and highly-qualified individual with the outstanding character of Mr. Benson from a position of public trust. I sincerely hope the citizens of this county write to their supervisor and let him know of their dissatisfaction with this latest action.

The Terrible Nonsense of Licensing

By BUTLER SHAFFER

The licensing of professions has been one of the most dishonest of schemes foisted off onto the American public.

While theoretically promoted as a system for "protecting the public" from dishonest and incompetent practitioners of a trade or profession, the actual purpose of licensing has been to protect members of the profession from competition. This is accomplished through (1) limiting the entry of would-be-practitioners into the profession, and (2) controlling trade and pricing practices by threatening to remove the license of those who are too aggressive in seeking business.

Those who defend this system argue that licensing exams do not keep any "competent" person from entering the profession. "After all," they reason, "he has only to pass an examination to prove his competence." While this argument may have a superficial ring of truth to it, a closer scrutiny of the licensing system shows what any freshman college student has long known: whether one "passes" or "fails" an exam is, more often than not, determined less by what the student "knows" than the grading standard used by the instructor.

A really tough standard will result in a high failure rate than a more lenient standard. Thus, in such states as California, it is not uncommon for 50 per cent of the applicants for the state bar exam to fail, while the failure rate in less populous states is often below five per cent. Does this mean that California lawyers are ten-times more interested in "protecting" California citizens than, let us say, lawyers in the Dakotas? Or does it mean only that California lawyers are ten-times more concerned that lawyers from other states may be attracted to move into California to practice?

Those who seriously contend that licensing is designed to rid the profession of incompetents, should explain the so-called "grandfather's clauses." Whenever any profession is successful in getting licensing required for itself, there is invariably included in the enabling legislation a provision exempting present practitioners from having to secure a license. They are, instead, automatically granted one.

There is a terrible contradiction in this for the argument on behalf of licensing is always predicated on the contention that there are far too many "incompetent" and "unethical" practitioners in the trade. If this is so, then why automatically award a license to the very persons whose alleged inadequacies have precipitated the need for licensing? The reasons are rather apparent.

It is quite amusing to listen to the preposterous nonsense that has been offered by trade members as their rationale for limiting competition for themselves. In one state, a system of licensing was promoted to regulate those who make duplicate keys. The best scare-tactic that the promoter of this legislation could come up to a drug store to have duplicate key made, and the "unlicensed" clerk who waited on her might make an extra key, follow her home, and let himself into her apartment and attack her! That the individual who offered this brilliant piece of reasoning just happened to be president of a state locksmith's association was, of course, purely fortuitous.

A system of licensing is nothing more than a legal device for fixing prices, and eliminating competitors — all features we normally associate with monopolies. It is important to note, however, that this anti-competitive and anti-consumer racket is possible only because the state lends its coercive power to the practice to make it legally enforceable upon all members of the regulated profession. One who sought to engage in such a trade without having secured the permission of his fellow "competitors," would find himself subject to a court injunction, or a fine and/or imprisonment.

At a time when so-called legislation that serves to increase prices and restrict consumer free-choice, serious attention might well be given to eliminating one of the more harmful — and dishonest — "consumer frauds": licensing.

INSIDE LABOR

The World Welfare Record

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — An ancient wise man once admonished his peers to "anticipate charity by preventing poverty." More recently, hordes of less wise professionals in the poverty industry loudly proclaim that our system does little indeed, for the needy, the aged, the motherless and fatherless children of the inner cities, the handicapped, the luckless.

Well, some methodical research reveals that our much-harpooned capitalist United States spent $440 billion on social welfare of all kinds in fiscal 1976. That's right, billions.

Thus did the private and public "sectors" with hearts as open as their coffers, help the poor of our land. It's a note to be struck this Christmas-New Year's season.

Of this outpouring of billions the year round for everything from food stamps and home nursing for bedridden aged and on to training of minority youngsters for jobs and for income maintenance, and for health services, the public sector contributed $331 billion in fiscal '76. This "sector" is made up of your hometown, your state and the federal government.

It's a pity one must call in the auditors to refute the legions of self-appointed social "activists" who specialize in perpetual conscience-pricking. True, the time when government and national leaders shouldn't be needed must never come. But it does happen that the federal government disbursed 56 per cent of its total expenditures in 1976 on social welfare.

The public sector social welfare bill this past fiscal year was actually some $45 billion higher than the previous year.

This vast sum $440 billion worth of the people's money, went for programs which include public assistance, supplemental security income, food stamps, emergency employment and manpower training programs, as well as jobless insurance, aid to children, Medicare, Medicaid and home relief and many other types of cash payments to those drifting out of life's mainstream.

Thus, by adding the private sector contributions to what the federal, state and municipal governments distributed to the unfortunate and the aging — (that's the $440 billion) you find that this comes to over 27 per cent of America's gross national product.

This past fiscal year, this gargantuan social welfare expenditure rocketed at a swifter rate than did the gross national product. The welfare-health-income maintenance spending rose by 15.9 per cent in fiscal '76. But the GNP rose 11 per cent.

And, according to the government experts, 67 per cent of state and local expenditures were for social welfare in fiscal '76. That gets right to the town in which you live.

This isn't a story which lends itself to the swinging phrase of the macho metaphor. One can't Elizabeth Taylor statistics. But these do add up to a national sense of brotherhood (and sisterhood) much more munificent than that of any land any side of any curtain.

So much so that the government is beginning to tilt in the direction of ever-churning money machines. Before 1966, says a government report, the federal share of social welfare was less than half then being provided. By this past fiscal year, 60 per cent of these help-the-needy expenditures were federally funded. This jump in just one decade.

As these vast public purses open up, dirty hands reach in. I have estimated that up to $10 billion is being ripped off the anti-poverty system annually. The answer to this charge generally has been a "don't call us, we'll call you" response, from the highest bureaucrats here. They are men and women who have been in the federal woodwork for years.

Now comes Robert Fulton, a new Health, Education and Welfare Department administrator of the Social and Rehabilitation Service. He wasn't in office very long when he did return my call. We did meet. He did pledge to steamshovel the grafters out of the welfare trough. And he is.

On Dec. 16, Fulton reported that federal and state dollars "lost through errors in eligibility or overpayments had been reduced" from 16 per cent to almost 9 per cent recently, in just one program. This in what's called Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Since his office began the drive to slash "errors" through a "Quality Control Campaign," some $1.1 billion has been saved. Some 490,000 ineligible (about 175,000 families) have been cut from the welfare rolls.

This is an enormous sum. But still it's penny ante when compared with the $440 billion worth of the people's money. If there is any truth in statistics, there must be a fundamental, or a universal average appliance of the current percentage of "error." Some call it "fraud." If in one small section of the spoilage comes to almost 10 per cent, then there could be ripoffs and mismanagement costing this nation tens of billions of dollars annually.

It isn't the poor who bite the hand which feeds them, it's the thief on the backs of the needy who rips off the cash.

Too bad such rot spoils the image of this nation which gives more to aiding its poor than to any other pursuit.

Magi Explained

My girlfriend and I are writing regarding information on the article on last week's front page: "The Star of Bethlehem? Answer is Offered to Ancient Mystery". It incited our curiosity to do further research because we felt his theory was neither complete nor clear. For your readers who might agree with us, we'd like to share this information.

First — with reference to the Hebrew magi's (wise men). We found some interesting information commenting on who these magi were.

The Imperial Bible Dictionary says: "According to Herodotus, the magi were a tribe of the Medes, who professed to interpret dreams, and had the official charge of sacred rites; they were, in short, the learned and priestly class, and having, as was supposed, the skill of deriving from books and the observation of the stars, a supernatural insight into coming events. Later investigations tend rather to make Babylon than Media and Persia the centre of full-blown magianism. Originally, the Median priests were not called magi. From the Chaldeans, however, they received the name of magi for their priestly caste, and it is thus we are to explain what Herodotus says of the magi being a Median tribe." (Also J.C. Muller in Herzog's Encyc.).

The name "magi" became current as a generic term for astrologers in the East." — The New Funk & Wagnalls Encyc., Vol. XXII, p. 8076.

How many of these astrologers "from eastern parts" brought "gold and frankincense and myrrh" to the child Jesus is not disclosed; there is no factual basis for the traditional notion that there were three. (Matt. 2:1, 11). As astrologers they were servants of false gods, and wittingly or unwittingly led by what appeared to them as a moving "star". They alerted Herod to the fact that the "king of the Jews" had been born, and Herod, in turn, sought to have Jesus killed. The plot, however, failed. Jehovah intervened and proved superior to the demon gods of the astrologers, so instead of returning to Herod, they headed home another way after being given "divine warning in a dream." Matt. 2:12.

However we would like to agree on his opening statements that "the star couldn't have been a mere physical star to go before and to stand over a house or even a village at one and the same time."

It is also notable that only these pagan astrologers "saw" the star. Their condemned practice of astrology and the adverse results of their visit, placing in danger the life of the future Messiah, certainly allow for, and even make advisable, the consideration of their having been directed by a source adverse to God's purposes as relating to the promised Messiah. It is certainly reasonable to ask if the one who "keeps transforming himself into an angel of light," whose operation is "with every powerful work and lying signs and portents," who was able to make a serpent appear to speak and who was referred to by Jesus as a "manslayer when he began," could not also cause astrologers to "see" a starlike object that guided them first, not to Bethlehem, but to Jerusalem, where resided a mortal enemy of the promised Messiah. — 2 Cor. 11:3, 14; 2 Thess. 2:9; Gen. 3:1-4; John 8:44.

We hope your readers find this information as interesting as we did. Thank you

New Law

I would like to take this opportunity to remind all Mobile home owners, and trailer owners, of the new law that goes into effect Jan. 1, whereby they will be allowed to put a "for sale" sign in their window, or on their trailer, if they so wish.

Until now, they have been denied this right, by park owners, allowing the owners and/or managers to discriminate against anyone they didn't want in the court.

There seemed to be a deal between dealers and park owners and/or managers whereby if a mobile home owner wished to sell his mobile home, he either had to put expensive ads in the papers, or sell it through a dealer, or depend on the court manager to, at his own discretion, tell anyone inquiring, whether or not there was a mobile home for sale in that court. Many times the home owner has had to sell at a big loss to a dealer or manager, who in turn, sold it for a huge profit!

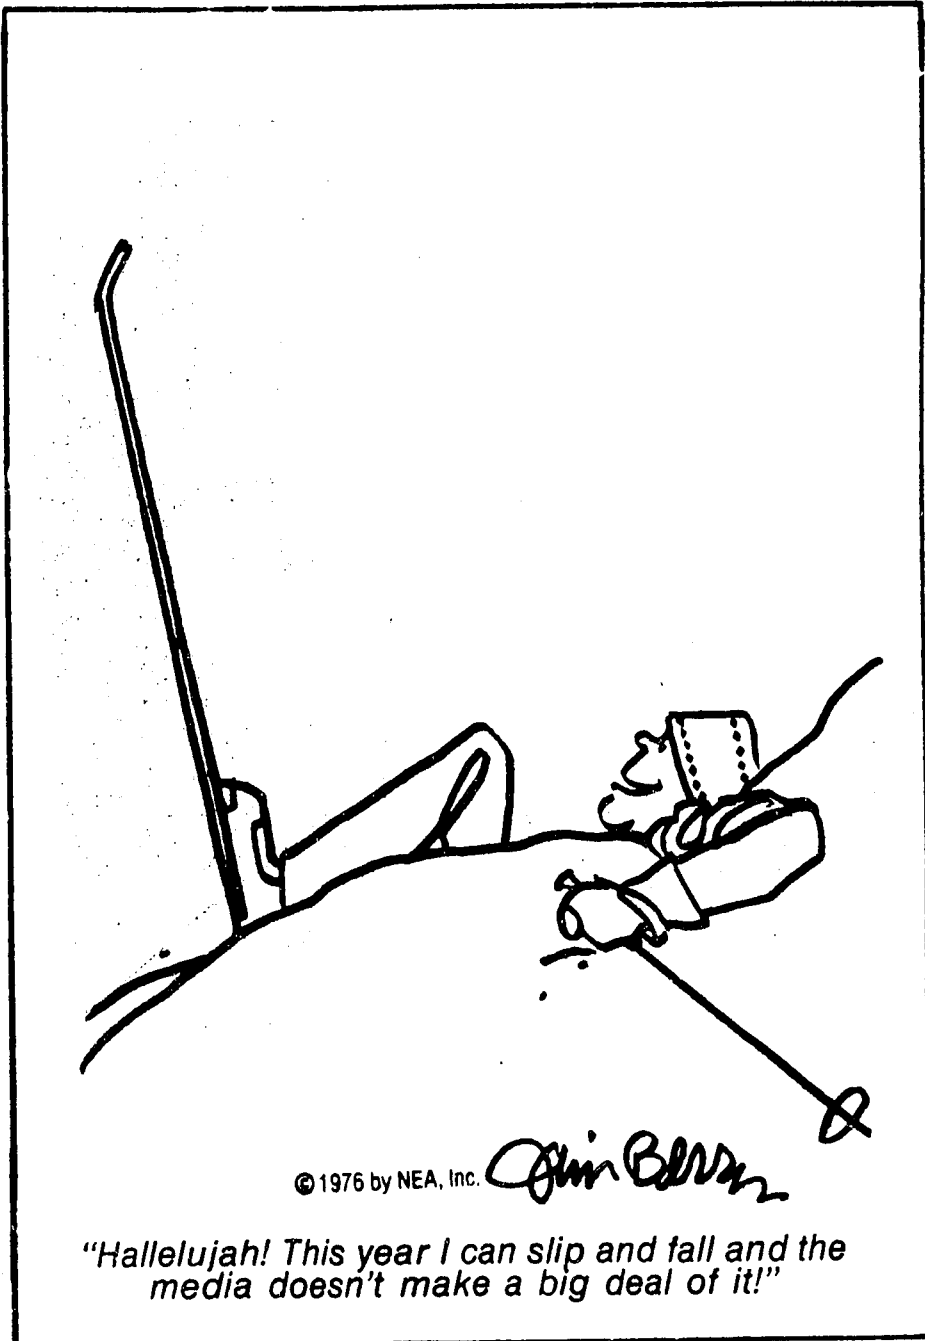

By the same token, anyone wishing to buy a mobile home or trailer, instead of being able to drive around a nice neighborhood, as you would when buying a house, looking for a "For Sale" sign, had to go through a dealer, or manager, and pay several thousand, yes I said thousand, (and can prove it!) dollars more than the owner himself had been asking!

This unfair practice was finally brought to the attention of the powers that be, and now, starting Jan. 1, mobile home owners and trailer owners, can display a "For Sale" sign just like any other person who wishes to sell something, whether it be a car, boat, unwanted chair, garage sale, or whatever.

This new law will go a long way in bringing mobile home prices back down to the supply and demand level, rather than the big monopoly racket it has been up to now!

Thank you for helping to spread the news

"Hallelujah! This year I can slip and fall and the media doesn't make a big deal of it!"

Jody And Jimmy: Too Close For Comfort

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The way Jody Powell explains it is that he was walking through a Georgia shopping center, minding his own business, when a man grabbed his hand, smiled, and said: "Hi, I'm Jimmy Carter and I'm running for governor."

That was a decade ago. The incident changed the face of American politics.

Powell is now the 33-year-old press secretary to the president-elect. But more than this he is the loyal companion and baggage bearer without whom next month's inaugural would be substantially different. If Jody Powell has arrived where he is because of Jimmy Carter, the reverse of this proposition is equally true and obvious.

Carter has said it himself, remembering how it was to get started in national politics. At first it was only "Jody and I." Family members were added. Then others. But in the lean days, the era of "Jimmy Who?" Powell was Carter's principal courtier; if he hadn't existed, he'd have had to be invented — if he could have been.

So when the new chief takes office he will have as his spokesman a devoted servant, a surrogate son, and to a very real degree a partner in power. The two are as close as hens on a January roost, as they say in Plains. It's expected that Jody will know whatever Jimmy knows. The relationship has few White House precedents.

Presumably, there is much to be said for the setup. For the first time in years, perhaps the first time ever, the hireling who speaks to the nation for the president will know absolutely what he's talking about. Besides this he will himself be part of the administration's decision-making process. What he says will have weight.

And yet the prospect is not altogether bright. The idea of Jody Powell controlling White House news for the next four years is, quite frankly, most disturbing. Powell is quick, witty, intelligent and should have no trouble administering the 30-person White House propaganda staff. But the job is simply too important for a president's alter ego.

Already it is clear that Powell is much more a professional Carterite than a professional communicator. He is not with his boss for money or for public service, but rather he is with him for love. For years it has been his duty to promote and protect Jimmy Carter, and no doubt the ethic will carry on into Washington.

It is true that all presidential press secretaries are fond of their employers. Ron Zeigler was so loyal to Richard Nixon he chose disgrace rather than morality as his guide. Ron Nessen, too, has been embraced by brainless devotion, growing contemptuous of any who would question Jerry Ford. Given human nature, it is probably too much to expect more dispassion and detachment in the work.

But Powell's fidelity to his champion is of a singular kind. When Jimmy is wounded, Jody feels the pain. During the campaign his periodic raging at critical press coverage took the character of personal bitterness. Conversely, when Powell liked coverage, he rewarded the reporter with special treatment. Without question he did these things because of his own stake in the campaign's future.

So, here is the insurmountable weakness of Jody Powell as the White House spokesman: his own stake in the regime's success is too high. He will not only be the mouthpiece but the architect of the administration. Doubts about it will therefore be doubts about him. As no other press secretary in history, then, he will have enormous personal and emotional reasons for coloring the news flow.

And surely the doubts will come. The Carter administration will almost certainly fall into severely controversial times. Soon enough Jody Powell will be locked in the White House briefing room with a gaggle of reporters demanding to know of the nuclear scare, or the Soviet blackmail, or the sex scandal, ad infinitum. What then?

Maybe Powell will rise to the occasions. It may be he will set aside personal gain in favor of public good and adhere to plain truth no matter the face it puts on his benefactor. One hopes, but is wary. Jody and Jimmy may be too close to be divided by propriety.

And I Quote

"You don't realize the importance or significance of such a thing (as citizenship) until you lose it."

— Iva Toguri d'Aquino, known during World War II as "Tokyo Rose," on her request for a pardon from President Ford.

Mr. A: Feeling deprived by society, decides to lash out by mugging Mr. B. in a dark alley.

Mr. B: as a result of the beating loses his health, his job, his family and takes up window washing and begging.

Mr. A: Is caught and sentenced to business management courses that enable him to become independently wealthy.

Mr. B: is waiting for Mr. A in a dark alley.

How Government Created Energy Shortage

By ALLAN C. BROWNFIELD
WASHINGTON — Now that he has been elected president, Jimmy Carter has the opportunity to abandon the political rhetoric about energy which so characterizes most of the discussion of that subject — on the part of both Republicans and Democrats.

The "solution" to our energy difficulties, which are real enough, are not price controls on natural gas, lowering the oil depletion allowance, increasing emission controls, and making the Arab oil producers into scapegoats. These, in reality, are all factors which have contributed significantly to creating the problem.

Government intervention in the economy is the single most important cause of all energy problems today facing the nation. Why, for example, are we so dependent upon oil? One reason is that the federal highway program accelerated such dependence at the same time that the nation's railroads were subjected to heavy taxes at all governmental levels and were, in addition, forced by government to submit to union featherbedding and other uneconomic labor practices. Thus, it was largely government planning and subsidies that shifted the nation from more to less efficient means of transportation.

That, however, is only one contributing factor. Another is the Federal Power Commission's policy which has held the price of natural gas far below the price at which it would be profitable to explore for new sources. If natural gas prices had been allowed long ago to move naturally, they would have stimulated greater development of supplies while encouraging a more realistic appraisal of various alternative energy forms.

Still another cause of our problem are the emission controls enacted by Congress. These lowered automobile gasoline efficiency, thereby increasing demand. At the same time, import quotas kept down the supply. The result, of course, was higher prices and sporadic shortages. Then, on top of all this, Congress in 1969 passed an act which lowered the oil depletion allowance to 22 per cent, making it more expensive and less attractive to search for new petroleum sources.

Thus, while government pays some Americans, such as farmers, billions not to produce, it penalizes oil and natural gas developers who would like to produce, but cannot do so under the controls imposed upon them by government.

Politicians have been demagogic in their repeated attacks upon the oil companies. They have counted upon the fact that the average voter is totally ignorant of economics and have not been mistaken in their calculations.

From 1945 to 1974, the price of gasoline increased 86 per cent. At the same time, the U.S. government increased the cost of first class mail from three to eight cents and the penny postcard to six cents — while it reduced postal service in half. Thus, while the price of gasoline went up 86 per cent, the government was increasing the cost of first class mail approximately 300 per cent and the postal card approximately 1,000 per cent — when you consider a 50 per cent reduction in service.

Why did oil prices increase dramatically in 1974? Was it simply the fault of allegedly greedy Arab oil producers? Such an analysis may serve the interests of some politicians, but it has nothing to do with reality. The sharp increases in the last three years were caused in large measure by the devaluation of the dollar — and our continuing high inflation. The fact that the U.S. government, in effect, declared bankruptcy and refused to convert dollars any longer into gold, had its impact upon Arab thinking. The Beirut newspaper Al Anwar, quoted Libyan Premier Abdel Salem Jalloud as saying that, "Libya will no longer accept payment in U.S. dollars. The dollar has lost its value and we want a currency that is convertible in gold." Similarly, the Shah of Iran declared that, "We have no interest in hoarding paper money in banks if inflation makes it worthless."

In his book, "The Biggest Con," Irwin Schiff states that in real terms oil prices have hardly risen at all: "On April 14, 1971, the day before the U.S. government repudiated its obligation to redeem Federal Reserve notes for gold, Middle East crude oil went for $2.33 a barrel. On Dec. 12, 1974, when rates were set at $10.73, gold went for $179.75 an ounce. So, on April 14, 1971, when 35 U.S. dollars equaled an ounce of gold, an ounce of gold bought 15.02 barrels of oil. However, on Dec. 14, 1974 an ounce of gold bought 16.75 barrels of oil so that the price of oil had been reduced 11 per cent in terms of gold, the only legitimate money measurement. Had the U.S. Government managed its fiscal affairs responsibly and held the value of a U.S. dollar at one thirty fifth of an ounce of gold, the price of oil in terms of dollars would not have risen at all."

Yet, despite our real energy problem, government continues to interfere and make matters worse. Government is still maintaining a ceiling of 43 cents per thousand cubic feet of natural gas. This must be decontrolled so that the price can seek its own realistic level. Domestic oil prices must be decontrolled. If Mr. Carter really wants to move in the proper direction on energy, the best advice is: get the government's hands off of the industries which provide energy and let them do their job! Demagoguery may get you elected, but it won't increase our energy supplies.

A 'Shadow Government' For America?

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

CHICAGO — "We have demonstrated in New Hampshire," asserted Gov. Mel-drim Thomson Jr., "that conservative principles can produce results and fulfill the promise and confidence of the Founding Fathers of this Republic."

Thomson last November was reelected to another full term because he had given the citizens of his state an honest and frugal government.

New Hampshire has no income tax, no sales tax and ended its fiscal year with $6 million surplus in the state treasury.

It also has the lowest unemployment rate in the nation. This record is nothing short of remarkable when you survey the "State of the Union" of all other individual states and at the national level.

Thomson was in Chicago to deliver an address titled "A Conservative Look at the State of the Union" at a national conference of the Conservative Caucus, a 200,000-member grass-roots effort formed in the last two years.

As national chairman of the caucus, Thomson believes that the political alternative for Americans is the New Hampshire experience applied to the state and national levels. In line with this, the caucus national director, Howard Phillips, unveiled a concept that has the potential for changing the very nature of our political life.

As both Thomson and Phillips explain it, most Americans are not certain that conservatives can govern if given the chance.

"If conservatives are to ever govern America," they assert, "we must first persuade our fellow citizens that our goals are consistent with their interests — that our vision for the nation deserves their confidence."

What they plan to unveil shortly after Jimmy Carter takes office is a "conservative shadow government," similar to what has been in operation in British political life for decades. The party out of national power appoints various individuals to be responsible for individual phases of the national government and they speak for their party, posing alternative policies to the party in office.

In the past, the major and principle weakness of the Republican Party has been its failure to communicate clear alternatives to the Democratic Party when it was in power during the Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson years. Now having lost the White House with Gerald Ford and with the inauguration of the Democratic administration led by Mr. Carter, the same problem faces the party.

The Conservative Caucus' concept of a shadow government that consistently poses alternative policies to the Carter administration puts the Republican Party in an embarrassing position. The GOP must either devise a similar shadow government, thus running the risk of stealing the idea from the Conservative Caucus, or refuse to adopt the idea and be accused of offering no real alternatives.

The caucus also is planning in conjunction with its shadow government to deliver a "Conservative State of the Union" statement in February in which it will critique the Carter-Democratic State of the Union, but at the same time will offer its own "vision of the future."

Both Thomson and Phillips, spearheading the Conservative Caucus, are clearly blazing new political paths. What most of the media did not grasp in the unveiling of the shadow government concept here at the national conference is that it represents a realistic compromise to an outright formation of a third party.

The caucus' shadow government will have the effect of outflanking the Republican Party as the alternative public opposition to the Democratic Carter administration in power.

Yet, at the same time the caucus has grown spectacularly since its founding two years ago by appealing to conservative Republicans and Democrats.

'Tony Orlando And Betty' Why Not?

By MICHAEL KILIAN
Chicago Tribune

As much as I am interested in the migratory habits of unwed pregnant movie actresses, I try my best never to read gossip columns.

One of the few occasions when I do read them, I always seem to come upon frightening little items like the one I read the other day. Indeed, my bones jangle with a nervous chill just to think about it.

It reminded me of the little gossip column item I encountered some years ago which said that Sargent Shriver had tired of being ambassador to France and was thinking about returning to the United States to get back into politics.

I thought nothing of it then, but a few months later found myself having to endure the screeching horror of the McGovern-Shriver campaign.

I thought nothing of this little Ford item, but then I did begin to think about it, and my elbows began to knock. Ford? The William Morris agency? Talent?

The entire Ford family — Jerry, Betty, Susan, and those three forest rangers I can never tell apart? Going into Show Biz?

Time was when our distinguished former Presidents retired gracefully. Washington, Jefferson, and Jackson went back to their plantations and wrote thoughtful letters. Ulysses S. Grant wrote his memoirs. Grover Cleveland slipped off somewhere with his nubile young wife.

You'd think Mr. Ford would at least be content to follow in the late President Eisenhower's footsteps, leading as they do to the first tee. It's not so bad living quietly in Palm Springs on a $100,000-a-year pension and playing golf with captains of industry.

For $100,000 a year, I'd be happy if I were living noisily in Paramus, N.J., and playing golf with privates of industry.

Or even Phyllis Diller.

But the William Morris talent agency? I'll concede that we might have the makings of a good situation comedy here — a marvelous combination of Ozzie and Harriet, My Three Sons, and the Adams Chronicles. Mr. Ford's Whip Inflation Now presentation from 1974 would make an excellent pilot.

But do we want our President remembered by posterity for his Nielsen rating? Dancing the "Bump" for a nationwide television audience during the Republican convention was one thing, but do we want history to record "Tony Orlando and Betty?"

Whatever could the Fords be thinking? Perhaps the President really did enjoy being ridiculed live from New York on NBC's "Saturday Night." Perhaps he still is relying heavily on Ron Nessen for advice. Perhaps he saw Jimmy Carter on the recent Barbara Walters special and got jealous.

Maybe he learned about Barbara Walters' $1 million salary and got jealous.

Indeed, if a quarterback like Joe Namath can make a fortune doing shaving cream commercials, why not a center from Grand Rapids?

He'd better skip the hair spray stuff, though.

It's not that I really mind the Fords going Show Biz. I always did find them wholesome entertainment. What scares me is the example it will set for all his soon-to-be unemployed cabinet officials and aides and assistants.

In the past, such men have taken jobs with defense contractors and wealthy Washington lobby. . . er, uh, law firms. Or, more recently, they've become columnists with the New York Times, or celebrated journalists like convicted criminal John Dean.

Does this mean now a trend to The Tube? Oh dear. "B-I Bomber" starring Donny Rumsfeld. "The Earl Butz Minstrel Hour." "The Henry Kissinger Show," starring Henry Kissinger and the Henry Kissinger Dancers.

I only wish Mr. Ford had leaked this to the gossip columnists before the election.

I would have voted for him

So many people set out on long foreign trips as soon as they retire. We suppose it's so they'll be out of the country until after their books are audited.

It is suggested that we can help predict earthquakes by observing the behavior of animals. Forget cats, though, they've got such a great sense of humor they'd act like a tremor was coming just for laughs.

The government says the air is less polluted than it was five years ago. We're still not sure if that means it's okay for us to inhale now.

Doctor Prescribes Protein Drink For Quick Weight Loss

DR. PAUL LESSLER, PROTEIN-SPARING FAST ADVOCATE

His Clients Hail From San Diego, Orange and Los Angeles Counties

BY KARI GRANVILLE
Register Staff Writer

Dr. Paul Lessler's patients come in all sizes — extra-large, large, medium and some even border on small.

No matter what the differences in their dimensions, though, all Dr. Lessler's patients call on him for one reason.

They all want to be a different size, a smaller size.

Dr. Lessler is a weight control specialist who sees obesity as more than just a problem. It is a disease, he says, which requires medical therapy, rather than do-it-yourself treatment.

According to Dr. Lessler, obesity can cause or complicate other conditions such as diabetes, back problems, high blood pressure, heart disease and emphysema.

And, obesity can take a psychological toll as well, he warns. "It's ruined a lot of people's lives. They don't go out. They don't go looking for jobs," Dr. Lessler says. "They get depressed and stay at home and eat more."

In all, there are an estimated 80 million Americans who are obese, Dr. Lessler says, citing U.S. Public Health Service figures.

And, he says, there is a difference between being obese and over-weight. "Obesity means you have too much fat," Dr. Lessler explains, be it 5 extra pounds or 200. "Over-weight means you have too much weight for your size," he says, pointing out that a muscular, 265-pound football player would fit this category.

What Dr. Lessler offers the patients who come to his Newport Beach and Beverly Hills offices, he says, is medical therapy by which they can lose weight quickly and learn to keep it off.

He doesn't offer a cure to obesity, since there is no known cure, Dr. Lessler says. Obesity is "usually a life-long" disease that can only be controlled, according to the doctor.

Dr. Lessler's patients lose their unwanted fat without the help of amphetamines, reducing aid candies and diets consisting solely of bananas or meals faithfully preceded by half a grapefruit.

In fact, what Dr. Lessler prescribes is no food, not even a bite, until a patient's "target weight" or new, smaller size is reached.

The diet program is called the protein-sparing fast. And, in place of food, dieters who follow Dr. Lessler's orders subsist on four to seven ounces a day of a pure protein liquid called Way-less, depending on their size.

In addition to the protein liquid, people on the fast take vitamins and nutrient supplements and are allowed to drink coffee, tea and diet soft-drinks.

In the first month of the fast, Dr. Lessler says, people lose between 20 and 25 pounds and thereafter lose 15 to 20 pounds a month.

And, he says, those lost pounds are nothing but fat. There is no danger that the weight-loss will come from what is called lean body mass or vital organs, according to Dr. Lessler.

"This is no magic liquid in itself," Dr. Lessler warns. Instead, he says, it merely serves to replace necessary protein while the body sheds unnecessary fat.

He adds, "People aren't hungry with this fast. They produce their own natural appetite depressant. It's like using biology for you rather than manipulating it with chemicals."

The diet was developed by researchers at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology about four years ago, Dr. Lessler says.

A book dealing with the fast, entitled "The Last Chance Diet" by Dr. Robert Linn, stresses that the diet should be used only when done under medical supervision.

"There are some people who this particular type of therapy is not made for," Dr. Lessler explains. People who have had recent kidney or liver failure or a heart attack can be included in that list.

To weed out those who can and can't, Dr. Lessler begins his patients' treatment with a battery of tests, including an electro-cardiogram, a five-hour glucose tolerance test and a health screening chemical examination that tests about 25 chemical aspects of the body.

Those who are given the go-ahead make daily visits to Dr. Lessler's offices for the first two weeks they are on the fast.

By the third week, Dr. Lessler says, patients become more accustomed to the absence of food. At this point, weekly visits replace daily ones until the "target weight" is reached.

Once that is accomplished, "the most important" aspect of the program begins, according to Dr. Lessler. It's called "re-feeding" and it is done gradually.

The patients work with a registered dietician to learn proper nutrition. Eventually, the dietician establishes an individualized "eating regime" for each person.

"Every person who is over-weight has this fantasy that once he loses the weight he will never gain it back," Dr. Lessler explains, adding that it just isn't so.

"Most obesity is caused by behavioral habits," Dr. Lessler explains. "Eating is a learned behavior and it can be unlearned and relearned in the proper manner," he says, adding that the aim of his program is to condition people to eat only when they are hungry.

As a supplement to his program, Dr. Lessler advises his patients to do aerobic exercises for cardio-vascular conditioning.

"Exercise doesn't really help you lose weight, but it tones up your body," Dr. Lessler says.

When therapy has been completed, Dr. Lessler advises his patients to come in every three to six months to catch those five regained pounds before they turn into 50.

Dr. Lessler admits that the protein-sparing fast is not the ultimate solution to obesity.

"This is not a panacea. This is not the final answer to the problem," Dr. Lessler says. "You can lose weight by a lot of different methods. No doubt about it."

But, he adds, "I believe currently it is the best medical therapy to lose weight. It is the quickest and simplest method to follow because it removes the choice of how much food to eat or what foods to eat."

Dr. Lessler, a trim and fit-looking 38-year-old, lost 45 pounds following the therapy he prescribes.

"I was a victim of a sedentary profession. I had the same bad eating habits as my patients," Dr. Lessler says of his over-weight years.

Dr. Lessler, a Los Angeles resident who divides his time between his Newport Beach and Beverly Hills offices, is actually an anesthesiologist turned weight control therapy specialist.

He received his medical degree from State University of New York and his anesthesiology training at Columbia University. He is a member of the teaching staff at the UCLA Medical School and the American Medical Association.

As Dr. Lessler explains, his interest in nutrition and his own weight problem led him into the study of weight control.

About a year ago he left anesthesiology to set up his Beverly Hills offices to specialize in weight control therapy. About two months ago, he branched out, establishing his Newport Beach offices, because "I had so many patients coming from the San Diego and Orange County areas," Dr. Lessler explains.

In fact, he says, "I've had patients come from as far away as Chicago, Texas and San Francisco."

Dr. Lessler finds his new specialty to be a satisfying one. "There is a lot of personal gratification in what I do," he says.

For example, he says many of his patients find new self-worth and a sense of accomplishment once they have slimmed down to a new size.

"They never realized they had so much self-discipline, self-control. It gives them a good feeling," he says.

But, he adds, "I can't make anyone want to lose weight. It has to come from within."

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

Can Landlubber Be Successful With Sea Grape?

BY LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Mother Earth: During a recent visit to my local plant shop I discovered a plant I'd never seen before. It was labeled "Sea Grape," and it came in two different "flavors"—hanging in a basket and growing up a pole. Even though it was just a green plant with large round leaves, I was attracted to it, so I bought one that was growing up a redwood pole. The store owner really didn't know too much about this plant, so I thought maybe you could fill me in on how to care for it. Thanks, just in case. —Linda from Los Angeles.

Dear Linda: The sea grape is a plant that isn't often seen outside the Southern California area as an indoor plant. Its botanical name is Coccoloba uvifera and it's native to Southern Florida and the West Indies, where it grows outdoors along beaches as a shrub or tree up to heights as tall as 20 feet. Outdoors, in its native habitat, it will bear white flowers and, eventually, purple fruit resembling grapes that they say (we've never tried it) make excellent jelly. Indoors, however, it can be cultivated as a foliage plant only.

Since yours is on a pole, the best thing to do is keep it in a bright spot, water frequently and, most important, keep pinching back the new growth at the top as it appears. This will keep the lower leaves from falling off and also help maintain their large oval shapes.

In the case of any plant that is growing up a stick—philodendrons, sea-grapes, and so forth, it is always wise to snip off the new top growth to insure a full, bushy plant all year long.

You haven't unearthed a real rarity, but you have bought a good, hardy plant, so put on your sailor's cap and prepare to embark on a long voyage with your new sea grape. —Happy growing!

NEW YORK IMPORTER SAYS

There Is More Than One Way To Skin A Snake

By JOY KLEIN

Women's News Service

NEW YORK (WNS) — Pinching a snake's belly, to most people a repugnant thought, is all in a day's work for Carmen Zollo, who each year purchases half the world's available supply of reptile and elephant skins.

"We have 12,500 feet of wall-to-wall exotic skins," says wife Bridget, an expert cutter, who works closely with her husband. They include everything from the South American anaconda (30 feet long) to the very rare Thailand anteater, to the relatively inexpensive whipsnake skins from India.

Carmen Zollo, born in Boston and a graduate of Boston University, summa cum laude, 16 years ago predicted the future scarcity of reptiles and the need for skins pre-cut for manufacturers.

He left his managerial position with a reptile shoe manufacturer to become the largest importer of exotic skins in the United States.

This has been no easy feat. There are strict federal and state laws governing the import of these skins. The Department of the Interior issues a federal registrar listing the endangered species status, a list that is ever-changing.

As of June, 1976, the Indian python, for which there is a major consumer demand, has been added to the vastly rising list of endangered reptiles. Carmen predicts that in the near future the elephant and all python snakes will also become seriously endangered.

Despite the import restrictions covering reptile and elephant skins, Carmen has managed to emerge as the nabob of this unusual profession.

Once the skins are cleared through the maze of customs regulations Carmen, along with his wife Bridget, matches and cuts these skins to the exact specifications of various manufacturers. Carmen's standard for quality makes this a laborious procedure. The bulk of the skins are cut primarily for cowboy-style boot manufacturers, who sell them for anywhere from $350 to $1,200 a pair.

Exotic skins are in such demand that large barrels are placed under each cutter's table. The scraps are then sold by the pound to various manufacturers for watch straps, wallets, belts and other small accessories.

The snake that first tempted Eve is currently tempting the contemporary Eves, who are purchasing the new and popular Art Deco and patchwork skin handbags, paying from $45 to $350 per bag.

Carmen recalls more bizarre customer purchases. A major law firm in New York has covered all of its office walls and chairs with expensive python skins. He estimates this to have cost thousands of dollars. An antique Buick automobile, the interior of which is completely upholstered in black and silver snake skin, travels the streets of New York.

Most people, however, prefer to see these skins less mobile. Pucci once designed a pair of red, white and blue snake-skin pajamas for a mere $1,000.

Carmen Zollo's business is listed in the Manhattan yellow pages under "Reptiles." Frequently he is called by some frantic person with pleas for help because his or her pet boa constrictor is throwing up. More common queries are from panic-stricken snake fanciers, fraught with anxiety when their pet serpents play their favorite game of hide-and-seek.

"I know it's in the house, but I can't find it. What shall I do?" All such questions are referred to the curator of the Bronx Zoo.

Although these skins have borne the stress of capture, slaughter, shipping, tanning and the manufacturing process, Carmen Zollo does not recommend their by-products for wear in inclement weather.

Some Robes Can't Go Out On The Town

Barbara Walters once related how she was invited to a state dinner in the Philippines. The dinner was to begin in ten minutes and Barbara had not brought along a long dress. She was about to decline the invitation when she had a flash. She would wear her red bathrobe, thus saving the day.

I have two acquaintances who have worn nightgowns to dinner parties. One was on the campaign trail and also didn't have a long dress and the other just thought her nightgown too pretty to waste in bed.

Don't those stories just turn your stomach?

I don't have a nightgown in my drawer that would get me through an eighth grade prom — or a house call from my doctor, for that matter. Somehow, I cannot imagine myself showing up for a state dinner in the Philippines in a pair of blue scuffies, a flannel robe with a stomach button missing, spit-up on the shoulder (the baby is 18 years old) and pockets bulging from nose tissue that smells like vapor-rub.

I took a turn the other day through the lingerie department and frankly, I can see how they got away with it. I've never seen so many beautiful gowns and robes in my entire life.

"Here's one that's a luv," said the salesperson.

She held up a satin gown. (The last time I saw anything that narrow, there was toothpaste in it.)

"I'm afraid not. I have made it a rule of thumb that I do not wear anything to bed I have to wear a girdle under."

"What about this one?" she asked, holding up a transparent bit of nylon.

"I have also promised myself that I would never wear anything in bed that you had to wear a coat over."

"What did you have in mind?" she asked.

"Something with sleeves, a turtleneck, and a zip-in floor."

Then she held up a robe that was a knockout. Let me put it another way. If I had worn it to the ball when my husband was elected governor, it's something I'd wear again to his inauguration as President.

"I'll take it," I said impulsively.

Last weekend, I took the plunge and decided to wear it as an evening dress. As I entered the room... all eyes were upon me when my husband looked up and said, "Hurry up and get dressed. We're leaving in ten minutes."

Whatya wanta bet? Barbara Walters could have worn the same thing and looked like a million dollars.

The Formula

PROTECTIVE HAND CREAM

Hands take a lot of abuse. We subject them to all kinds of indignities every day, and then many people spend a lot of money on a myriad of potions in an attempt to restore them to their normal condition. It is said that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. So why not protect your hands before you expose them.

Here's a simple inexpensive formula for a cream that works well. You'll need one tablespoon GELATIN, three-fourths cup GLYCERIN and one and a half cups WATER. Stir the glycerin into the water. Heat in top of a double boiler and add the gelatin. Cool and store in glass or plastic jars. To use, rub into hands thoroughly before exposure.

Clip & Save

Besides the satisfaction you get by making your own products for personal or home care, most formulas are real money-savers that enable you to beat the prices of store-bought items.

(Now you can obtain THE FORMULA BOOK 2, the exciting follow-up to THE FORMULA BOOK, with all new easy-to-make formulas for personal, home, and pet care. Price only $5.95. FOR MOMS, DADS

Stork Club Provides Quiet Before Storm

Knight News Wire
DULUTH, Minn. — It is not as well known as New York City's famed Stork Club, but the group of the same name at St. Luke's Hospital here has been gaining in popularity in its first year.

The Stork Club at St. Luke's is for mothers and fathers. A special dinner — just for mom and dad — is served at the hospital after the birth of their baby.

It's the last peaceful meal before the deluge, says Gary Kawula, food service director at the hospital.

To Larry and Louann Stanious, who are now home with their daughter Amy Marie, it was like a celebration.

"It certainly helped to bridge the gap between the hospital and home," said Louann. "The dinner was really good — there was everything."

Everything includes filet mignon, baked potato, salad, beans almondine and strawberry sundae. The champagne is served chilled and the bottle stood in the shadow of flowers and on snowy white linen in sharp contrast to the traditional hospital tray.

Kawula said he realized early in the year that mom was on the sixth floor eating from her hospital tray, and dad was often downstairs sipping a malt through a straw and eating a tuna sandwich.

"It was a patient-oriented pattern, and we thought that something should be done," Kawula said.

Each mother selects the evening she wants the Stork Club treatment. It's usually the night before she goes home — the "quiet before the storm."

Music Theatre Guild Plans Gathering

The Musical Theatre Guild of Newport Beach will hold its first gathering of the new year at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club, 1601 Bayside Drive, Corona del Mar.

Beginning with coffee, the affair will include a business meeting scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. and a special musical program set for 11:30.

Jeanne Keller Bentley, a resident of Laguna Hills, will accompany herself on the piano as she sings "There's No Business Like Show Business" program. Miss Bentley has appeared in nightclub acts in Palm Springs and Europe.

Following the program, luncheon will be served and may be attended by prospective members as well as members. Luncheon reservations may be made at the club.

NEW OFFICERS — An installation dinner will be held for new officers of the Silver Anchor Auxiliary of Huntington Intercommunity Hospital, Huntington Beach, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Newport Beach Marriott Hotel. Helen McGinley, right, has been reelected president. Serving with her will be Catherine Meurer, left, and Kathy Sprague, vice presidents. Also, Patti Ornelas, vice president; Christine Buck and Corliss Elliott, secretaries; Lillian Rose, treasurer; Jean Brunick, scheduling; Trudy Smith, public relations; and Elena Boulter, junior advisor. Following the installation, the Marion Meyer Award to the outstanding volunteer of the year will be presented by Richard Grundy, hospital administrator. During 1976, the volunteers have donated more than 7,500 hours to the hospital and raised $2,500 in student medical scholarships.

Three Movies To Be Shown In NB Library

A screening of three films, sponsored by the Newport Beach Public Library will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 5, in the multi-purpose room adjacent to the Mariners Branch Library, 2005 Dover Drive, Newport Beach.

"One-Eyed Men are Kings," a 1974 Academy Award winner, is a tale of contemporary life in Paris, told entirely without words.

"Braverman's Condensed Cream of Beatles" shows the personal and musical evolution of the Beatles rock group from their youthful beginnings to more sober days of social consciousness.

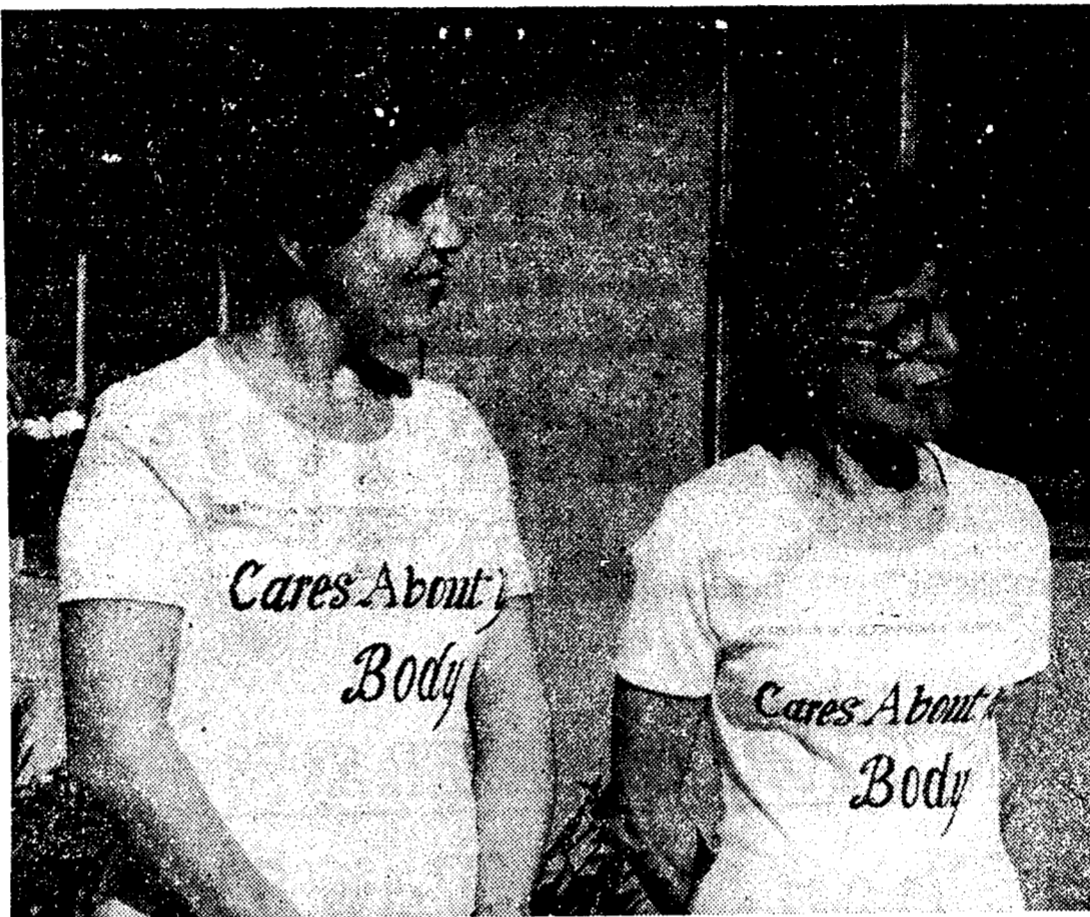

"Solo" is a visual portrayal of the efforts of a mountain climber to ascend and descend a snow-covered peak. There is no charge for admission.

Powers' Speaker Plans Program For Y-Women

A presentation on figure control, poise and confidence will be given by Bobbie Gee of the John Robert Powers modeling school, Orange, during the meeting of the South Orange County Y-Women. The event will begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 6, in the South Orange County YWCA, 1411 N. Broadway, Santa Ana.

The meeting is open to the public, and child care will be provided.

ANAHEIM ANGELS
Anaheim Angels Chapter of American Business Women's Association will meet at 7 p.m. today in Marmac's Prime Rib Restaurant, 12777 Knott St., Garden Grove. A social hour at 6 p.m. will precede dinner.

T' TIME — Employees, patients and volunteers at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital Beach are currently sporting T-shirts emblazoned with their new slogan, "Hi Hospital Cares About Your Body." The shirts are available to the public in children's sizes 2-4 and men's and women's sizes 18-20, and may be purchased through Silver Anchor Auxiliary members at the hospital, 1772 Beach Blvd. Proceeds will be used for medical and nursing scholarships. Modeling the shirts are auxiliary vice president Patti Ornelas, left, and treasurer Lillian Rose.

The special Saturday meeting will allow members who cannot attend the regular weekday meetings to be present. Several Orange County girls currently enrolled at Smith, will also attend.

Any alumnae or interested students wishing to participate may call the club president, Mrs. John T. Smith of Irvine, for further information.

Short People Find 'Heightism' Exists In Business World

By JACKIE ROEDLER
Knight News Wire

Short people are like Avis rent a car. They have to try harder.

At least, that's the conclusion of one of the country's most successful personnel authorities.

Robert Half, the 5-foot, 10-inch president of Robert Half Personnel Agencies, Inc., of New York City, which has more than 50 offices throughout the country, believes the careers of millions of Americans have been hampered — and sometimes destroyed — because of society's negative attitude toward shorter people.

Half maintains there is hard evidence to substantiate the charge that a person's lack of physical stature is far too often interpreted to mean that he or she is also lacking in such qualities as character, personality and skill.

In effect, he said, "people are often rewarded just because they're tall."

Although Half contends that discrimination against the short, in general, and in the job market, in particular, is still very much with us, he's somewhat encouraged by Jimmy Carter's election victory over Gerald Ford.

Half points out that in each of the presidential elections from 1900 through 1968, the taller of the two-major party candidates always won.

It wasn't until the 1972 election when Richard Nixon, 5 feet, 11 1/2, topped George McGovern, 6 feet, 1, that the pattern was finally broken.

And Jimmy Carter's (5 feet, 9 1/2) win over Gerald Ford (6 feet, 1) may, says Half, "reflect a change in the way we evaluate and choose our national leaders."

While the election could mark a turning point for the nation's short Americans, Half said, "heightism" remains an "unhappy fact of life for countless men and women, even in this supposedly enlightened age."

Heightism, Half said, is the term coined by sociologist Saul Feldman of Case Western Reserve University to describe the damaging prejudicial attitude toward the short.

As Feldman, who is 5 feet 4, told the American Sociological Association: "To be less than average height in American society is to fall short of the mark in almost all aspects of everyday life."

Half became interested in the short-tall question, he said, because "way-out prejudices have always fascinated me."

Earlier he did a study on weight and Jobs, and he found that over-weight people generally earn less than people of normal weight.

"Unfortunately, people are hired by image," he said. "This means that people are hired because of looks rather than ability."

Half referred to a study of University of Pittsburgh graduates that revealed men 6 feet, 2 or taller received starting salaries 12.4 per cent higher than equally qualified men who stood 6 feet or less.

And tall men entering the education professions, he said, averaged 10 per cent higher salaries than their shorter counterparts.

Although short women may be positively looked at as being "petite," Half said they're not immune from prejudice in the job market.

Those women 5 feet, 3 or less placed through the University of Pittsburgh's educational placement service earned measurably less than their taller female classmates, Half said.

While small people may be discriminated against in the job market, it certainly doesn't mean short people are prohibited from succeeding in a big way.

One striking example of success by any measure is James P. McFarland, the 5 foot, 5 board chairman of General Mills.

Although height and weight still are included on most job applications, Half said, he thinks eventually these questions will be outlawed.

"Imagine," says Half, "what a poorer place the world would be today if height had been used as an excuse to deny opportunity to Christopher Columbus, Andrew Carnegie, John Paul Jones, Pablo Picasso, Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Fiorello LaGuardia, Lawrence of Arabia and Arturo Toscanini — all of whom were under 5 feet, 5."

Installation Set Wednesday By Beauceant

New officers of Santa Ana Assembly No. 61, Social Order of the Beauceant will be installed at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Santa Ana Masonic Temple.

Mrs. C.B. Hamilton will be the new president, assisted by Mmes. Gerald Udell, oracle; Eugene Piantoni, first vice president; Richard Meeder, second vice president; Perry Schroeder, preceptress; Laurence Jordan, recorder; Robert Thomas, treasurer; James Graham, marshal and Milan Pakaski, assistant marshal. Nine other officers will also be installed.

Also taking their oaths will be Mmes. Charles W. Niblack, director of music; Raymond Jones, standard bearer; Walter L. Coleman, color bearer; Danis S. Kimball, mistress of the wardrobe; C. Robert Beck, daughter of the household; Guy Vanderstraeten, inner guard; John M. Lamson, outer guard; Gordon H. Purdy, instructor and C. Fred Schroeder, prompter.

A reception will follow in the temple, chaired by Mrs. Roy Wheeler.

YW Workshop Will Focus On Fashion

A 10-week fashion coordination workshop will begin at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday in the South Orange County YWCA, 1411 N. Broadway, Santa Ana. Fashion coordinator Marcia Yust will present such topics as reorganizing a wardrobe, accessories, choosing clothing, achieving a total look and hair styling.

There is a fee for the course, and the Y may be contacted for registration and information.

Not-so-simple case of caviar stains

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Recently I served a black caviar spread to my guests and it made stains on my white tablecloth that I cannot wash out. How can I remove these caviar stains? — MRS. M.Z.

DEAR MRS. M.Z. — Caviar is not an everyday food so I can find no stain removal suggestions for it specifically. Since caviar is fish eggs you might try the following remedy suggested for LINENS stained by eggs or meat juice. Soak in cool water. Apply unseasoned meat tenderizer to stain, keep moist and when satisfactory results are attained rinse out in warm water. Good luck for this is just a gamble. Repeat if necessary. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — One of my Pet Peeves is with pattern companies for not having more patterns for costumes that can be worn on various occasions. It seems they could be a standard item that would seldom have to be changed. — SHARON.

DEAR POLLY — Those who take camping trips might like the following. Take a new trash can along to wash in. The kids will love this. Clothes could be stored in it for the trip home and then use it for the trash. Also save old clothes and socks and take them along to wear while camping, even old mismatched socks could be worn. Then nobody has to then worry about their clothes, since they can be thrown away as they are taken off. Of course, they would be put in the proper trash containers and not be left scattered about the camping site. — KATHIE.

DEAR POLLY — I clean cloth shoes by spraying them with rug shampoo at night, let them dry and then brush the next day and they look like new. (Test first to see effect of spray on color and fabric.) — KIT.

DEAR POLLY — I just read a Pointer in the column suggesting vinegar on the hands for removing an odor. This was a good idea, but I thought I would tell the other readers that I use an after shave lotion for this. — FRANCES.

DEAR POLLY — To save drawer and cupboard space. I put the plastic lids from my bowls in plastic bags. The small lids are in one bag and the larger ones are in another. It is easy to find the right top and have no clutter. — MRS. F.F.

Uterine Cancer Linked With Overweight

LA JOLLA (AP) — University of California researchers say overweight women run a greater risk of uterine cancer after menopause than those who stay trim because fat in the brain converts female hormones to male.

Dr. Howard Judd said that deposits of fat in certain areas in the brain apparently are capable of converting the male hormone androgen into the female hormone estrogen.

"It is possible that most if not all estrogens produced in post-menopausal women come from this conversion mechanism," Judd said in an interview.

He said scientists believe estrogen may set the stage for cancer of the uterus by stimulating the smooth lining, or endometrium, to grow to a "hyperplastic" state — that is, enlarged because of an abnormal number of cells, creating an environment in which cancer might emerge.

"Since fat itself makes the conversion," he said, "the more obese a woman is, the more androgen she converts to estrogen," he said. "In fact, some obese postmenopausal women make as much estrogen through this conversion method as a premenopausal woman will produce in her ovaries."

Judd, an associate professor of reproductive medicine at UC's School of Medicine, is principal investigator for a $160,000 study recently awarded by the National Institute of Health to pursue his research.

Judd said that before menopause — when ovulation, or the production of eggs is occurring regularly — there is natural protection against the abnormal enlargement of the lining of the uterus.

During ovulation, he explained, the ovaries release the hormone progesterone, stopping the growth of the endometrium and preparing the walls of the uterus for the implantation of a fertilized egg.

Hunt Expanded For Oil Tanker Missing At Sea

BOSTON (AP) — American and Canadian aircraft and a Coast Guard cutter searched today for a missing Panamanian tanker with 38 persons and 8 million gallons of heavy oil aboard.

The search was expanded after efforts Monday failed to locate the 18,717-ton, 444-foot Grand Zenith or make radio contact with it.

Spokesmen for the Coast Guard, the utility expecting the oil, and the ship's agent said it was not unusual for a tanker to be delayed and temporarily "missing."

"The unusual thing is that it has not been heard from," said Coast Guard Petty Officer William Van Valkenburg. He said it is possible that all of the tanker's radios are not working.

The utility spokesman also expressed concern about the lack of radio contact.

Van Valkenburg said it is possible for such a tanker to sink without losing any of its cargo oil and, therefore, leave no tell-tale oil slick.

He said a tanker probably would lose some of its propulsion oil if it sank, but such oil "may come up slowly to the surface as a sheen rather than a slick and dissipate."

The Coast Guard said the tanker was last heard from about 60 miles south of Nova Scotia on Thursday.

The vessel left Teesport, England, on Dec. 19. It was headed for the Fall River, Mass., area, the Coast Guard said today.

A spokesman said earlier information indicated the tanker was expected in Providence, R.I., last Sunday, but later reports changed the destination.

The search today was to cover approximately 34,000 square miles of Atlantic Ocean from the tanker's last known position south of Cape Sable, Nova Scotia, to the Fall River area.

The southern section of the search area roughly parallels the rich Georges Bank fishing ground.

Carter To Put Business In Blind Property Trust

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Confessing to "some regrets," President-elect Carter pledged today to free himself of any possible conflict of interest by turning over his prosperous peanut business to trustees who will lease or sell it.

Talking to reporters outside the headquarters office of his peanut marketing partnership operation, Carter said he felt he had to "bend over backwards" because "I don't want to have any decision I make as president have an effect on my income."

The president-elect made his comments as aides unveiled a tough ethics code for top government officials. Carter's own action in trying to build a wall between himself and the family business was in line with the measures he is requiring of others.

"It was a hard decision for me to make," Carter said, adding, "I don't have any regrets about it." After a pause he continued, "There are some regrets." He said he plans to remove himself so completely from the Carter's Warehouse partnership, which is the basis of the family fortune, that he will instruct its trustees "not to even inform me" if they sell the business.

At the same time, Carter expressed concern about the minority interests in the partnership of his brother Billy and mother, "Miss Lillian." But he said he felt certain the trustees would act in a way that would not "upset their lives too much."

The ethics code requires presidential nominees, starting with Cabinet members, to divest themselves of any holdings that could conflict with their government duties and to submit detailed statements of their personal wealth.

In addition, for the first time, they must sign a pledge to remain in government for their full appointed term, unless dismissed sooner. They also must agree that for two years after leaving government they will avoid any private job that would cause them to deal with their old departments or agencies on matters that concerned them as federal officials.

"It is the objective of the new administration to avoid any conflict which could in any way influence any government officer except in the even interest of all the people," said the written guidelines.

Another announcement said Carter's interest in Carter Farms Inc., which consists of agricultural real estate in this area, and Carter's Warehouse, a partnership that buys peanuts from area farmers for subsequent marketing, will be transferred to a special trust.

It was not immediately clear what would happen to $25,781 in common stocks owned by Carter's wife, Rosalynn. A Carter aide had said last September that Carter would sell his stock holdings if elected.

Carter's interest in Carter Farms was valued at $348,444 on Dec. 31, 1975, and his interest in Carter's Warehouse was valued at $330,062.

The land owned by Carter Farms will be retained in the trust so long as he is president and will be rented for an annual fixed amount.

"Thus," the announcement said, "the Carter family will not be affected financially from profits or losses of any of the farm operations."

Carter's Warehouse, in which the President-elect is the principal partner, while brother Billy and mother Lillian have minority interests, "will be either leased for four years for a fixed amount, or sold, at the discretion of the trustee," the announcement said.

In either event, it said, "neither Jimmy Carter, his wife nor children will be affected financially from profits or losses of any of the warehouse operations."

Carter is setting up an independent charitable foundation "to establish a future library to house presidential papers, documents and memorabilia." It will receive contributions from royalties from his campaign book, "Why Not the Best," and will have outright ownership of a book of Carter speeches soon to be published.

Under the guidelines applying to appointees, those named to the two highest federal pay levels will have to divest themselves of any interests that would "more than rarely" cause them to disqualify themselves because of possible conflicts.

Those named to lower-paying jobs would be required to divest themselves of private property.

Congress Picks Leaders, Prepares Jobs Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the Democrats firmly in control, the 95th Congress today established two-year residence in the Capitol with new leadership and an avowed determination to start work on President-elect Carter's economic program.

Senate sources reported shortly before the formal opening of the session that the Democrats elected Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia as majority leader, to succeed Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

In something of an upset, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee was elected Senate minority leader by the Republicans.

Baker defeated Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan by a vote of 19 to 18. Griffin had been assistant minority leader. Baker succeeds Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania who retired from the Senate.

Byrd was elected by acclamation after Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota withdrew from the contest.

Sources also said that Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was named majority whip, the post Byrd has held for the past six years, and that Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, was chosen chairman of the Democratic Party Conference, the third-highest leadership post.

Mansfield served as majority leader since 1961 but did not run for re-election to the Senate last year. Byrd is regarded as a skilled technician at moving legislation through the Senate. His views on economic issues are close to Carter's, and Byrd is expected to work closely with the new president.

At the Republican caucus, Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska was elected assistant minority leader. He was unopposed.

Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska was re-elected chairman of the Republican Conference and Sen. John Tower of Texas was re-elected chairman of the GOP Policy Committee.

In the House, backers of a massive public works jobs plan were ready to introduce at the opening session a $4-billion expansion of the current program. The plan has been cleared with Carter for inclusion in his overall economic stimulus plan.

When Carter takes office Jan. 20, Democrats will have solid control of both the legislative and executive branches of government and apparently will have the kind of power they have not had since Lyndon Johnson's landslide victory in 1964.

Suicide Sparks Staff Shakeup At Fairview

By RITA ROBINSON
Register Staff Writer

COSTA MESA — The suicide of a woman employee has sparked a staff shakeup at Fairview State Hospital, but the man in charge is predicting from the outset that his efforts will be short-circuited by the State Personnel Board.

An extensive evaluation of the management staff is being undertaken, hospital director Dr. Michael Levine said Monday.

The employee, Deborah Lillian Guziejka, 28, shot herself to death last Oct. 30 after an alleged wine and Valium "party" with two psychiatric technicians at the hospital, Levine said.

Dr. Levine ordered the two technicians fired after a two-month investigation of the case. But, he said, "I wouldn't be surprised if they were back to work tomorrow."

Levine said although the two men, whom he declined to identify, have not been back to work since the incident, he expects them to appeal his decision and for the personnel board to support their appeal.

He said the personnel board has overturned several of his decisions to fire employees in the past.

"It's a continual problem," Levine said. "My recommendations to discharge people have been frequently overturned by the state board."

Loan Of $3.9 Billion To Britain Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund approved a standby arrangement Monday authorizing Great Britain to borrow up to $3.9 billion over the next 24 months.

The British had applied for the loan in October in an effort to bolster their sagging economy and to try and halt the slide in value of the pound relative to other currencies.

IMF staffers and officials have been studying the British economic situation since then in an effort to assure that the nation would be able to repay the money.

Last month, British Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey announced a series of measures designed to hold down inflation and cut government borrowing so that it would be better able to comply with any stipulations related to the IMF loan.

The program outlined by Healey involved two years of holding down government spending by some 2 billion pounds — about $3.4 billion — while at the same time levying only a few small increases in taxes.

A British Treasury spokesman in London said approval of the loan was expected. "There were no surprises," he said.

He said the first drawing would be sometime this month. Interest on the loan would begin at 4 per cent and rise in one-half per cent steps each year to a maximum of 6 per cent.

The British proposal had been haled at the outset by U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, member of the IMF board and one of those responsible for voting approval of the credit.

The $3.9 billion loan is the fourth big credit extended on Ford estimated his tax proposals would save $227 a year for a family of four with an income of $15,000.

The Democratic controlled Congress is expected to await the economic stimulus plan of President-elect Carter rather than act on Ford's proposal.

Carter has indicated his program would focus on job creation. Ford's tax proposals were targeted at what the President called middle-income tax payers.

"The tax reductions of 1975 and 1976 focused tax relief on the lower income taxpayer," Ford said. "However, it is high time to focus substantial tax relief on middle-income taxpayers."

The package includes a proposal to increase the individual income tax exemption from the present $750 to $1,000, said L. William Seidman, the President's economic adviser.

Ford's proposed tax saving for individuals would be effective with the current year. It would be offset to some degree by increases in Social Security taxes effective next Jan. 1.

The Social Security tax rate for individuals currently is 5.85 per cent of income up to about $16,000. Under the Ford proposal, that rate would rise to 6.6 per cent by Jan. 1, 1980, although two-tenths of a per cent of that increase is already mandated by law.

The impact of the Social Security increases on a family of four with an income of $15,000, and only one wage earner in the family, would be about $112 in additional taxes in 1980 compared to this year.

A coffee boycott begun in New York City has spread to Ohio, Massachusetts and upstate New York, with supermarket chains urging consumers not to buy and providing discounts for substitutes — or for coffee.

An Ohio supermarket chain, Liberal Markets Inc. with 40 stores in Dayton and Cincinnati, continued selling coffee at $2.59 per pound, but launched a newspaper and billboard advertising campaign Monday urging shoppers not to buy.

Shopwell Inc. in New York City is running ads in which the company president says, "The money you and I are being asked to pay for coffee is outrageous." The newspaper ads include 20-cent coupons for tea, cocoa or hot chocolate.

Advertisements for Boston's Stop-and-Shop Co. Inc. also included coupons — for coffee. The ads urged customers to find a substitute, but added, (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 3)

"If we had not complied with the federal regulations we would have faced additional OSHA-type problems," he added.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulates all facets of industrial safety and health.

Robinson said AB 133 would place a one-year moratorium on the new law while the state legislature sought to hammer out "a reasonable approach."

"I don't have the answers," he added, "but until we do, the execution of the (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 5)

'BUGGING' TABLE TURNED ON TEACHER TORMENTERS

MANNING, Iowa (AP) — Students in a boys-only homemaking class were "bugging" the first-year, woman teacher and wound up "bugged" themselves.

School officials planted a hidden tape recorder to gather proof of harassment in the class, using the results to show the need for more discipline.

Some parents objected that the hidden recorder was an invasion of privacy, but the Manning School Board voted 3-2 to affirm "bugging" as a legitimate way to head off class trouble.

"The principal told them they'd be monitored, and taping is included in monitoring, isn't it?" said board member Roy Struve.

Principal Larry Miller said of the parents' objections, "That was about the only (Please Turn To Page A2, Col. 7)

Delay Rushed For 'Baby-Sitting' Insurance Law

By JOE CORDERO
Register Staff Writer

"Urgency" legislation to delay enforcement of a new law which requires that baby sitters and other casual employees be covered by workman's compensation insurance was introduced Monday in Sacramento by Assemblyman Richard Robinson, D-Santa Ana.

Assembly Bill 133 would place a one-year moratorium on the law, which went into effect Saturday. It requires homeowners and renters to purchase insurance to cover persons hired to do odd jobs, such as the occasional baby sitter, house cleaner, gardener, plumber or dog walker.

Robinson also co-authored Assembly Bill 132 by Assemblyman Alister McAllister, D-San Jose, which would repeal the new law. McAllister co-authored Robinson's bill.

McAllister is the chairman of the Assembly Finance and Insurance Committee, and Robinson is chairman of the workman's compensation subcommittee.

They received a waiver Monday from the Assembly Rules Committee to the rule that requires that there be a 30-day waiting period between the time a bill is introduced and the time it is acted upon.

Additionally, both bills carry urgency clauses which would make them law 30 days after they were signed by the governor. Customarily, bills go into effect the following first of January after they are signed.

Robinson said the intent of the legislature in passing the current law was to exclude part-time baby sitters, gardeners and similar odd job employees.

"But the courts have interpreted the law's loopholes to mean that every casual employee would be covered," he said. "Plumbers, gardeners and other persons engaged in a personal private enterprise should be responsible for their own insurance coverage," Robinson said of his bill.

He said that the intent of the bill was to assure that only people who work full-time as domestics be covered by workman's compensation insurance.

The law was passed two years ago to comply with the workman's compensation insurance requirements set down by the National Commission on Workers' Compensation, a body established by former president Richard Nixon, Robinson said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Father, 2 Daughters Slain; Son, 15, Held

STOCKTON (AP) — An orthodontist and his two daughters were shot to death, his wife wounded, and their 15-year-old son was charged with murder, sheriff's investigators said today.

Commander Arch Scheffel of the San Joaquin County Sheriff's Office said the youth was taken to the county's juvenile hall and booked for investigation of three counts of murder and one count of attempted murder.

Scheffel said the bodies were found after the son telephoned police at 11:41 p.m. Monday and reported the shootings.

He refused to say what the youth told police, because the conversation may be used as evidence.

"We know of no motive," he said.

Scheffel said the law prevents him from releasing the first name of the son, "as strange as it may seem."

The shootings occurred shortly after 11 p.m. Monday at the home of Dr. M. Darril Opdahl, 42, in a fashionable residential neighborhood in Mirada, halfway between Stockton and Lodi.

The youth's two sisters — Susan, 19, and Carol, 18 — were found shot to death in their upstairs bedroom in the two-story home. They were pronounced dead at the scene by a neighbor who is a doctor.

Opdahl and his wife, Patricia, 43, were found wounded in separate areas of the downstairs. He was shot in the torso and she was shot in the head.

Opdahl died early today at St. Joseph's Hospital in Stockton.

Mrs. Opdahl was in stable condition at the same hospital, a nursing supervisor said.

Scheffel said all four were shot with a handgun, but he declined to say what caliber.

Crash Injuries Fatal To HB Boy

HUNTINGTON BEACH — A 6-year-old boy died early today following a traffic accident Monday which seriously injured his mother, police reported.

Investigators said Allan Monteath died shortly after 4 a.m. at Pacifica Hospital.

The boy was riding with his mother, Mrs. Beverly Monteath, 35, of 21122 Amberwick Lane, about 6:15 p.m. Monday when she turned her southbound compact car in front of a northbound vehicle on Magnolia Street at Atlanta Avenue, officers said.

Mrs. Monteath was reported in serious condition today at Pacifica.

The driver of the other car, a 20-year-old Newport Beach man, was not injured, police reported.

Kick Puts FV Officer In Hospital

FOUNTAIN VALLEY — A police officer arresting a motorist on New Year's Day was kicked in the leg so severely he was hospitalized, police reported.

The officer Kary Kowalski, halted driver Joseph Junior Evans, 29, Costa Mesa, near the intersection of Garfield Avenue and Brookhurst Street on suspicion of driving under the influence of liquor.

Evans, according to the report, became belligerent while being placed in the police unit, kicked out a squad car window and also kicked Kowalski.

The officer was treated at Fountain Valley Community Hospital and released.

Fire Guts 4 Ensenada Buildings

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — Firemen mopped up a $100,000 fire today after it destroyed four store buildings and damaged a fifth.

Two volunteer firemen were hospitalized for treatment of burns.

The blaze, blamed on a short circuit in electrical wiring, flashed first through a downtown bookstore Monday night. Also heavily damaged were El Ensenada theater, a jewelry store and Harold's clothing store near the corner of Avenida Ruiz and Calle Juarez.

Twenty-six fire fighters fought the blaze into the early-morning hours in Ensenada, a city 50 miles south of the U.S. border on the Pacific coast of Baja California.

Jury Given Dale Car Fraud Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court jury began deciding Monday whether a transsexual auto company president and four other people committed fraud in creation and promotion of the three-wheeled Dale automobile.

During a marathon trial which started last June 1, the six-man, six-woman jury heard evidence about the unusual car, which supposedly was set to retail for $1,999, get 70 miles to the gallon cruising at speeds of up to 80 miles an hour and emerge unharmed from collisions at 30 miles an hour.

The defendants originally were indicted by the county Grand Jury on 34 counts of grand theft, conspiracy, and illegal sales of securities May 1975.

8 Ohio School Districts Reopen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tax-supported schools were back in session Monday for 70,000 Ohio students in eight school districts that had been closed for up to two months after taxpayers refused to provide extra money.

However, one other Ohio school district was closed down by a teachers' strike Monday, and another district was hit with a strike but kept schools open.

Ohio's General Assembly also reconvened Monday and was expected to produce several proposals, including tax increases, for avoiding school shutdowns in the future.

Indictments Sought In Arson Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Asst. Dist. Atty. James Shallek went before a grand jury on Monday seeking indictments against two men accused with setting a Bronx building afire, killing 25 persons.

Police said they were searching for a third suspect in the Oct. 24 blaze at the Puerto Rico Social Club and expect an arrest shortly.

Jose Antonio Cordero, 40, and Hector Lopez, 17, were arrested during the weekend and charged with murder and arson in what Dist. Atty. Mario Merola called an act of "revenge involving a jealous suitor."

He said the motive for the fire was a "lover's quarrel" between Cordero and Diana Sanchez, 20. Miss Sanchez and her sister, Evelyn, 22, died in the fire.

Former PLO Official Slain

PARIS (AP) — Two young men shot and killed Mahmoud Saleh, former head of the Palestine Liberation Organization's delegation in Paris, as he left his Arab-language bookshop on the Left Bank Monday night, police said.

Witnesses said the two killers were about 25 and fled on foot after firing at least eight shots. Saleh was killed by two bullets in the head.

Police said there was no indication who organized the killing. The bookshop was hit a year ago by several gasoline fire bombs that caused $30,000 damage. A group called the Jewish Defense Front claimed it made the attack.

Saleh was a member of the militant Rejection Front faction which opposes any negotiations with Israel.

Panel Extends OC Teacher's Appeal Hearing

MISSION VIEJO — The dismissal hearing for Saddleback Valley Unified School District teacher Barbara Hahn was continued after an all-day session Monday, but no date has been set for the next hearing, a district spokesman said.

A three-man panel is presiding over the hearings to determine if Miss Hahn, who is accused of violating district regulations, may keep her job.

Under state law, the panel's decision is binding on district trustees who voted Sept. 15 to suspend the tenured teacher. She had been employed for 10 years as district psychologist.

The hearings began Nov. 19.

District officials said Miss Hahn allegedly received district funds to go to a convention which she did not attend and falsified her dentist's signature on forms she filed to get district-paid time off for a dental appointment.

Panel members are George Britt, state hearing officer; Al Kaufman, a Huntington Beach psychologist representing Miss Hahn; and Dr. Werner Epp, a Bakersfield psychologist representing the district.

State law requires that the panel be made up of one member chosen by the accused teacher, one member chosen by the district trustees and a state hearing officer. Two of the panel members must be proficient in the accused teacher's field.

More sweeping is a requirement that those in the two top pay levels shed all interests that would be "broadly affected by governmental monetary and budgetary policies," except for real estate, savings accounts, government securities, and widely diversified holdings, such as most mutual fund shares. In general, those jobs include Cabinet posts and jobs right below the department secretaries.

Divestiture requirements can be met, however, by turning over assets to blind trusts if the assets are either cash or diversified. The trustee is "truly independent," and the trustee will buy or sell assets without discussion with the government officer involved or anyone close to him.

Under these trust arrangements, and those affecting Carter himself, the only reports to be provided to the official involved are those necessary to file with income tax returns.

Soon after Carter takes office, Carter's transition staff said, Congress will be asked to pass legislation to bar top officials from moving directly from government to private businesses they have regulated or done business with.

It said Carter will issue an executive order to spell out the financial disclosures he will require.

Coffee Boycott

(Continued From Page A1) "If you must buy coffee, buy it only when it's on sale," and offered 70 cents off on a two-pound can.

In Syracuse, N.Y., on Monday, the Consumer Affairs Office announced that five major chains representing 33 area supermarkets had agreed to join the campaign.

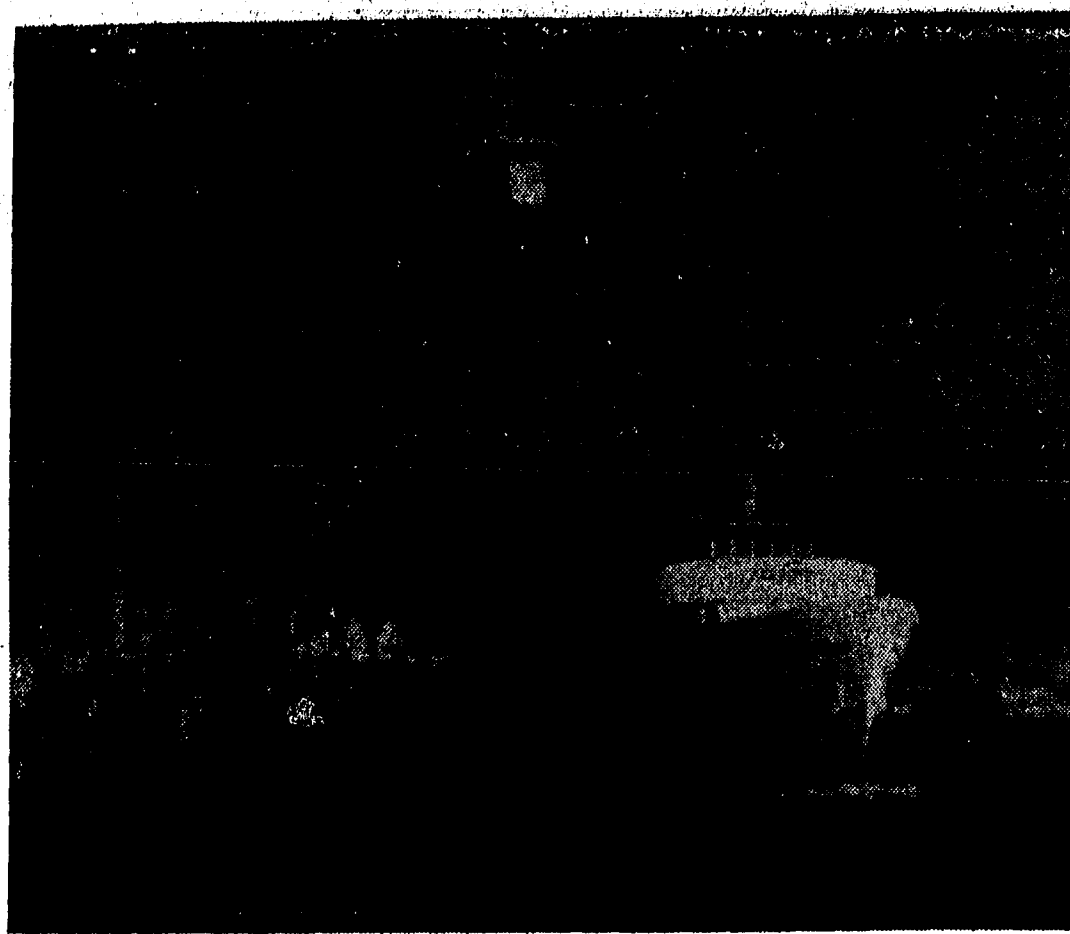

The boycott began last week when New York City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs, Elinor Guggenheimer, said that a 50 per cent cut in national coffee consumption would reduce prices. She said she was abstaining from her usual 14 cups a day.

Retail coffee prices around the country range up to $3, roughly twice the price of two years ago. Current wholesale prices are also at about $3, which means the retail price is still going up.

Robert Mann, vice president in charge of retailing for Liberal Markets, said Monday that "if people get together to stop buying coffee, it should make the price go the other way."

A crop-damaging freeze in 1975 in Brazil, the world's largest producer of coffee, has generally been blamed for triggering the price spiral. But Mann said he doubts it could be solely responsible for the rising prices.

"The world coffee situation is being exaggerated to benefit a few," he said.

velopment Program. She said she was tired.

Instead, she allegedly met two other technicians in another part of the hospital for a two-hour wine and Valium "party," the investigation revealed.

One of the technicians was acting as supervisor because no regular supervisors on the management staff were scheduled to work the night shift. The only staff members there were the two men and Mrs. Guziejka, according to reports.

Levine said he does not know how much Valium, a depressant, was consumed by the three, but he said he does know that a shot was fired that night in the hospital from what police identified as a snub-nosed .38 caliber revolver. No one was injured.

The gun belonged to Mrs. Guziejka, who purchased it because she lived alone with her daughters a few blocks away from the hospital. Her estranged husband lived in Fullerton where the two daughters were staying that night.

The shooting threat occurred later at 10:30 p.m. after a domestic argument between Mrs. Guziejka and her 19-year-old boyfriend in her home, police reported.

Mrs. Guziejka shot herself in the head and died 12 hours later at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital. Her death was listed as suicidal by the coroner's office. The boyfriend's possible involvement was ruled out by police.

Levine, who heads a statewide program to curb drug use by hospital patients, said he is initiating a system to control access to drugs at the hospital.

The drugs will be packaged in individual dosages and released only under the prescription of the hospital's psychiatrist, he said. This way, only the psychiatrist and the patient will be responsible for drug misuse. Currently, the drugs are stored in large quantities in employee-only areas of the hospital.

He also said he is changing the practice that management personnel only work the day shift from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. He said he will have supervisors working on all three shifts.

"Fairview will hire a full-time investigator because of the recent allegations of wrongful deaths at state hospitals. But an important side benefit will be for him to investigate employees' infraction of the rules," Levine said.

Levine contends that the only way to improve the conditions at Fairview is to work around the states civil service system.

"There's no way to obtain quality personnel under the civil service classification system because it's almost impossible to discharge incompetent employees," he said.

He proposes that anyone above the psychiatric technician level, which would include supervisors and professional physicians, be removed from civil service and hired on a contract basis with the condition that they may be terminated at any time.

The contract also would be renewable, but only after the holder completed required courses on mental retardation and passed both a written and verbal exam before each renewal period, he said.

"There have been 10 years of abuse and neglect of the state hospitals by underfunding and understaffing," Levine said. "The current situation was inevitable."

He said there have been other incidents of employee misconduct at the hospital, and he said he has apprehensions about overhauling the system.

But the first thing, he said, that must be done to begin improving the quality of care and the elimination of employee problems at Fairview is to conduct and complete an evaluation of the entire management staff.

Insurance Law

present law should be delayed."

Under the new law all homeowners who have a homeowners insurance package were automatically covered for workman's compensation as of Saturday.

The cost of the additional coverage would be included as of the policy's renewal date.

However, approximately 3,000,000 California residents have only fire insurance and are currently unprotected against workman's compensation suits, Robinson said.

He predicted that AB 133 will face "strong opposition" in the legislature from the special interest groups which supported the law, which went into effect Saturday.

He said organized labor and the insurance industry are expected to lead the opposition. Robinson said a recent newspaper story was primarily responsible for making him aware of the magnitude of the loopholes in the new law.

Robinson said that if the legislature can't find a reasonable approach to the issue he would work for passage of McAlister's bill to repeal the current law.

McAlister told newsmen that it was unacceptable to him that "about half" of California residents don't have the insurance coverage required under the law.

Congress Picks

The contests for leadership posts in the House were decided last month. Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., with solid Democratic backing, will succeed Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma as speaker. Rep. Jim Wright of Texas was the choice to succeed O'Neill as majority leader.

The only holdover among congressional leaders will be Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona as House minority leader.

Democrats have controlled Congress since 1955. But for the past eight years, Republicans held the White House and used the presidential veto power to thwart many Democratic sponsored programs.

The program that prompted one of the bitterest fights between Congress and President Ford last year was the public works jobs bill that Democrats said would ease unemployment and stimulate the economy. Ford vetoed a bill containing an appropriation of more than $6 billion and the Democrats failed to override it.

Near the close of the session, the Democrats passed and Ford accepted a scaled-down program calling for expenditure of $2 billion.

Rep. Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the public works subcommittee that handled the jobs bills, said Monday a bill potentially adding another $4 billion to the jobs program would be introduced at the opening session with the support of the Democratic leadership and the President-elect.

Hamstrung U.S. Tuna Boats Go To Sea Anyway

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The boats of the U.S. tuna fleet went to sea Monday, three days after their traditional New Year's Day departure and with crews unhappy over U.S. fishing restrictions.

"My men will have to be lucky just to make a halfway profitable trip," said Manuel Silva, who owns two boats.

The American tunamen are prohibited from setting their nets in waters where porpoises are swimming with yellowfin tuna, the main catch of the fleet.

That restriction was imposed by a federal court in Washington pending action by the Commerce Department to set a 1977 porpoise-kill quota.

Porpoises, air-breathing mammals, become entangled in the tunamen's nets and drown. A necessary evil, say the fishermen, but the Marine Mammal Protection Act requires the federal government to set a limit on such porpoise kills. The 1977 quota, as yet unset, is expected to be much lower than the 78,000 porpoise kills allowed in 1976.

But pending a quota, and the issuance of licenses, the American tunamen must operate under the federal court ban on setting their nets over porpoises. Foreign boats, not bound by the ban, already are operating in the eastern Pacific fishing grounds.

A number of boat owners in San Diego have talked recently about either setting up foreign operations to escape

Bomb Kills 35 In Beirut Street Terror

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian militiamen blocked traffic in Beirut's Ashrafieh quarter today, firing their automatic rifles in the air, after an explosion outside a Christian militia barracks killed 35 persons and wounded more than 50.

The Christian Phalange party's radio station said Christians in the quarter went on strike to protest "this vile and barbaric crime." Shops were closed, and armed men turned back children on their way to school.

Later, six Moslem gunmen in a limousine sprayed machine-gun fire at passersby in a Christian quarter, killing four and wounding several others, the radio reported.

Christian militiamen chased the attackers, stopped the car and arrested them, the radio said.

"An increasing number of militiamen are going into the streets with their arms," a source in the area reported. "Sporadic gunfire is heard, and travelers between eastern and western Beirut are turned back at some points."

Most of the militiamen put their weapons away after Syrian troops occupied Beirut and imposed a cease-fire in November.

A government communique said the explosion Monday night outside a Phalangist barracks was caused by a charge planted in a car. It was the worst act of terrorism since the Syrians moved into the city.

"Christian leaders met and decided to regard the 35 dead as martyrs. They also adopted other, undisclosed decisions," said the Phalangist broadcast.

Israeli Minister Commits Suicide

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Housing Minister Abraham Ofer, linked by a newspaper to alleged illegal real estate transactions, was found dead Monday. The state television said he killed himself and broadcast what it called a suicide note denying the allegations.

It was the first suicide of an Israeli government minister and the first time a cabinet member had been accused of involvement in economic corruption.

The national news agency ITIM reported that Ofer, 54, shot himself with a .22-caliber pistol and a passerby called police after finding Ofer's body and the weapon in his car near his Tel Aviv home. Ofer was a leading member of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's ruling Labor party and a moderate on Israeli policy toward the Arabs.

The note read over Israeli television denied accusations against Ofer that appeared recently in the weekly newspaper Haolam Hazeh. The note declared:

"I did not embezzle or steal, it is all lies and fabrications."

"All my life I only helped as best I could, and never did anyone harm. Why was I so persecuted?"

Rabin canceled an important meeting with President Ephraim Katzir, who was to have asked him formally to set up a caretaker government as a result of the premier's resignation two weeks ago.

Tips On GG Girl's Slaying Pouring In

GARDEN GROVE — The public is "bending over backwards" to help police find the killers of Janet Stallcup, police say, but investigators are still stymied in their search for two men they want to question.

"People have really been trying to help," said Lt. Pan Corona. "We have some worthwhile leads we're checking into."

Corona said the department has received more than 100 phone calls since artist renderings of two possible suspects appeared in newspapers and on television over the weekend.

Descriptions of the men were provided by a witness police have not identified.

"Some people have called and said they have seen one of them in a bar, or cut their hair once, or pulled a tooth. Some of the information is way out, but some is worth checking into," Corona said.

The two hunted men may be linked to the rape-murder of the pretty 19-year-old Cypress College coed, whose body was found in the rear of a Yockey Street apartment complex Dec. 27. Her neck was broken negative response." "Things have settled down now," he said Monday as classes resumed after Christmas break at the rural high school with 270 students. "I think the vacation period has given it time to die out."

"I've been unhappy with that class a long time," said George Opperman, another board member. "I've been concerned about class discipline and I took the principal to task about it."

After Opperman's visit, Miller authorized using the hidden recorder last month to prove to parents the need for disciplinary action.

Two of the 21 students in the popular "Bachelor's Training" class were later barred from the class because of a "culmination of things, not just the one incident," Miller said.

Miller would not specify what form the harassment of teacher Linda Himiker took, but he said that some boys took the class for "an easy grade" and that students sometimes gang up to give a young teacher a hard time.

Neither the teacher nor the students involved were available for comment.

One boy's parents had challenged the use of the recorder and requested a special school board meeting. But the board backed Miller last month in the special meeting.

"Some people were just trying to make a big issue out of a little thing," Miller said. "They ought to be more concerned with the total education processes than some little thing like this."

Defense Minister Shimon Peres put off a planned tour of the Lebanese border area.

Journalist Yigal Laviv wrote Saturday in Haolam Hazeh, which specializes in investigative reporting, that he had been giving police evidence for the past few months about alleged kickbacks paid to Ofer.

One deal, Laviv said, involved purchase of land from Arabs in East Jerusalem in 1973 for construction of apartments for Jews. Laviv said about $1.5 million was paid out, but only $875,000 reached the Arabs.

He said the money was paid by Shikun Ovdim, a government-related construction company Ofer then headed. Laviv's story also said Ofer provided apartments at low prices to political benefactors.

All the alleged irregularities occurred before mid-1974 when Ofer joined Rabin's cabinet as housing minister.

Police said Laviv's allegations had been under investigation before Ofer's death.

With corruption a potential issue in the election next May, political observers predicted the Ofer affair would cost Labor votes.

The housing minister was the second prominent Labor party official recently touched by scandal. Asher Yadin, former head of a major health insurance agency, was arrested on suspicion of fraud and bribetaking last fall shortly after he was nominated to be governor of the Bank of Israel.

British Loan

Britain's behalf in about a year.

Major trading partners set up a standby $5.3 billion credit for Great Britain in June, and the IMF set up loans of $800 million in June and $1.17 billion in December 1975.

But much of the credit extended in June expired last month, so that some of the new loan presumably would be used to pay off the earlier debt.

Under the standby arrangement, the British authorities will be authorized to draw an amount equivalent to $1.16 billion immediately. Total credit is not to exceed the equivalent of $2.26 billion over the first 12 months.

Before Jan. 16, 1976, the fund will conduct a review of the progress of the British economy under the terms of the arrangement.

To finance the credit the fund will borrow the equivalent of $2.97 billion from eight participants in the fund.

The fund will make calls on the participants when needed up to the equivalent of $52.2 million in Belgian francs, $63.8 million in Canadian dollars, $910.6 million in West German marks, $68 million in French francs, $643.8 million in Japanese yen, $121.8 million in Netherlands guilders, $23.2 million in Swedish kroner and $1.08 billion in U.S. dollars.

BP Youth Dies From Stabbing

LONG BEACH (AP) — A 17-year-old security guard has died of stab wounds he received in a fight after ejecting two youths from a rock concert at the Long Beach Arena.

The guard, Brian Graves of Buena Park, was stabbed three times during the scuffle early Monday, police said.

Police said the two youths had been told to leave the concert earlier for creating a disturbance, and Graves and his partner caught them trying to sneak back in when the fight broke out.

Nantucket Spill Rated Future Beach Menace

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — The millions of gallons of oil that spilled from the ruptured cargo holds of the tanker Argo Merchant could come back to haunt southern beaches several years from now, a marine specialist said Monday.

Dr. Jerry Galt of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration also said the spilled oil posed no immediate threat to British beaches should it be carried there by the Gulf Stream.

Meanwhile, a crew member of the Liberian-registered tanker testified in New York that an inexperienced helmsman was steering the ship alone during the night just before it ran aground off course.

In Philadelphia, the captain of another tanker, Olympic Games, said Monday his vessel lost power shortly before it went aground in the Delaware River, and the docking pilot told a Coast guard inquiry that he was unaware a buoy had been moved to warn of shallower waters.

And in Washington, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman reported that most immediate danger to U.S. shores from both oil spills was past.

Galt, who has been helping to map the oil slick, said much of the oil is caught up in an eddy on the north edge of the Gulf Stream, about 150 to 200 miles east-southeast of the original spill site.

He said that should the oil get caught up in the circular Gulf Stream, the gummy spill could head first north and east toward Iceland and Great Britain. Then, following the current's clockwise direction, it could head west and west back toward Bermuda.

"But we're talking about a long time," Galt said. "And we're not talking about a massive slick, but a slight increase in the amount of tar balls that will wash up on shore."

Tax Laws Proposed For Attack On Crime

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charging that organized crime "endangers the quality of life," Los Angeles' top prosecutors are urging federal and state officials to use tax laws to mount a counterattack on crime.

Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp and City Atty. Burt Pines urged the action in letters to key government officials, spokesmen said Monday.

In a letter to U.S. Treasury Secretary-designate Werner Blumenthal, Pines and Van de Kamp expressed concern about a federal budget cut of $8.2 million from the Internal Revenue Service's intelligence division.

Saying that tax laws have long helped put mobsters behind bars, they said they "viewed with grave concern

Brown's 'Relief' Vow Doubted 'Can't Deliver Without Tax Hikes,' Lawmakers Claim

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s promise of no new taxes in 1977 was greeted with doubts from leaders of the California Legislature Monday as lawmakers returned from a holiday recess.

Some powerful Democrats said they don't think Brown can deliver on his promise to provide property tax relief and reform California's school finance system without raising taxes — even if reports of a budget surplus of $800 million to $1 billion prove true.

Even Republican leaders said a tax increase may be needed.

Assembly Speaker Leo

McCarthy, the legislature's most powerful member, predicted a big state budget surplus. But the San Francisco Democrat said it will probably not be enough to avoid an increase in the income, sales, or some other state tax.

Senate President pro tem James Mills said he saw "no substantial improvement in the state's economy," and therefore no reason to anticipate a big budget surplus.

But the San Diego Democrat was equally skeptical of the governor's promise to meet property tax relief and school finance needs without a tax boost. "I don't see how it can be done," he said.

Assemblyman Daniel Boatwright, D-Concord, who chairs the budget-writing Assembly Ways and Means Committee, said he expects "a fantastic increase" in state revenues due to improvements in the economy, especially increased taxable sales.

"I mean $800 million to $1 billion (surplus)," Boatwright said. "If we have a $1 billion surplus, the governor may be right that we won't need a tax increase, and from what I understand, the surplus could very well approach $1 billion."

McCarthy also said "there is going to be good news about the surplus" when Brown sends the legislature his proposed 1977-78 state budget. But McCarthy refused to give specifics except that even a big budget surplus probably isn't enough to avoid a tax hike.

Brown is expected to unveil a budget proposal in excess of $14 billion next Monday.

"I am not reluctant to increase taxes," McCarthy said, if that is needed to provide renter and homeowner tax relief and to comply with the California Supreme Court's Serrano case order to equalize school spending by 1980.

Brown said last week he had a proposal that would provide — without any state tax increase — both homeowner tax relief and "substantial compliance" with the court's order to provide equal educational opportunity statewide by eliminating differences in amounts spent per pupil in rich and poor school districts.

"I'm trying to control my cynicism on that (promise by Brown)," said Assemblyman Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades, the Republican leader of the lower house.

Blacks' Lawyers May Ask KKK Members To Appear

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — Defense attorneys for two black Marines charged with an attack on a white barracks want the Marine Corps to produce three white Marines who are alleged Ku Klux Klan members.

David Weitzman of San Francisco, the lawyer for Lance Cpls. Gregory A. Coffee of Westlawn, Mo., and Ricky McGilvery of Dallas, Tex., said Monday he may ask continuances until the three Marines are found.

The Marine Corps listed the three men as absent without leave when they failed to appear Monday to testify in pretrial hearings for the two blacks.

A spokesman for the Corps said it did not know the whereabouts of Pfc. Ronnie Harper, 19, of Pensacola, Fla., Pfc. Dennis Campbell Jr., 22, of Smith Creek, Mich., and Pfc. Charles V. Smith, 18, of Houston.

The government urged Weitzman to use the transcript of testimony by the three men in pretrial hearings last week, but the attorney indicated he may insist on appearances again by the trio.

Coffee and McGilvery are among 14 black Marines charged in a Nov. 13 attack on a barracks room in which seven whites were holding a beer party. Six whites were hospitalized with injuries.

The blacks have maintained they thought they were attacking a Ku Klux Klan meeting, but got the wrong room.

They blame harassment by Klan members for forcing them to retaliate.

Behind Every Good Man A Good Woman?

NEW YORK (AP) — Most wives are thrilled to see their husbands' photographs in the newspaper, but Alexander Gouridine's wife felt no such pride when her husband's photo appeared in the New York Daily News.

It was a photograph of a bank robbery.

Police said Mrs. Gouridine threatened to leave her husband if he didn't surrender to police. He turned himself in and was charged with five bank robberies, police said.

Gouridine, 21, an unemployed lithographer, said his wife recognized the photo even though he has since shaved off a goatee he wore at the time.

Last Resort Device, Bell Says Of Busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Griffin Bell said Monday he believes that busing should be used to desegregate urban schools only in rare cases.

"I think it upsets Americans to take children away from their neighborhoods," Bell told a news conference. "I think neighborhood schools are preferable, all other things being equal."

But Bell said busing may be needed to desegregate some school systems and protect the constitutional rights of minority children.

"In time," he continued, "we will have integrated housing. But you can't wait on desegregated schools until that day comes, so you have to use busing as part of the remedy."

"I think there's going to be some school districts where busing will be employed as a last resort."

Bell outlined his views on busing when he was asked whether he contemplates any change in Justice Department policy on the issue if he is confirmed as attorney general.

His reply generally follows the current department policy which is to support only the extent of busing necessary to correct the discrimination caused by official acts of school boards and other government agencies.

Bell talked with reporters after meeting for more than two hours with outgoing Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi.

Bell said the two discussed "the general organization of the Justice Department" and some cases currently under investigation.

He said they did not discuss in detail the current investigations of FBI burglaries and abuses of power within the FBI.

He said he has made no decision about whether FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley should be replaced.

"In the event a new director is selected, I'll do the selecting in consultation with President-elect Carter," he said. "But I'm not saying there will be a change."

Decontrol Of Gas Price Plan Fought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today postponed announcing his proposal for lifting price controls on gasoline until later this week. The move will set the stage for one more Ford battle with Congress before he leaves office.

Aides had said the announcement was expected today, but Deputy Press Secretary John Carlson told reporters: "The President has not made a final decision as to the time of transmitting the proposal to Congress."

Carlson said the announcement could come Thursday or later in the week.

The controls would be automatically removed unless either the House or the Senate disapproved within 15 days — or by Jan. 19, one day before President-elect Jimmy Carter is sworn in.

At a Monday afternoon news conference, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, and several other lawmakers called the President's decontrol plan "unwise, unjustified and inappropriate."

They vowed to defeat it, Jackson said, "in an up-and-down vote on the floor."

Joining Jackson were Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., and Reps. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., and Herbert Harris, D-Va.

Last November, the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) insisted that the decontrol of gasoline prices would have a "minimal impact" on the economy.

But Metzenbaum and Maguire produced a freshly-printed copy of a Library of Congress study, indicating the opposite.

"The Library of Congress analysis," Metzenbaum said, "indicates that the cost to the economy of decontrol would run between $8 billion and $8.9 billion a year."

Zorinsky said the increase would particularly hit farmers, whose profits already are shrinking as a result of falling grain and livestock prices.

The five lawmakers questioned Ford's timing in pressing for removal of the price controls in the waning days of his administration.

"There's something slick about the timing of this (White House) announcement," Jackson said.

He acknowledged that mid-winter demand for gasoline is low, so that removal of price controls now would probably not lead to an immediate increase in gas pump prices.

Zorinsky said the President's timing on the proposal is "bound to raise questions as to whether this is related to the repaying of a (campaign) debt (to the oil companies)."

Ford Backs Off On Puerto Rico

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation proposing statehood for Puerto Rico may not be ready before President Ford leaves office Jan. 20, a White House spokesman said Monday. Thus, the issue may be dead for now.

If the bill isn't ready, it will be up to President-elect Carter's administration to propose such legislation. But Carter has said Congress should not consider making Puerto Rico the 51st state until the island's residents have expressed a clear preference for statehood.

President Ford proposed statehood last Friday and said he would recommend enactment of legislation to the new 95th Congress, which convenes today.

The idea was widely criticized by several congressmen and Puerto Rican leaders. Carlos Romero Barcelo ignored the issue when he was inaugurated Sunday as Puerto Rico's new governor.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters Monday that the legislation, being prepared by the interior department "is very complicated and may not be completed in time for this administration to submit it."

"Then it would be up to the next administration," he said.

He said the President is personally committed to the idea of statehood for Puerto Rico and noted that it was a plank in last summer's Republican convention platform.

During the next few days, Nessen also said Ford plans to:

— Send to Congress his recommendation for a tax cut, expected to total about $10 billion for individuals, plus tax breaks for corporations.

Carter Reorganization Bill Expected To 'Sail'

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — A bill authorizing President-elect Carter to propose a sweeping reorganization of the federal government should sail through Congress, the chairman of the House Government Operations Committee said Monday.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., also made a "wild guess" that reorganization might save the government as much as 10 per cent of the annual federal budget, which is currently more than $413 billion.

Brooks also predicted that when Carter completes his reorganization plans, Congress will act favorably on them, although they inevitably will draw opposition from defenders of the status quo and will have lobbyists "jumping through hoops."

Brooks made the comments after discussing the reorganization authorization bill with Carter and Bert Lance, the designated head of the Office of Management and Budget, at Carter's home here.

Brooks said Carter's reorganization plans will be opposed by "all the lobbyists in Washington for one; all the lawyers that live out of (the agencies) for No. 2; and all the public relations people, No. 3. They will all jump through hoops when you change the format."

But Brooks added that "the world will go on" despite their criticisms, "and it may go on a little better if we make a few changes."

Lance would not endorse Brooks' guess of a 10 per cent savings from reorganization, but he said it would improve government services and "predictability," and reduce unnecessary regulation.

"If 10 per cent is what it turns out to be, I think the American people will be very proud," said Lance, who is expected to spearhead Carter's reorganization efforts as head of OMB. He added that the people would still be proud even if only 1 per cent was saved.

What Carter wants is enactment of legislation committing him to submit to Congress detailed reorganization plans which will go into effect if not vetoed by either the Senate or House.

Brooks said he believes the 60-day waiting period between each proposal and final implementation is necessary to give congressional committees a chance to evaluate each plan.

Brooks said he is hopeful that Carter will be successful in reorganizing the federal government's energy activities in particular.

Carter has proposed creating a single department of energy to replace the current system in which several agencies and departments divide the government's energy responsibilities.

The President-elect told reporters in an interview that while he does not object to summit meetings with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev early in his administration, he hopes "that if we do have them they will be in the United States."

"I wouldn't want to go out of the country right at first for such a meeting," Carter said.

Civil Service Rules Violated, Panel Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration violated Civil Service regulations hundreds of times in an effort to get federal jobs for politically favored persons, a House subcommittee has concluded after a 22-month investigation.

Meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission, the agency that is supposed to insure that non-political jobs are filled by the best applicant, "aided and abetted" the administration, the report said.

The political favoritism has "seriously damaged the integrity of the whole (Civil Service) system," the subcommittee said.

In its final 246-page report on abuses in federal employment between 1969 and 1973, the subcommittee said there was "pervasive manipulation of merit system procedures to provide preferential treatment for favored candidates for career appointments."

It said the White House personnel operation was the "nerve center" of this operation.

The report of the subcommittee on manpower and civil service is expected to be released late this week. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

The report urged changes in federal personnel laws, including a prohibition on political referrals for career federal jobs, which are supposed to be filled by the best qualified applicant.

Blaze Damages Orange Church

ORANGE — A fire this morning at the First Christian Church, 1130 E. Walnut Ave., caused $1,100 damage, said a fire department spokesman.

The fire broke out about 6:15 a.m. in the church's social hall and apparently was caused by combustibles in the forced air heater, fire Capt. Darell Verburg said.

Hospital Care Ailing, Nurses Say

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of 10,000 nurses found that 38 per cent wouldn't like to be patients in their own hospitals.

The survey, reported in the January issue of the magazine Nursing 77, rated nursing care in the United States and Canada at a "low B" grade. The smaller the hospital, the survey indicated, the less the responding nurses thought of the care.

As reasons why nursing care of patients is less than excellent, Nursing 77 reported that the nurses blamed insufficient staff, the burdens of paper work and other obligations that took time away from attending to patients.

The magazine last May published a "Probe of Quality Care," listing 78

questions and asking its nursing readers to respond to them. Those responses, more than 10,000 of them, formed the basis of the article in the current issue.

Concerning health care across the country, said Nursing 77, only 3 per cent of nurses rated it as excellent. Half said it was good, the magazine reported, while 42 per cent rated it as fair, and 5 per cent as poor.

The nurses rated physical care as good to high at their hospitals, the publication said, but considered emotional or psychological support of patients and families as being only fair and sometimes poor.

Only about one-third of the responding nurses said they thought other nurses gave good or excellent psychological support to patients.

One nurse suggested a reason: "The physical (care) is stressed as all important. If we're found sitting in a patient's room offering support, we're not considered to be working — just talking."

Only 23 per cent said they thought doctors were good in providing emotional support for the sick.

As for nursing homes, 55 per cent of responding nurses who worked in such institutions said they would not want to be patients where they work.

Asked if they had seen deaths which they thought had been caused accidentally by doctors, 42 per cent said "yes." And 15 per cent said they had more than once seen deaths caused accidentally by doctors.

As for themselves, about 18 per cent said they knew of deaths accidentally caused by nurses.

Shirley Temple Black's Mother Dead At 84

GERTRUDE A. TEMPLE, mother of Shirley Temple Black, has died at a Palo Alto hospital after a long illness. She was 84. Mrs. Temple, a native of Chicago, was with her husband, George, when she died. It was their 64th wedding anniversary. In addition to her husband and daughter, both of Woodside, Calif., Mrs. Temple was survived by sons John S. Temple of San Pedro, and George F. Temple Jr. of Laguna Hills, five grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Mrs. Black, the former child movie star who is now chief of protocol at the State Department, said no services are planned.

President IDI AMIN of Uganda reportedly has had a private showing for his friends of "Victory at Entebbe," a film about the Israeli commando raid on Entebbe airport last July. And Amin decided he likes it even though it portrays a defeat for his army. Kenya's daily Standard newspaper reported Monday. The paper said Amin initially had decided to screen the movie in Uganda "to show how stupid it is," but instead found it enjoyable. Amin was quoted as saying: "I'm portrayed very well in the film." His role is played by American actor JULIUS HARRIS in the U.S.-made movie, which stars ELIZABETH TAYLOR, KIRK DOUGLAS, and BURT LANCASTER.

PRINCE ANDREW flew Monday to Canada and six months in a private school where he may have to sleep out in the Canadian winter and take his turn at waiting on other students at meals. Buckingham Palace, as usual, made every effort to shield the 16-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth II from publicity. His seat aboard the British Airways flight to Toronto was booked under the name "Mr. Cambridge," and he was kept off Heathrow airport's VIP list.

CROWN PRINCE VAJIRALONGKORN has married a first cousin in the first royal wedding to be televised in Thailand. Crowds throughout the country celebrated the marriage of the 24-year-old heir to the throne on Monday to 19-year-old SOMSAWALI KITTIVAKORN. There were parades, dancing and offering of food to Buddhist monks to gain merit for the givers.

Former President RICHARD M. NIXON, who resigned in disgrace because of Watergate, has been invited to Jimmy Carter's inauguration, a spokeswoman for the inaugural committee said Monday. "It's a tradition to invite former presidents," said the spokeswoman, citing protocol as the reason for asking Nixon and his family to attend the Carter inauguration Jan. 20. The spokeswoman said there has been no indication the Nixons will accept the invitation. She denied a published report that Carter staffers fear Nixon will attend.

KAREN ANNE QUINLAN is still breathing on her own in a coma at a nursing home in Morris Plains, N.J., more than seven months after life-support systems were removed, a spokesman says. Miss Quinlan, 22, a patient at the county-run Morris View Rest Home, was removed from a respirator at her parents' request last May, after a landmark ruling by the state Supreme Court. A spokesman at the rest home said that Miss Quinlan is given intravenous nourishment and is turned regularly to keep her from developing bedsores.

Secretary of State HENRY KISSINGER has been talking with CBS chairman WILLIAM PALEY about succeeding the latter as head of the network, the New York Post reported Monday. A state department briefing officer in Washington said he had no knowledge of any such talks, and the Post quoted a CBS spokesman as denying that they had taken place.

Sen. DONALD W. RIEGLE, D-Mich., announced Monday

that he and his wife, MEREDITH, have agreed to separate and seek a divorce. Riegle and his wife have been married five years. She is his second wife. "Our decision is a very personal one, arrived at amicably, and we will have no further comment to make," Riegle said in a brief statement issued by his Washington office.

The International Society of Girl Watchers said Monday in San Diego that ROSALYN CARTER, wife of the president-elect, is America's "most watchable wife." Mrs. Carter heads a list of 10 "most watchable women of the world," picked by the group which claims 27,000 "sworn-in-members." "In the presidential campaign, she gave Jimmy Carter tremendous support and real vote-getting help," said Joe

Beagin, who founded Girl Watchers in 1960. "She has a great personality and charmed everyone."

Union Staffers Strike Against Own Union

SANTA ANA — Office workers and staff members set up pickets Monday outside the Santa Ana regional headquarters for the California School Employees Association (CSEA) as part of a statewide strike against the nation's oldest and largest classified school workers' union.

Kelly Horner, spokeswoman for the Associated Employees of CSEA, said the 10-member staff — including two secretaries and eight field representatives — started picketing the office, 1823 E. 17th St., at 8 a.m.

She said the 108-member statewide group called the strike last Thursday after rejecting a 3½-year contract offer proposed by CSEA management. "As a result of the strike, they've (CSEA) offered to resume negotiations Tuesday."

CSEA officials were not able for comment.

The Santa Ana office provides staff assistance to about 110 CSEA chapters representing 25,000 members in Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego counties, the spokeswoman said. The organization has 90,000 members statewide.

Areas of dispute include length of contract, salary and fringe benefits.

A spokesman at strike headquarters in San Jose said salaries currently average from $635 to $700 a month for secretaries to about $1,200 for a field representative. Some clerks make less than $600.

Welfare Rolls In LA County Continue Rise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County welfare rolls grew in October for the fourth straight month, the county Department of Public Social Services reported Monday.

Department spokesman Steve Monroe said statistics for November would be ready in a few days.

Officials said the number of people receiving aid increased by about 10,000 to 970,234, compared to 959,550 in September.

"It dipped during the summer and now it's going back," said Monroe, "but we can't say this indicates a trend."

He said in March 1971 figures reached their high point, around 980,000. "It's gone various ways since, but never higher than that," he noted.

Keith Comrie, acting director of the department, blamed the boost on a slowdown in improvement of the employment situation in the county.

$15,000 Worth Of Coins Missing

NEWPORT BEACH — Police here have been asked to help locate more than $15,000 worth of silver 50-cent pieces which are missing at a local coin dealer's.

Monex International, of 4910 Birch St., reportedly came up short during a weigh-in, a company spokesman said, adding that the firm hasn't been able to determine if the missing silver is the result of a theft or faulty scales.

The loss was discovered during an audit of the company's vault contents, police said.

Snows 'Too Late' For Ski Resorts

By The Associated Press
Blankets of snow coated Sierra Nevada slopes Monday, but some ski resort owners hard hit by a season-long drought are still singing the "It's great-but-too-late" blues.

"It's certainly a little overdue. We'd like to have seen it two months ago," said Bob Roberts, executive director of the Sierra Ski Association which represents 35 resorts in California and Nevada.

The California State Auto Association reported 13 ski resorts now operating. Only four resorts had been able to open before New Year's, using manmade flakes to lure determined skiers.

The brown mountainsides received their first white coat last Wednesday and the most recent storm began Sunday, bringing the Sierra between two and three feet of snow. More high-altitude snowfall through the night was predicted by the National Weather Service.

Roberts said the storm left a good base, but no grace.

"This will not be a good season. It's already too late and most areas will end the year in the red. You just can't make up for the revenues lost during Christmas weekend," he said.

"As far as the ski areas are concerned, I'm sure we've easily lost $5 to $7 million in total sales this year," he added. "Generally by the end of the Christmas holiday, most areas have done within 30 to 40 per cent of their sales for the year."

But all things considered, skiers and resort owners managed a bit of revelry in the new snow.

Brady Hodge of Heavenly Valley chortled, "It's been nonstop snow all day" and said they had a 48-inch total. Squaw Valley's Bill Boardman said gleefully, "It's sticking... it's exactly what we wanted."

At Mammoth, California's largest resort, 16 of 22 lifts were open Monday, with plans to open all lifts this weekend, said public information officer Pam Clason. She said Mammoth's management had braced itself for the dry season by beginning only this weekend to hire its customary winter crew of 800.

"We're not thinking of the past, just the future," a spokesman at Mammoth said. The crunch has hit hardest the small businesses that are bunched around resorts and had little economic cushion for the drought. "Those are the guys that get stung," Roberts said, estimating total losses at as much as $40 million.

Some relief through federal loans is available to resorts and businesses, Roberts said, as a part of the state's drought relief program. None have yet applied for loans, he said.

Roberts shared the precarious optimism. "I think we'll have a good year of skiing this year. It's just that there won't be a great deal of high living as far as the skiing industry is concerned."

Bobby Fischer Loses Chance To Regain Title

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Former world chess champion Bobby Fischer of the United States has lost his chance to regain the title because he failed to register for a series of elimination matches, the International Chess Federation (FIDE) announced Monday.

FIDE's secretary general, Ineke Bakker, said Fischer had not met the Jan. 1 deadline to enter the forthcoming candidates' matches that will produce a challenger to world champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union.

Fischer was stripped of the championship in March 1975 when he rejected the federation's game arrangements to meet Karpov, and Karpov won the title by default.

His place in the elimination series will be taken by another former world champion, Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union, Miss Bakker said.

Spassky lost the title to Fischer in a match in Reykjavik, Iceland, in 1972.

Spassky had notified the federation he would be willing to play if Fischer failed to register.

Other qualifiers for the candidates' matches confirmed their willingness to participate long before FIDE's deadline expired.

They are Vlastmil Hort of Czechoslovakia; Viktor Korchnoi, the Soviet grandmaster who defected to the West last July and now lives in the Netherlands; former world champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union; Henrique Mecking of Brazil; Denmark's Bent Larsen; Hungary's Lajos Portisch; and Lev Polugaevsky of the Soviet Union.

Miss Bakker said a match between Larsen and Portisch will be held in the Netherlands. Sites for the other matches — Korchnoi-Petrosian, Mecking-Polugaevsky and Spassky-Hort — have not yet been decided, she added.

Under the federation's regulations, this series of matches must be completed by April 1.

Miss Bakker said Fischer's forfeiting play in the candidates' matches would not affect a possible game between him and Karpov, "but the world title, which ultimately belongs to FIDE, can of course not be at stake in such a match."

BP Stabbing Victim Serious

BUENA PARK — A service station attendant stabbed during a weekend petty theft at the station remained in "serious" condition Monday in Martin Luther Hospital.

Police said Eugene Philip Muras, 16, of Fullerton was stabbed in the lower left abdomen about 6 p.m. Saturday near a service station, 8001 Orangefield Ave.

A man, about 40 with a short beard, had volunteered to stay at the station as "security" while a friend went home to get money to pay a $9 bill for gas, cigarettes and oil, according to police.

Reports said the "collateral" suddenly started to run and Muras chased him. After running about 100 yards, the man turned, struck Muras in the stomach and then fled.

Muras told police he didn't know he was stabbed until he felt himself bleeding while walking back to his station.

High School Building Burns Down

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Fire destroyed the administration building at Bakersfield High School early Monday with an estimated loss of $850,000.

No one was injured. Firemen suspect arson as the cause of the blaze because fire doors had been pulled open and a tray of files was found sitting on a chair in one office.

Officials said most records for the school's 2,750 students were lost, but microfilmed records for previous years remain intact.

Classes resumed on schedule Monday after the Christmas holiday but students were dismissed at noon as administrators shifted offices into the school auditorium.

Public information officer Ken Brown said the administration building was connected to a classroom building but the fire was contained before reaching the classroom area.

Brown said both telephone and school bell systems were destroyed and alternate ones were being installed.

A special meeting of the school board has been scheduled to plan further emergency measures.

PAPER PLANE — Students and alumni of Nihon University flew a man-powered plane Sunday at the Japan Maritime Self-Defense Force base at Shimofusa, near Tokyo. The plane, made of balsa and tough hand-made paper, weighs over 80 pounds and has a wingspan of more than 69 feet. The crew claimed they surpassed the old world record of 3,500 feet when they flew more than 6,900 feet at an altitude of three to six feet, staying airborne more than four minutes. Photos show last-minute inspections and plane flying.

Witness Testifies Scudder Set Up His Own Kidnaping

SANTA ANA — A Laguna Hills mechanic testified in Superior Court here Monday that potato chip heir John H. Scudder told him that he had set up his own kidnaping in August.

Frank Sortino's surprise testimony came late Monday in the jury trial for William Rudy Wesson, 44, of Tustin, and Ricki Dale Sellers, 21, of Long Beach. The two men are charged with abducting the 64-year-old Scudder on Aug. 19 in an abortive bid for a $250,000 ransom.

Scudder, of Newport Beach, allegedly escaped from his kidnapers by faking a heart attack shortly after the abduction occurred.

Wesson and Sellers contend however that Scudder helped plan the kidnaping and was a willing "victim."

Sortino testified Monday that he had been a partner of Scudder's son, Craig, in an ambulance business in Laguna Hills. He said that when the partnership ended, he kept the ambulance the partners had used when they first started.

He said that Scudder and his son hounded him at regular intervals in their attempts to regain control over the ambulance.

Sortino said that Scudder talked to him about a week after the kidnaping and again demanded that he (Sortino) return the ambulance.

During that conversation, Sortino said, Scudder asked, "did you hear about my kidnaping?"

Sortino said that he replied he had, and that Scudder responded by stating "wasn't that smart of me to fake the heart attack."

Sortino said that Scudder then blurted out that he "planned the whole thing."

The witness said he attempted to phone Scudder later that night and get a tape recording of Scudder's comments about setting up the kidnaping, but that Scudder failed to respond.

He said he asked Scudder by phone what he had said about the kidnaping, but that Scudder replied after a long pause, "cute, Frank, real cute," and then terminated the phone call.

Sortino said he never brought Scudder's comments up before because he couldn't prove them and he was concerned "about the hassle Scudder can cause." Sortino also replied that he first told his story in December when he was interviewed by a district attorney's investigator.

Wesson concluded three days of testimony earlier Monday by stating that he never seriously thought about getting arrested, mostly because Scudder was a willing victim.

7 (Then 8) Carters To Share Mansion

By CHRISTOPHER BONNER Knight News Wire

WASHINGTON — When Jimmy Carter takes over the White House he will bring along a lot of his family — at least six of them — and very soon, a seventh.

Living in the second and third floor private quarters of the executive mansion will be Carter, his wife, Rosalynn; daughter Amy; son Chip and his wife, Carol; son Jeff and his wife, Annette.

Adding to this clan will be Amy's two cats, a Siamese, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, and another, described as an alleycat, Sawl Shoes. There are no plans for a White House dog.

The prospective first family's staff hasn't figured out yet who is going to live where, but a family spokesman said there would be room for everyone.

The President and his wife, and probably Amy, will be situated in the spacious second floor private quarters, which include a living room, two sitting rooms, two bedrooms, kitchen and dining room in the west end of the mansion.

The third floor, which is rarely seen by outsiders, consists of a series of private rooms, one of which is now occupied by Jack Ford, the President's son. It could easily be remodeled into two apartments for the two younger Carter couples.

From his perch in the White House, son Chip, 26, will be in prime position for his new job, which will be playing "some active role for his father," Carter spokesman Ann Anderson said.

While her easygoing husband is assisting the President, possibly as a family emissary on overseas trips, Carol, 25, will be waiting to have her first baby, which is due in March.

Chip has about a semester to go before he receives a college degree as a political science major, but is putting off his studies for a while. Carol has a master's degree in education, and she was once a teacher of slow learners in Plains.

Jeff, 24, meanwhile, plans to attend George Washington University, eight blocks from the White House. He will be a junior majoring in urban geography.

Annette, 24, who has a bachelor's degree in home economics education, is looking for "some role in the life of the White House," Anderson said.

Amy, who is 9, will be a fourth grader at nearby Stevens Elementary School.

The President-elect's eldest son, Jack, 29, will remain in Calhoun, Ga., practicing law with his wife Judy's father.

Miss Lillian, Carter's sprightly 78-year-old mother, has indicated that she will often visit the White House, but will continue to live in Plains.

Privacy Act 'May Restrict' Probe On Welfare Cheats

SEATTLE (AP) — The president of the National Welfare Fraud Association said Monday that proposed recommendations of a federal commission on privacy could thwart investigations of welfare cheats.

"It would be impossible, just impossible, for us to function in our designated responsibility at the state level with these (proposed) federal restrictions," said Robert Neilson, head of the organization of about 600 state and local prosecutors and officials who investigate welfare fraud cases.

Neilson is also director of the Washington State Social and Health Services' Department office of investigation.

The proposed recommendations are contained in a draft study prepared by the Privacy Protection Study Commission, created by Congress in 1974 with passage of the Privacy Act. The final study is due to be submitted to Congress in six months.

The commission is charged with recommending ways to protect the privacy of individuals, especially in an era of computer technology which allows information to be kept indefinitely and recalled in moments.

Public hearings are scheduled this month in Washington, D.C., on the draft study. Neilson said a member of the welfare fraud association would testify at the portion of the hearings dealing with public assistance and social services.

He said one recommendation would virtually erase subpoena powers because it suggests "that when a record about an applicant or recipient is subpoenaed, the subject should be notified and given opportunity to contest the subpoena."

"(It subpoena) is of no value if we need the recipient's approval," said Neilson. He also said that under the commission's draft recommendations, a welfare recipient would be allowed to see any file — including an investigative report — pertaining to the recipient and would have to be contacted for permission before an investigator could see the file.

David Linowes, chairman of the study commission and a professor of politics and public policy at the University of Illinois at Urbana, said recommendations in the study are far from complete and that comments from any quarter are welcome.

SNARLED TAPE

Dear Trouble Shooter

I more or less "inherited" a dear 93-year-old man from my late aunt who had been his wife's best friend and tried to care for him after the wife's death. I try to visit him at least once a week in the Costa Mesa convalescent home where he now lives. I have no financial responsibility for him. I just try to see that he is comfortable and is properly taken care of.

This dear man is almost totally blind and very hard of hearing. His mind, however, is alert and active. Three months ago, somebody in the convalescent hospital stole his dentures. They had just been refitted by a dentist under the state Dent-Cal program. Hospital personnel said they had tried unsuccessfully to locate the missing dentures. Here is where our problem began.

In order to obtain new dentures under this program, there are numerous forms to be filled out. We did the necessary paper work on Sept. 16. The dentist could not proceed with new dentures until he received authorization from a "screening authority." This we were told would take several months.

Meanwhile, this fine man has had to exist for almost four months on a bland diet. He has lost almost 30 pounds because he cannot chew any food.

To make matters even worse, on Dec. 6, a letter was sent by the state dental program to the convalescent home setting up a "screening" appointment. The letter was forwarded to me. It reached me at 4:30 p.m. on Dec. 15. The appointment had been set for earlier that morning.

I called the authorized dentist to explain what had happened and asked for another appointment. He told me the state requires the "paper work" to be done on the day of the appointment, whether the appointment was kept or not, and that we would have to start all over again. This means at least another three months' delay.

My old friend has now lost his will to live. He cannot see. He cannot hear. He cannot read or watch television. His only life's pleasure is being able to eat. Without his dentures, this is denied him.

Is there anything you can do to speed up a new appointment for him?

L. McC.

Santa Ana

The Trouble Shooter's not even going to try, Ma'am. By the time he managed to snip through the red tape involved in the state dental program, it might be too late.

One of the Trouble Shooter's anonymous "secret angels" has authorized your charge's dentist to make him some proper dentures pronto and to send him the bill.

YOUR REUNION?

Dear Trouble Shooter

The Morningside High School Class of 1957 has scheduled its 20-year reunion at the Convention Center Hotel in Buena Park for the weekend of March 19 and 20. Will you ask class members who live in this area to call (213) 673-3110?

B.A.

You betcha. Always happy to help round folks up for their class reunions. Hope those of you who attended Morningside in the Inglewood area have a good time at yours.

GREAT OFFER!

Dear Trouble Shooter

I am a former home economics teacher. I have been sorting through my teaching files, throwing away old and irrelevant materials.

Would some prospective or current home economics teacher like to have what I've saved for making lesson plans on all phases of home economics? They are all indexed for easy access.

What a great offer! You're bound to hear from a passel of interested teachers. Let's suggest that they give you a jingle at 536-4640 evenings, all right?

MESSAGE RECEIVED

Dear Trouble Shooter

I had an experience this holiday season which will stay with me the rest of my life. I recall going to one of the local stores with a friend of mine to do some of my Christmas shopping. As we entered the store, we heard the familiar ring of the Salvation Army. Thinking nothing of it, we continued on with our own business. After making my purchases, I went outside and waited for my friend to join me. Standing not more than five feet from the familiar ring I had heard before, I overheard a conversation which at that time aggravated me. An elderly lady walked up to the Salvation Army representative and dropped some change in her cup. The response from the receiver was very gracious with a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year" - but she also added, "If all the people who passed by me would just drop a dime in this cup, I wouldn't have to stand here ringing this bell." As she finished thanking the donor my thoughts went to the normal defense that we all use - "If I give to every charity that comes around, I'll be nickle and dimed to death and, besides, the Salvation Army just helps those at missions you see in the movies on television." After I had convinced myself I had done the right thing by passing that cup, I went home.

Last night I had a startling recurrence of that day with the familiar ring of the bell. Because of a stroke which left my grandmother paralyzed on her left side, she lives in a convalescent home in Costa Mesa. Last night was the Christmas party at the home and relatives were invited to join the older folks to listen to carolers, talk to Santa and enjoy cookies. The joy on all the older folks faces was overwhelming as Santa handed out gifts to each and every one of them. As my mother held the gift from Santa, my grandmother excitedly ripped the package open with her good hand. It didn't take long for all that wrapping to come off to reveal what was inside. I couldn't believe my eyes - it was a plastic bag full of lotions, toothpaste and powder. But it wasn't what was inside that set me back. On the outside of that plastic bag was printed as big as life - "Salvation Army". All I could hear from that point on was "If all the people who passed by me would just drop a dime in this cup, I wouldn't have to stand here ringing this bell." My defense I had offered before didn't mean anything. The Salvation Army brought great joy into those older folks' lives that night, and I'll never pass that cup up again.

I can spare a dime to them, and I hope sharing my experience with you will help other people not to pass that familiar ringing bell. Someday I may be in the same position as my grandmother - for age avoids no one.

Thank you for letting me share my experience with you.

L.M.M.

Huntington Beach

And thank you for a beautiful letter. The message it carries rings as loud and clear as a Salvation Army bell!

HUMAN ERROR

Dear Trouble Shooter

Some time in early November, I put a down jacket on lay-away for my husband's Christmas present. I made regular payments on it. When I went to pick it up just before the holiday, I was informed they could not find the jacket and that they didn't have any more like it since they had had a sale on the jackets. They said all they could do was refund my money.

Is this legal? I thought that once I put the jacket on lay-away and made regular payments, the sale could not be cancelled. Do I have any rights in a situation like this?

T.J.

Stanton

The Trouble Shooter's no lawyer, Ma'am, so he's not qualified to render a legal opinion. However, he reckons that most judges would consider that human error falls under the law of averages and that the store's offer to refund your money exonerates it.

Record Year Cooking For OC Restaurateurs

By TIM SKROVE
Register Staff Writer

Orange Countians love to eat - away from home.

Sales in the county's restaurants, coffee shops and fast food businesses during the past 15 years have made the dining and beverage industry here the fastest growing in California - the state which leads the nation in food industry growth.

Analysts attribute the growth to affluence, population increases and "the lifestyle" enjoyed by Orange Countians, along with increased numbers of single persons and working wives.

Whatever the reasons, statistics from the state Board of Equalization show more than $557 million was spent in county eating places during 1976 alone. That's $331 for every man, woman and child living here.

And sales statistics for the first nine months of 1977 indicate that the food service industry is pushing toward another record year.

Compiling exact figures on the total volume of food service sales in Orange County, however, is difficult. Board of Equalization figures do not include food and drinks sold in hotels, retail stores and a number of other establishments and probably reflect only 65 to 68 per cent of the industry's total business.

That means the $486 million spent in county eating places during the first three quarters of 1976 is only a part of an estimated $714 million in food sales.

Going out to eat and drink is big business.

The National Restaurant Association (NRA) estimates Americans now spend one of every three food dollars eating away from home. And by 1980 that figure is expected to two out of five, the NRA predicts.

Bob Wisely, vice president of marketing for Carl's Jr. Restaurants, headquartered in Anaheim, said the growth of the restaurant industry in Orange County represents a "compatible profile" with population, industrial and commercial growth here.

"It would be unreasonable if the (food service) industry didn't follow the expansion of all sectors of the economy," he said.

Board of Equalization statistics show the county had 1,146 prepared food businesses (excluding the hotels, retail outlets and those listed as "others") with $79.8 million in sales in 1960. By 1975, there were 2,813 establishments with more than $557 million in business.

And during most of that 15-year period, Orange County growth has led the state in both sales and the number of eating places. Even with inflation, real growth in the food industry here in 1975 was double the national average, according to the Southern California Restaurant Association (SCRA).

Today, only Los Angeles County boasts more places to eat than Orange County. And statistics from the state Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) indicate the county ranks third behind Los Angeles and San Francisco in the number of dining houses, where full menus and mixed drinks are served.

Anaheim had 77 dinner house-type restaurants as of April 1, while Newport Beach had 67 and Santa Ana 44.

But even with the industry's success, it's not without its problems.

Competition is intense. To meet it, many dinner houses have adopted exotic names and decorated their establishments with relics, memorabilia and artifacts that create "themes" ranging from Merry Ol' England to the Spanish-bull ring or the "Roaring Twenties."

Skyrocketing costs also have created a trend toward restaurant chains, which some say is making it increasingly difficult for the individual entrepreneur to break into the food service industry.

"The idea of a restaurant has become a total business," said Doug Rys, vice president of the Ancient Mariner-Rusty Pelican chain.

Douglas Salisbury, president of Jolly Roger Inc., said it cost his firm over $1 million just to "open the doors" of a new restaurant in Lake Forest.

A typical restaurant in the Carl's Jr. chain costs about $350,000 to open, Wisely reported.

Salisbury added the restaurant business is a "very intricate industry that takes expertise, skill, time and financial backing to provide service to the public. And it is getting tougher," he said.

Bud Talbot, executive director of the California Dining and Beverage Association (CDBA), headquartered in Orange, added it takes a "shrewd operator" to make money in the business these days, with small independent businessmen having to "marry their establishments" to make a profit.

Food service industry spokesmen agree that rising costs on all fronts coupled with government regulations and skyrocketing insurance premiums are cutting into business gains.

"Even with next year's sales expected to be up, the profit picture is very tight," said Bob Riley, of SCRA in Los Angeles.

Industry spokesmen said third-party liquor liability insurance has increased up to 800 per cent for some firms. "And that is if you can get it at all," one spokesman said.

Such insurance has increased dramatically since courts started awarding large monetary settlements in accident cases involving drinking drivers. The CDBA plans to introduce legislation this month that would set limits on third-party liquor liability settlements.

Also, the industry, which has traditionally paid low wages in lieu of tips, was hit with a 25 per cent increase in wages last October when the state industrial welfare commission raised the minimum wage to $2.50 per hour.

Industry spokesmen say they have had to pass those increases on to the consumer either in higher prices - between 4 and 11 per cent - or by reducing the number of employees, which means skimpier service.

And service, along with food and atmosphere, is one of the key selling points of any eating establishment - perhaps even more important than price, Riley said.

Even with recent price increases, industry spokesmen said they haven't noticed a reduction in clientele.

In fact, the food service industry seems somewhat immune to most economic fluctuations, with statistics showing that the industry continued to grow statewide during the recession of 1973-75.

Salisbury said Jolly Roger Inc. even saw an additional increase in customers during the economic slump - probably captured from more expensive dinner houses.

"People are in the habit of eating out three times a week, and they don't like to change," he said.

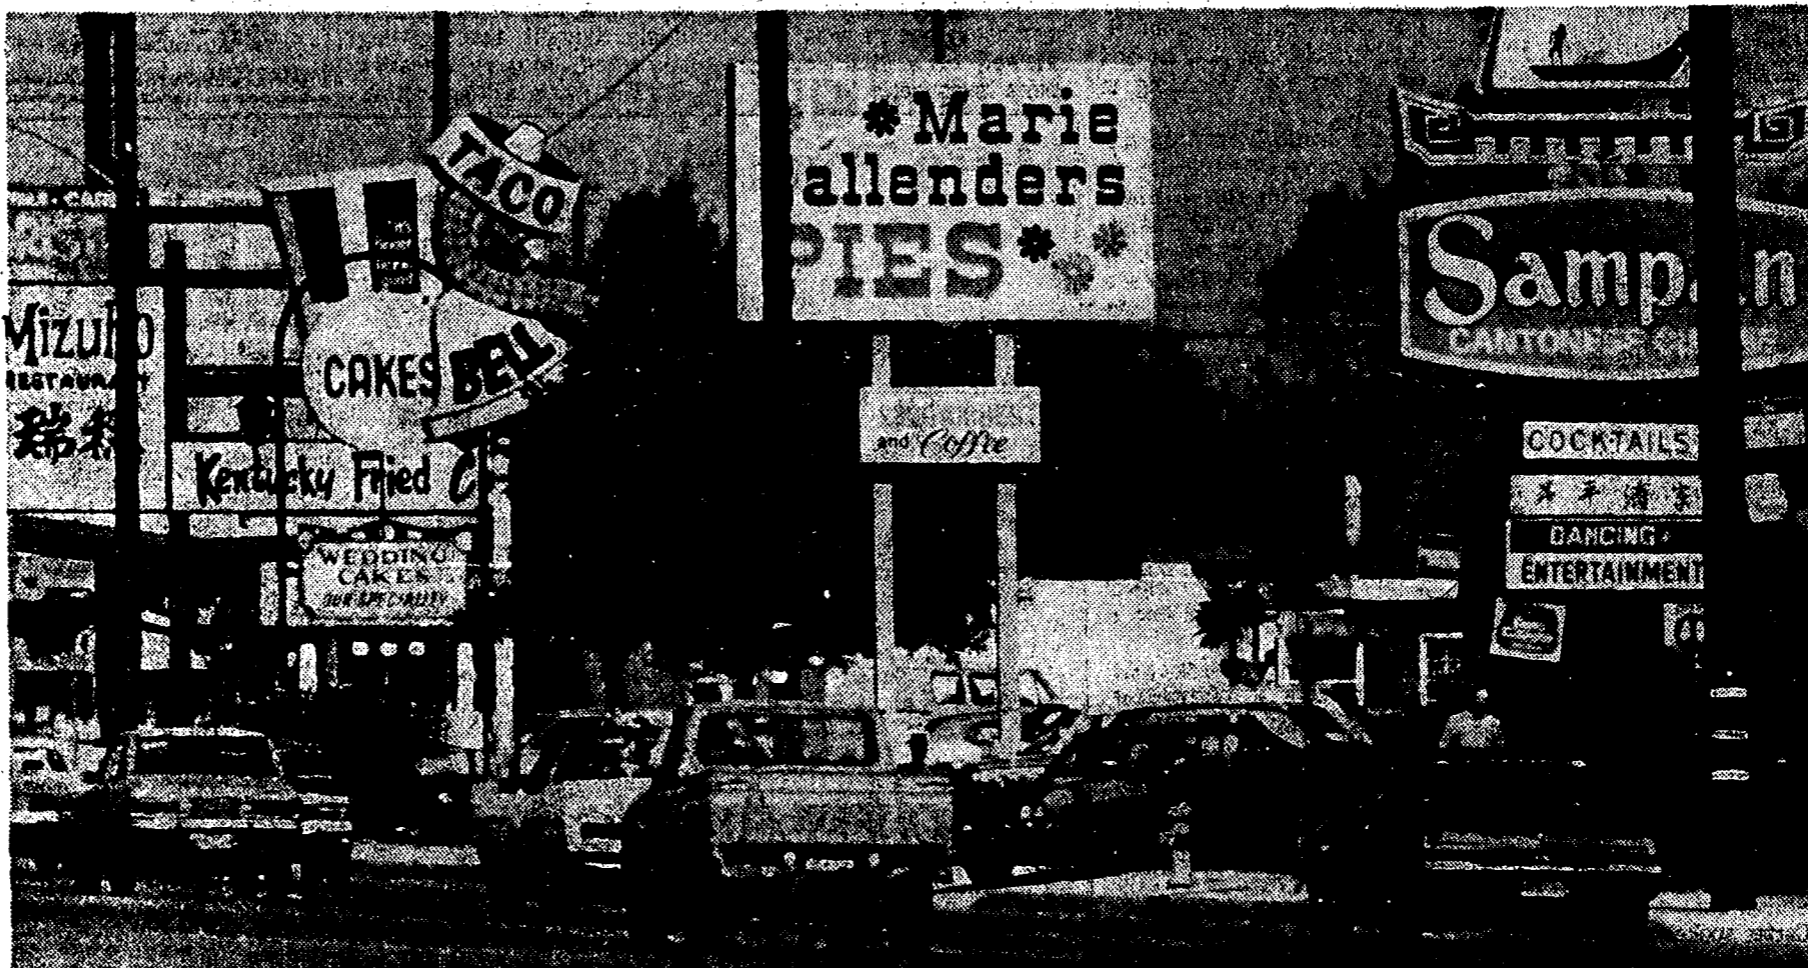

United California Bank's economic forecast for next year predicts continued economic growth, more jobs and a higher median family income.

The county's population also is expected to increase by 59,000, which probably means more individuals will live the "lifestyle" that caters to eating away from home.

"Orange County is the best place in the country to get a restaurant," said Talbot of the CDBA, "and people are applying for licenses in droves."

SA Approves Adult-Rated Moratorium

By CHARLES ROBERTS
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA - In the wake of last week's court ruling on dial-a-ride, Orange County Transit District directors Monday asked their staff to begin work on plans to restart the program in Orange.

The Fourth District Court of Appeal decision reversed an earlier Superior Court ruling that could not expand dial-a-ride without paying privately owned taxi firms for the privilege.

But OCTD general manager Edward Loritz warned that,

SANTA ANA - No new "adult" businesses, such as movie theaters or massage parlors, will be allowed to open in the city as a result of a four-month moratorium councilmen imposed Monday.

At the recommendation of the city attorney, councilmen adopted an emergency ordinance that went into effect immediately.

As a result of the action, the city staff will not issue business licenses or occupancy permits for the banned businesses.

The moratorium, which could be extended longer than the initial four months, is designed to give councilmen time to decide if they want to enact permanent zoning regulations governing "adult" uses, said City Atty. Keith Gow.

Gow said he prepared the ordinance because of "indications" that the council might be interested in zoning measures adopted in Detroit and Boston.

The Detroit measure imposes distance requirements between the so-called adult businesses and their neighbors. The Boston measure concentrates the adult uses in one particular zone of the city.

The Santa Ana moratorium will not affect existing adult businesses unless they plan to expand, Gow said.

Liquor stores which display adult magazines will not be affected by the ordinance but hotels and motels which exhibit X-rated films will be, Gow said.

Santa Ana becomes the third city in the county to adopt such a moratorium. Brea and Buena Park have adopted similar ordinances, Gow said, but have not yet adopted permanent zoning regulations.

Dial-A-Ride Expansion Plans Ordered

despite the project being the staff's top priority item, it may be months before there is action.

Loritz said the study will involve a complete reevaluation of dial-a-ride in light of recent developments.

He had reference to the appellate court's ruling and to an agreement reached last month between OCTD and Yellow Cab of Northern Orange County, one of the taxi companies that brought the suit.

The agreement calls for Yellow Cab to operate a dial-

a-ride system in Fullerton, beginning Feb. 7, using a mixture of taxis and transit district-provided vehicles.

Loritz said that the contract with Yellow Cab is the most economical approach to operating dial-a-ride and future dial-a-ride systems also might be operated by taxi companies.

Prior to the Yellow Cab agreement, OCTD contracted with two transit management firms to operate dial-a-ride systems in La Habra, Brea and Orange.

Yellow Cab brought the lawsuit out of fear that OCTD would continue expansion of dial-a-ride without either compensating the taxis for the lost revenue or paying them to operate the systems.

The Orange system was suspended last spring after OCTD lost the lawsuit brought by Yellow Cab. A Superior Court judge ordered the transit district either to cease competing with the taxi firms or buy them out.

OCTD paid Yellow Cab $4,000 to begin dial-a-ride in Brea and agreed to pay $6,000 for rights to operate in La

Habra if the transit district lost its appeal, which it did not.

Since dial-a-ride was suspended in Orange, OCTD has used a management firm to operate its "Easy Rider" - an intra-city loop system - in that city because the cost of buying out Yellow Cab there was considered "prohibitive."

"Easy Rider" is not an "on-demand" system but a fixed-route and schedule operation that is not considered direct competition with taxis.

But transit district directors have said they are dissatisfied with the number of riders using "Easy Rider" in Orange, as well as in Buena Park and Westminster which also began "Easy Rider" rather than dial-a-ride because of the Superior Court order.

Until Yellow Cab won in Superior Court in late 1975, OCTD had plans for dial-a-ride systems in cities all around the county.

Director William Farris, an Orange attorney, made the request for resumption of dial-a-ride in Orange. He was unhappy with seeing "Easy Rider" passenger figures.

Director Robin Young, La Habra mayor, said she "heartily agreed."

Loritz said one of the considerations in the dial-a-ride study will be the number of buses available should OCTD expand its current three-vehicle dial-a-lift program to a countywide system.

Dial-a-lift is a telephone summoned vehicle fitted with a special lift for transporting persons confined to wheelchairs.

Loritz said he expects to have a plan ready within 30 days as to how OCTD could expand dial-a-lift to southern Orange County. He said vehicles could be drawn from those that might otherwise be used for dial-a-ride.

Before dial-a-ride was suspended in Orange, it was using 19 mini-buses, Loritz said. Easy Rider in Orange uses 30-35 mini-buses, he said.

SUPERVISORS SWORN IN

Riley Expected To Head OC Board

By SANDI MOSLEY
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA - Ralph Diedrich, sworn in Monday for his second four-year term, said he will not seek appointment for a third year as chairman of the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

Thomas Riley, supervisor from the fifth district (south county area), was expected to be named today by fellow supervisors to take over as chairman of the board.

Riley, a Newport Beach resident, said Monday he has sought the post "because I think the people of the fifth district want their supervisor to be chairman." A poll of supervisors Monday indicated he had enough votes to win the job.

Selection of a new chairman is one of the first official acts of each new year by the supervisors.

Every other year, it is preceded by one day the swearing-in of newly elected supervisors.

Philip Anthony, former Westminster mayor who was elected supervisor for the central county area (first district) in November, and Fullerton's Diedrich, who won an unchallenged second term in June, Monday were sworn in to office in separate ceremonies.

Riley, who also won election to office in June, was not sworn in, according to his staff, because he was elected to continue filling the unexpired term of the late Ronald Caspers. He was sworn in after being appointed in September 1974 to the term that runs through 1978.

Diedrich, breaking with tradition, was sworn in Monday by Mrs. Mary Quandt, a 33-year resident of Brea named as the city's Woman of the Year in 1976 by the chamber of commerce.

Diedrich, breaking with tradition, was sworn in Monday by Mrs. Mary Quandt, a 33-year resident of Brea named as the city's Woman of the Year in 1976 by the chamber of commerce.

MacDOUGALL HEADS O.C. PLANNING COMMISSION

SANTA ANA - William R. MacDougall, the appointee of fifth-district Supervisor Thomas Riley, was unanimously elected chairman of the county planning commission Monday.

MacDougall's victory was assured when he was nominated by Peggy Cranston, the appointee of third district Supervisor Ralph Diedrich. Mrs. Cranston, the only other person considered a candidate for the chairman's post, was then unanimously elected vice-chairman.

MacDougall, a Newport Beach attorney, was appointed to the panel last June.

He succeeds Earl Wooden as chairman. Wooden announced last week that demands of his job as a painters union official would prevent him from seeking re-election.

Superior Court Judge Richard Beacom.

Both Diedrich and Anthony coincidentally stumbled at the same sentence in the oath, where they pledge to faithfully discharge the duties "upon which I am about to enter."

"The hardest part of this job is getting through the oath," Anthony quipped to the standing-room-only audience composed mostly of campaign workers and supporters.

Diedrich couldn't control his laughter when he garbled the same phrase later and stopped to explain to his own full-house audience what had happened to Anthony.

Before he relinquishes the chairmanship, Diedrich was scheduled to make a "state of the county" address today.

Diedrich skipped the address last year at the end of his first year as chairman. It was one of the county's stormiest years in history, with the first indictment of a county supervisor (Robert Battin), conviction of the county assessor on misuse of county funds, appearances of two supervisors before the grand jury on separate investigations and the continued sinking of the west county courts building into its underlying peat bog.

Orange District Eyes School Bond

ORANGE — Year-round classes and a school construction bond election will be considered as possible alternatives to a proposed home builder surcharge of up to $3,400 for each new student by school trustees at 7:30 p.m. here Thursday.

The Orange Unified School District board scheduled a hearing to obtain public opinion on proposed changes in the student-home building fee plan, said Supt. Donald Ingwerson.

The meeting will be held at district headquarters, 370 N. Glassell. The board will consider final adoption of the building-fee at its Jan. 20 meeting.

Ingwerson said the board hopes to come up with a solution for "providing adequate classrooms for the increasing number of new students moving into the district."

Currently, enrollment is at a record high of 31,106 students. It is expected to climb to 33,269 by 1982 — a seven per cent hike.

The special student surcharge for each new home built in the eastern and north-eastern portion of the district was proposed last month by Taxpayers Against Crowded Schools (TACS).

The committee wants the district to ask the cities of Orange, Villa Park and Anaheim to require home builders to pay a per-student surcharge tax to the school district as part of the approval of an environmental impact statement.

Pioneer Minister Dead; Rites Today

COSTA MESA — Funeral services for the Rev. Demetrius Bazan, 76, one of the two founders of the Spanish Assemblies of God Church in the United States, were scheduled at 10 a.m. today at the Whittier family church of the Assembly of God, 8434 S. Greenleaf St., Whittier, with interment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Cypress.

Rev. Bazan was born Dec.

22, 1900, in Mexico, and died Dec. 31 at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital. He resided most of his life in the United States.

Survivors include his widow, Nellie; seven children; 48 grandchildren; eight great grandchildren; two brothers and two sisters.

A minister for the past 56 years, Rev. Bazan pioneered churches in the United States — mostly in Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

He served as superintendent of the Spanish Assemblies of God for 19 years, an organization which grew to include 600 congregations and 800 ministers in the United States. Rev. Bazan recently attended the 50th anniversary of a church he founded in Houston, Texas.

Mrs. Houlihan Services Held

GARDEN GROVE — Funeral services have been held for Teresa Cecilia (Tracey) Houlihan, 76, who died Friday after a lengthy illness.

A mass was celebrated Monday at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church, Westminster, and burial was at the Good Shepherd Cemetery, Huntington Beach.

Mrs. Houlihan, 9062 Central Ave., is survived by her widower, John; a daughter, Rose Kathleen Dourgarian, Stockton; two sons, Maurice, Garden Grove, and Jackie, Huntington Beach; 13 grandchildren, three great grandchildren, and two sisters, Ann Noonan, Orange, and Barbara Keith, Glendale.

Stanton's Bid To Stop Park Buy Advances

SANTA ANA — Superior Court Judge William Murray Monday set Jan. 19 as the hearing date on the city of Stanton's latest attempt to block the purchase of park land in Orange.

Stanton wants to block the purchase to reserve the money for park land acquisition and development in western Orange County which it claims has been neglected.

The city failed in its attempt Dec. 30 to obtain a temporary halt in the county's planned purchase and filed new papers Monday.

At issue is the board of supervisors' Nov. 10 action to buy 30 acres bounded by Hewes Street, Bond Avenue and Santiago Boulevard. Stanton claims in its suit that a new environmental impact report is needed before the purchase can be made because the original report was based on the planned development of all 68 acres of the parcel for park land.

According to the suit, since 38 acres will remain available for development, the project is sufficiently altered that the city should have a new opportunity to present evidence of adverse environmental impact.

The property is owned by Warrington Development Co. Supervisors exercised an option that expired Jan. 1 approving the purchase.

Police Probe Burglary In SC

SAN CLEMENTE — Police here are investigating a burglary which they say cost a resident at least $50,000 in lost property.

William Barton, 717 Avenida Columbus, told police Saturday that burglars had pried open a window while he was away for a few days and had taken television monitors and playback equipment, a fur coat, guns, jewelry, and cash.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

There is a real blunder in the play of today's hand. A real blunder, but of the sort that almost everyone makes.

South won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, led the six of hearts and finessed his queen. The finesse worked, but West dropped the jack. Now South couldn't lay down his ace and concede one trump trick. He had to lead a low heart to dummy's 10.

East took his king and led out the ace-king of spades.

South ruffed the second spade; entered dummy with the queen of diamonds; led the eight of hearts and let it ride after East played low. Now he tried to get back to his hand with a diamond, but East ruffed for the third defensive trick. South still had to lose a club and his contract.

Do you see where South made his blunder?

It was at trick two. He led the six of hearts from dummy. If he had led the eight when it came time to play that third trump from dummy he would have been leading the six. Then he could overtake with his seven, pluck East's last trump and chalk up the game.

Ask the Jacobys

A Mississippi reader asks what happens when the first defender fails to follow to the suit led by declarer, but discovers the error after dummy and the other defender have followed to the trick.

The answer is that the player announces, "I could have followed suit." Declarer may now demand that the offender play her highest or lowest card and then change the card played from dummy if he so desires. As for the other opponent, his card remains as played.

Kaiser Aetna Sues Brea Over Redevelopment Plan

SANTA ANA — In an action that could demolish Brea's redevelopment plan, the Kaiser Aetna Corp. has sued the city to remove its land from the plan and free it for construction of a housing project.

Kaiser claims in the suit, filed here in Superior Court, that the city is attempting to help the Brea-Olinda Unified School District obtain the 47-acre parcel for a school site.

In so doing, the suit alleges, the city claimed the land was "blighted," but failed to provide proof of that in its rush to enact the redevelopment plan in time to have it become effective Jan. 1 and escape changes in state law affecting redevelopment.

The suit claims that Kaiser, doing business as Ponderosa Homes, obtained approval in September 1972 for a phased construction of a planned community on a 283-acre parcel.

That project, known as Country Hills, is complete except for the final phase involving 47 acres.

According to the lawsuit, construction of that final phase is now in limbo because the land is designated as a future high school site.

The existing high school is located across from a new shopping mall making the land on which it sits very valuable as commercial property.

The suit alleges that the school district wants to sell the old school site and relocate it to the Kaiser property.

But, the school district has seven years — the life of the redevelopment project — in which to decide to buy Kaiser's land and make the move.

According to Kaiser's attorney, Marlene Fox, her client is willing to sell to the school district but, it is not willing to wait up to seven years to learn if and when the sale will be made.

Pills Might Kill More Than Her Pain

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother always has something the matter with her. It's either a "splitting headache," "dizzy spells" or eating something that didn't "agree" with her.

She eats "pain-killers" like you wouldn't believe. If the directions say to take two, she takes four. She buys every kind she can get without a prescription. I've tried to tell her this is dangerous, but she won't listen to me.

She reads your column faithfully and thinks you know everything, so maybe you can straighten her out.

I'm not exaggerating, and I'm not a child. I'm a 30-year-old married woman who loves her mother and is worried sick about her.

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Tell your mother that Abby said a "pain" is Nature's signal that something is wrong. And to kill the pain and ignore the warning instead of seeing a physician is not only foolish, it could be fatal.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to someone's home for dinner, and when I arrived, the stereo was blaring loudly. All during dinner and even afterward when we were talking, the stereo was turned up so high I could scarcely hear anything else, and I had to practically shout to be heard.

Needless to say, I didn't enjoy the evening. In fact, when I left I had a headache.

Don't people realize how rude it is to have a stereo turned on so loud that it's impossible to carry on a normal conversation? I hope you print this.

PAT FROM PARKLAND

DEAR PAT: I'll print it for: those who aren't aware that loud stereo music is often more irritating than entertaining, plus those who timidly tolerate it rather than ask their host (or hostess) to please turn it down—a reasonable request.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a grown man who cheats at cards, and when confronted, throws the cards up in the air, runs to his room and broods for the rest of the evening?

Abby, this man has a Ph. D. in nuclear physics and holds a $40,000-a-year job.

We have been playing bridge regularly for over three years. This past weekend when I caught him cheating, I confronted him and asked for a re-deal. He literally threw a tantrum. We're not speaking now as a result of all this.

Should I have kept my mouth shut, or was I justified in letting him know I was on to his sleight-of-hand trick?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You should not have kept your mouth shut. But had you waited to tell him privately instead of humiliating him before the others, you could have avoided an ugly scene.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lusk Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Romance Blooms In Portland Dialysis Ward

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The clinical silence of a kidney dialysis ward isn't the world's most romantic place, but when you spend 24 hours a week there you get to know the people in it pretty well.

Mike Leite and Robin Perry know. Both have been on the dialysis program since early in 1974.

She was on the morning shift, and got off the life-saving machine at noon. He came on at 1 p.m. for his treatment.

Then one day she ran late and he arrived early, and they met.

Last week, they announced their engagement.

The machines act as artificial kidneys and clean blood for persons whose kidneys have failed. "This nurse at the hospital was always trying to set me up with people," said Mike, 26, an administrative trainee at the U.S. Veterans Administration Hospital in Portland. "One day she stuck a piece of paper with Robin's phone number in my pocket, and I gave her a call." Last Valentine's Day, they went out for the first time.

George Wann of the Kidney Association of Oregon said there are few if any other dialysis patients married to each other.

"But there's no reason why they shouldn't be," he said.

Mike and Robin say they are in a better position to understand each other's problems because they both have to go through the process three times a week at Portland's Good Samaritan Hospital.

"If one of us feels bad after a run (a stint on the dialysis machine) the other can understand it better," Mike said. "We can relate to each other better."

Except for hospital personnel, he said, few understand the problems of kidney patients. They plan a week's honeymoon in Hawaii after their Sept. 10, 1977, wedding, but will have to make arrangements to get the thrice-weekly treatments while they are there.

The treatments cost $23,000 a year each. Medicare pays for most of it. The rest is paid for by insurance and by the KAO, which operates on contributions.

KAO spokesman George Wann says it is much cheaper to support a home dialysis program for a patient, but that each must have a helper to be in attendance throughout the six to eight hour procedure.

If the couple helped each other alternate nights, it would take up six nights a week, leaving little time for anything else, Wann said.

Leite, who jogs regularly, says kidney patients can do almost anything other people can. "We might not be as strong as someone else," he said.

His body rejected transplanted kidneys on two separate tries, and he says he doubts if he'll try again. "I spit out a kidney pretty fast," he said.

Robin, 22, has never tried it and says she doesn't plan to. Since his condition is hereditary, they say they probably will adopt children.

Toilet Watcher Finds A Way To Save Water

NORTH SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Nicholas Ludovici has spent the past year looking in the backs of toilets. And now he thinks he's found what he's been looking for.

Ludovici has filed for a patent on a device that can be put in the back of toilets and which he claims can save two gallons of water every time a toilet is flushed — a saving of about 40 per cent.

The impact of such a saving could amount to billions of gallons of water each year and could dramatically lessen pressure on the country's water resources, he said.

Ludovici, 50, said the device is made of a rubberized compound and forms a protective collar around the outlet of the toilet, creating a small dam that prevents some of the water from disappearing.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 5

Your birthday today: Brings you into collision course with destiny, with many events of dramatic quality all year. You must choose time and again between long-established habit and a future that breaks off from the past. Relationships are delicately balanced, occasionally tense. Today's natives include many students of occult and mystical subjects, fewer businesspeople. Those born this year will develop profound wisdom, objectivity, but need much encouragement while very young.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Somebody you depend on drops the ball, so you work harder than usual. What you relinquish now is gone forever. Let it be choice, not negligence.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Mechanical gear needs careful checking, use, especially if related to travel. Arguments tend to get out of hand. Look for a surprise at home.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Avoid meddling or speculating in unfamiliar materials. Today's written word will stand but verbal agreements are a problem from the outset.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: What seems rational to you doesn't to others. Your insistence, backed by hard work, will prevail but right now nobody is going to bat for you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Don't pass the buck; sign nothing unless you're sure details are correct. Some old conveniences end, your challenge is to develop something better.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Note where time, money, energy come from. If it's mainly yours, redo matters to serve your interests best. Don't try to change anyone's mind.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Since you can't please everybody, please yourself. Quietly achieve a long-desired, personal goal. Life at home is full of important observations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You're on your own in dealing with officials, do better if you can put it off till tomorrow. Bad advice comes from the most plausible sources.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Comparisons are made as your eye is caught by others' resources. Don't let this draw you into plans beyond your means. Travel with caution.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Your knack for organizing details now causes disturbance. At work, speak plainly. At home, listen before making judgments, corrective action.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Unsuspected factors affect almost all enterprises. You have plenty to do to find out what's happening. Keep it from creating misunderstandings.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your opinions are right on the surface. Let friends know you care what they do, but don't criticize petty faults, errors. Keep travel to minimum.

LA Candidate Wants Vote On Redevelopment

The REGISTER Tuesday, Jan. 4, 1977 B4

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state senator who wants to be mayor of Los Angeles reintroduced legislation Monday aimed at allowing voters to throw out the Los Angeles downtown redevelopment plan.

At the same time, Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, denied

he was unethical in his actions on redevelopment legislation last September.

Mayor Tom Bradley made the accusation at a Los Angeles news conference earlier Monday, when he announced he would be on the April 5 primary ballot for reelection.

Robbins countered with an accusation that Bradley has been "stuffing his pockets" with some $200,000 in campaign contributions from owners of high-rise buildings in the redevelopment zone.

Robbins said the redevelopment plan is a subsidy by which $75 million a year in taxes goes to redevelopment instead of schools, and the suburbs have to make up the difference.

Another redevelopment bill, by Assemblyman Joseph Montoya, D-La Puente, has been proposed again. It was the subject of bitterness last September between Montoya and Robbins as the latter sought to include a retroactive provision for a referendum on the Los Angeles plan.

The Senate, where Robbins made his effort in the waning moments of the session, refused to pass an amendment fixing a typographical error.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. cited the error — petition signatures of one per cent instead of 10 per cent of those who voted in the last mayoralty election — when he vetoed the bill.

Montoya's bill, which is not retroactive, is proposed again with the 10 per cent provision, said Montoya aide Jerry Asher.

It affects cities and counties over 800,000 in population, Asher said, and provides 90 days to collect signatures instead of the current 30-day limit.

Among cities, only Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and San Jose have populations over 500,000. There are 10 counties — Los Angeles, Alameda, Contra Costa, Orange, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Mateo and Santa Clara.

These cities and counties would have 90-day petition requirements for signatures of 10 per cent of voters who cast ballots in the last citywide or countywide election, unless they have different percentages in city or county codes, Asher said.

Smaller cities are covered in existing laws that allow 30 days to collect signatures.

Any major revision of a previously adopted redevelopment plan would be subject to the referendum provisions, Asher said.

Robbins' bill would be retroactive to Aug. 4, 1975, and require that each redevelopment plan with market value of more than $500 million would be subject to referendum. Although aimed at Los Angeles, Robbins said it was conceivable that plans in larger cities could make the $500 million plateau.

He said that the Los Angeles city council had given tax breaks to owners of Arco Towers, the Times-Mirror Building, the Hyatt Regency Hotel and other high-rise buildings in the redevelopment zone.

But he acknowledged to a reporter's question that they were not paying less in taxes, just that less of it goes toward support of city schools and services which means a tax increase in suburbs.

Asked to elaborate on his statement that Bradley was "stuffing his pockets," Robbins said that a January 1976 fund-raising dinner brought him $150,000 and the president of ARCO was a dinner chairman.

Mother, 3 Children Found Asphyxiated

LOVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Neighbors described Betty Lee Tracy as a woman overwhelmed by her troubles.

Those troubles — particularly over the breakup of her marriage two years ago — came to a head this past weekend. The 32-year-old mother and her three children were found asphyxiated in the closed garage of their home Sunday.

Found with Mrs. Tracy were her daughters Teresa, 11, and Patty, 9, and her son Curtis, 6.

"She was an awfully good person, but I guess she had enough," said Jean Young, who lived nearby.

The four were found in the family car. Mrs. Tracy's will was on the dashboard and a suicide note was found on the kitchen table, according to Miami Township Police Chief Harry Snyder.

Dr. Nick Capurro, county coroner, ruled the deaths a triple murder and a suicide. Snyder said Mrs. Tracy's suicide note accused her ex-husband, Patrick Tracy, of not spending enough time with his children. It indicated Mrs. Tracy did not want the youngsters to be hurt further, Snyder said.

People are losing interest in Southern California.*

If you were faced with a sudden need for a substantial amount of cash, what would you do? Dip into your hard-earned savings account? Borrow money at today's interest rates? Either way, you'd lose interest. But if you had your savings in an account at Mutual Savings, you'd have another choice.

The 1% Account Loan.

Savers who have certificate accounts with Mutual Savings can borrow up to 90% of their savings account balance. The interest charge is 1% per year more than the interest their account is earning.

We look on these savings account loans as "just-in-case"

loans. Having them available means you can put your savings in a certificate of deposit that pays considerably higher interest than a passbook account. For instance, a six-year, $1000 minimum, certificate account pays 8.06% interest per annum when 7.75% is compounded daily. And your account, like all Mutual Savings accounts, is insured to $40,000 by an agency of the federal government with returns guaranteed. If you do need cash, account loans are easily arranged because your account is the security for the loan. The account remains intact, earning full interest, and you avoid the penalties for early withdrawal of funds required by law.

Compare before you choose.

Our 1% loan proves that all savings institutions are not alike. Call a few of the others and ask them about 1% loans. Then bring your passbook to any of our 16 offices in Southern California and a Savings Counselor will arrange the transfer of funds to your new high-interest account.

Entebbe Exploit Still Exploited

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — 'Tis the season for Entebbe movies. One has already been on ABC-TV, another is airing Jan. 9 on NBC. Now, a third film about the Israelis' daring rescue of a planeload of hostages in Uganda is being made in Israel.

Menaheem Golan, co-producer of that one, which will be released theatrically, called me from Israel with the latest report. His film, "Entebbe: Operation Thunderbolt," has no stars. (The others are all star-studded).

"The Entebbe operation is not a Hollywood story," Golan says. "Having stars in it destroys the illusion."

But Golan did ask Uganda's Idi Amin to play himself in the film. Amin has not responded to the offer. Golan, however, has Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin playing himself, and other Israeli officials will do likewise.

He says he has uncovered a few previously undisclosed facts about the incident. One widely publicized feature of the raid was the use of a black Mercedes — supposedly a duplicate of Amin's car — to fool the defenders.

"We found out," Golan says, "that the black Mercedes was a mistake. Amin had actually sold his car a few weeks before and, at the time of the raid, actually was driving a Rolls. So the ruse didn't fool the defenders. The only way they survived was through fast driving. The surprise element was gone."

At first, Golan wanted to use as many of the real hostages as he could. He found 16 who expressed willingness to play themselves.

"We used them for a few days," he says. "But when we got to the Entebbe building — we built an exact duplicate, based on the plans of the engineers who actually had built Entebbe Airport — they started to cry. They couldn't go through it all again."

Ricardo Montalban is symptomatic of the change in TV in Hollywood.

"I used to make a good living out of being a TV guest star," he says. "I'd make six or seven guest appearances a year, at $10,000 or so each, and that was comfortable. Maybe not in Steve McQueen's class, but comfortable."

"Today, those six or seven guest appearances might net me, if I was lucky, $12,000 to $15,000 total. That's how much salaries have gone down. So I can't afford to make my living that way."

Instead, he does a lot of stage work (the pay not be much, but it is constant), movie roles and, like many in Hollywood, keeps looking for a series of his own.

At the moment, he's excited about two projects. He did a movie-for-TV called "Fantasy Island," which has series possibilities. It's about a man who runs a resort where he charges $50,000 for three days — but, for that money, he'll make your fantasies come true.

The second is a part he's doing on Executive Suite. He was originally supposed to be killed off after four weeks, romancing Sharon Acker along the way, but now the producers have indicated that his death may be postponed. They are thinking of having the character stick around.

LOSER BECOMES WINNER — This is a scene from film, "Rocky." Judging by the overwhelming response to the $860,000 film, the trade is calling it Sleeper of the Year. Movie stars little known Sylvester

Stallone, second from left, and is the story of a boxer. Next to Stallone, at right, is Carl Weathers, who stars as the current world champ in the movie.

Strange Mesh Of Talents

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — There were snickers all the way from Burbank to Malibu when Steve McQueen announced that he would star in a film version of Henrik Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People."

Steve McQueen, who last played the fire chief in "The Towering Inferno," Raquel Welch as Desdemona might seem likelier casting.

Yet McQueen in full beard has completed filming the $2.5 million "An Enemy of the People," and the results will be seen in theaters next fall. When production was completed, he told his producer-director, George Schaefer: "I never worked as hard or enjoyed myself as much."

The project was a strange wedding of talents: McQueen, the tight-lipped superstar, accustomed to big budgets and fast action; Schaefer, the scholarly director of a long string of distinguished television dramas, many for the Hallmark Hall of Fame.

"We're taking a long chance," the director admitted. "But if we can intrigue the McQueen fans and combine them with a more classical audience, the thing might work."

Surprisingly, it was McQueen's idea. After a string of commercial efforts like "The Getaway," "Papillon," and "Towering Inferno," he wanted a change. "Steve sought something different, something more classic, serious and highly demanding," said Schaefer during a break in editing sessions.

at MGM. The star had two commitments with First Artists, the company he owns with Paul Newman, Barbra Streisand, Sidney Poitier and others.

"Steve wanted to do 'The Inspector General' of Gogol, which I thought was a bad idea," said Schaefer. "Also 'Waiting for Godot,' but Samuel Beckett would not sell the film rights, since the play is his best source of royalties."

"Before I entered the picture, Steve had bought the Arthur Miller version of 'Enemy of the People,' which Freddie March and Florence Eldridge had played in New York about 25 years ago. Steve knew that I was deeply steeped in the classics, and he proposed the film to me."

"I thought it was a good subject, since the play had always been surefire on the stage. It was an enormous success when Ibsen wrote it in 1882. He had been in a fury over the rejection of 'Ghosts,' and he turned it out in a hurry to show the Norwegians he could still write hits."

But how to transform a talky, almost century-old classic into a movie?

"We decided to stick close to the original," said the director. "In fact, I had a Norwegian scholar translate the original text, and we used it in conjunction with the Miller version. Alexander Jacobs did a screenplay that was pretty much what Ibsen would have done if he could have moved around, instead of playing it on a stage."

"An Enemy of the People" concerns a town doctor who fights the local interests over pollution of the water supply. Added Schaefer:

"Any story that concerns integrity in government and touches on environmental matters has got to be contemporary. In fact, they borrowed the theme for 'Jaws,' by having the town's powers ignoring the danger for commercial reasons."

McQueen was involved in all aspects of the film, performing as executive producer although he is not so billed, said Schaefer. The star was surrounded by a distinguished cast, including Bibi Andersson, Charles Durning, Michael Cristofer, Richard Dysart, Michael Higgins. The company rehearsed three weeks before shooting, which helped McQueen in his task.

"He warned me it wasn't going to be easy for him," said the director. "He hadn't been on the stage since 'A Hatful of Rain' in New York, and he worried about learning all those lines. But he did an 8-to-10 minute speech to the townspeople at the climax of the film and did it perfectly in the first take."

Nude Dancing OK'd in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time, strippers in the city's "Combat Zone" can take it all off with the approval of the Boston Licensing Board.

The board voted to permit nude dancing in the city's adult entertainment district but with certain restrictions. The board set minimum lighting requirements for the clubs and required that the dancers stay at least two feet away from customers.

The regulations take effect Jan. 15 for a six-month trial period.

A ban on nude dancing remains in effect for the rest of the city, the board said.

Year Of 'B' Movies

By JOHN HUDDY
Knight News Wire

"Due to the abnormal subject matter of this motion picture, absolutely no children will be allowed with or without their parents. Special uniformed police will supervise admissions."

In its own perverse and ludicrous fashion, the breathless and ostentatiously stark "WARNINGS" that ran in newspapers last summer, exploiting an instantly forgettable B movie, inadvertently brought the rest of the film year into gritty focus, like a crudely lit horror film that reveals every wrinkle and bulge of a once-lovely glamour queen.

Most of the films of 1976 — the best and the worst — were indeed abnormal, not for the family trade, often unsightly. If theaters really did require "special uniformed police," one can only speculate why: to protect us from ourselves — or to keep sickened moviegoers from wringing the theater manager's neck.

For 1976 was the year of the B movie, the brash, vulgar, violent and soulless throwaway that caused attendance to slump by as much as 10 percent in the first three quarters of the year, despite a growing economy and an even greater demand for movies.

B movies: They came day and night, and they played front-line theaters as well as rural drive-ins. ("Stomach-Turning Triple Horror Bill! The Barn of the Naked Dead...Bloodthirsty Butchers...The Torture Dungeon!")

B-movies: Cheap movies. Not cheap in the sense of a low budget and limited technical values, but cheap in their overall lack of intelligence, integrity and intent.

(A real-life review of 1976 film titles: "Hustler Squad," "High School Honies," "The Sex Machine," "Black Stud," "The Happy Hooker," "The Hippy Hooker," "Girls for Rent," "Nurses for Sale," "Females for Hire," "High School Hookers," "The Pomponi Girls.")

In 1976 several prestige theater chains turned to X-rated pornographic films for their suburban theaters. "We're not happy with what we're playing any more than you are," was the typical explanation from a chain executive. "But what else is there to play?"

Not much. The great, and the not-so-great, certainly attempted to make good movies, but too many failed. Robert Altman tried, with "Buffalo Bill and the Indians."

dians." The film became part of a national spectacle in which producer Dino De Laurentiis denounced his own film and fired its director from his next project, "Ragtime."

The most elegant and stylish flop came from the most elegant and stylish director, Stanley Kubrick. Suitably, "Barry Lyndon" was a movie without a heart in a year without a heart. With the vacuous Ryan O'Neal droning through the lead role as a moral adventurer, Kubrick dazzled his peers — but not his audience — with splendid composition, breathtaking lighting, masterful camera movement. Few cared; "Barry Lyndon" fizzled like the rest.

Others tried. George Cukor directed "The Blue Bird," working with the Russians. He set detente back five years. Margaux Hemingway launched her film career in 1976, may have ended it with the same film, the messy "Lipstick."

With such unpleasant thoughts, we move on to the movies that did entertain, in some fashion or another. We searched far and wide to find 10 respectable Hollywood movies, and of the 10, half would not normally make our list in other years. And these are frequently violent movies, in which, for example, a man's hand is blown off ("Taxi Driver"), two unfortunates are attacked by demonic dogs in a graveyard and cruelly mauled ("The Omen"), an innocent college student is subjected to prolonged dental torture ("The Marathon Man").

1. "All The President's Men" — It is the single movie of high distinction released in 1976. Flawlessly written, acted and directed, it recaptures a moment in American history that is both evil and glorious. The best newspaper film ever made.

2. "Taxi Driver" — A vicious but effective film about a deranged cabbie who sets out to slay a mighty dragon — the forces of evil in New York City. Another powerful performance by Robert De Niro; more good work from Martin Scorsese. Quite violent.

3. "Silent Movie" — A zany gamble by Mel Brooks that pays off: There's no spoken dialog, only silent-picture music, and if the end result is silly, it's also funny.

4. "The Omen" — Not original, but handsomely done; this was the best of the satanic films made in 1976. Excellent action sequences, a fine performance by Gregory Peck. Violent and bloody.

5. "The Marathon Man" — Sleek and polished and tinged with red. One is likely to have serious moral reservations about John Schlesinger's tale of intrigue and murder, for if we remove the torture scenes, what is left? Still, a gripping movie.

6. "Silver Streak" — A red-blooded, old-fashioned comedy and thriller aboard a train. The train itself, plus Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor, is enough.

7. "Robin and Marian" — A fine, under-rated film by Richard Lester with many outstanding performances, including ones by Sean Connery, Robert Shaw and Audrey Hepburn. I like the description given the film by Charles Champlin of the Los Angeles Times: "Autumnal." A lovely, seldom-employed mood.

8. "Bad News Bears" — Another offbeat comedy, about a neglected, foul-mouthed squad of Little League baseball players. The language is quite authentic — take it from a former kids league baseball coach.

9. "The Shootist" — Also underrated. Could be John Wayne's best western of this decade. A touching, well-written account of an aging gunfighter who only wants to be left alone to face death with dignity. Wayne at his best — and that is quite good.

10. "The Seven Per Cent Solution" — A competent, quirky job that brought a few holiday smiles to the nation. Certainly the most original Sherlock Holmes film.

GOOD YEAR AT D-LAND

ANAHEIM — Disneyland, now a ripe 21 years old, posted record revenues during the Bicentennial Year just concluded, according to Walt Disney Productions Annual Report.

However, attendance at Disneyland during 1976 was shy of the all-time record set in 1970.

Still, the park welcomes on June 22 its 150 millionth guest just about five years after the 100 millionth guest entered Disneyland on June 17, 1971.

Revenues during the year increased 10.2 percent to a record total of $120.2 million, according to the report.

The attendance during fiscal year 1976 came to 10,211,000 or 1.5 percent ahead of the prior year but just shy of the all-time record set in 1970.

Disneyland's out-of-state attendance increased by 5 percent.

There's no better way to show you care than to secure your loved ones' financial future!

Now... budget-priced protection FOR TODAY'S ADULTS

$10,000 Life Insurance for as little as $4.84 a month (man age 26)

The Gerber baby—a symbol of quality

and this low monthly premium is guaranteed not to increase for a full 20 years

Gerber Life knows how tough it can be to squeeze out a few dollars for insurance with today's high cost of living. We also know that most people don't have enough insurance, especially while they're young and need it most. That's why we designed this low-cost 20-Year Term Life Insurance Plan for people on the way up—people whose income and savings have just started to grow.

20 YEARS

Term insurance is designed to give you more protection for less money than any other type of life insurance. But there is a difference between term policies.

Many term policies are Annual Renewable Term Policies (1-Year Term). These policies may look cheap but every single year the premium goes up! A most unwelcomed birthday present. But this need not happen to you because...

GERBER LIFE'S TERM POLICY IS A 20-YEAR TERM POLICY

With Gerber's Term Life, the amount of your protection never decreases, and the amount of your premium never increases... for a full 20 years... the period during which our children are growing to maturity and our expenses are so high.

AFTER 20 YEARS

After you have had your plan for 20 years, you have the right to renew your coverage every five years up to age 65... without a physical exam... at the monthly rate for your age at the time of renewal.

Also, any time before age 65 you have the right to change your term policy to our Whole Life Plan (which builds cash surrender and loan values) regardless of your health or occupation.

NO PHYSICAL EXAMINATION IS NEEDED TO APPLY†

One of the special features of our 20-Year Term Policy is that in most cases you don't have to take a physical to apply†. All you have to do is answer the few brief questions on the application; then, return the completed form with just $1. ($2 for $20,000). If we find you're in average good health... and almost 90% of the people who apply are... we'll promptly issue your policy and your $1 (or $2) will cover you for the first full month. After that, you only pay the low monthly premium, shown in the Rate Chart, for your present age.*

We may make a brief report on information we receive with your application to the Medical Information Bureau. How to start your Gerber Life 20-Year Term Life Insurance Plan

- Decide how much you want to budget each month, which will determine the amount of protection you can get. The minimum amount of adult insurance per policy is $10,000. Husband and wife, for example, can have $5,000 each; if just one adult is insured on the policy, the minimum is $10,000.

You get a $1 per month discount if both husband and wife, with or without children, are covered on the Family Plan.

Our expenses are less and the savings are passed on to you.

- Fill out the application form. Be sure to check the amount of protection you want and the plan of your choice.

- Mail your completed application to:

Super Bowl Teams Both With Us

Super Bowl XI may be Pasadena's baby but right now you might not know it.

The Oakland Raiders are practicing at UC Irvine and are "in residence" at Newport Beach. The Minnesota Vikings are stopping at the South Coast Plaza Hotel (Costa Mesa) while training at Long Beach. Wives of the Vikings are registered at the Registry Hotel, Irvine.

Six hundred Minneapolis fans, and between 600 and 700 Oakland bugs, are expected to bus the Rose Bowl Sunday morning from Anaheim after spending a couple of nights around Disneyland. Thirty-four buses have been engaged to transport the gang to Pasadena. They are paying $89.50 each for the entire bundle: Super bowl tickets, transportation both ways, refreshments, a program and a souvenir. Pictures of the Vikings-Rams game are to be shown at the Anaheim Room of the Convention Center Saturday night. Sponsors say the package still is available by calling 778-5220....

They say something like 25,000 Super Bowl tickets remain at this date but a sellout seems assured when the scalpers cut loose before weekend. Pasadena does not want this one to fall on its face. As a good neighbor, even Santa Anita has entered into the spirit of the weekend. There will be no racing at the track to conflict Sunday, and Santa Anita will let everybody in free Saturday who can show a Super Bowl ticket. Only a nominal city of Arcadia tax (20 cents) will be levied. How long has it been since a horse track shut down in respect of a football game?

L.A. IS PRESS CENTER

Super Bowl press headquarters will be set up tomorrow at the Los Angeles Airport Marriott Hotel although both teams are quartered in Orange County. Wednesday night the news media will be guests of KCET at a preview of "The Way It Was," the award-winning TV cavalcade which delves into days gone by....

The Oakland Raiders arrived yesterday at the Marriott Hotel at Newport Beach. The pre-game buildup gets under way at UCI with what is billed as camera day. "We'll try to keep everything as normal as possible," promises Raider coach John Madden. "I won't fight the press coverage. I'll just live with it."

Madden says there's a vast difference in the buildup given today and when the club made its only other Super Bowl appearance in 1969. Madden was an assistant then. "It wasn't the spectacle then that it has become," he says. "Each year since it has grown in stature with exposure, more media, more fan interest."

VIKINGS THE 'HOME' TEAM

Because they are the National Conference champions, the Vikings are the "home team" in the Super Bowl so got first choice of workout quarters. They went for Blair Field in Long Beach, where the Rams condition after they depart from Fullerton State early in the fall (when schooling begins there).

At the South Coast Plaza, the Vikings will have breakfast sessions for press interviews Wednesday and Thursday.

The Vikings have 70 rooms reserved, including the top two floors, and the second floor, which will be used for an assortment of management and team functions.

Virtually all the king-sized, queen-sized and double-double beds in the hotel will be moved to the top two floors for the players this week. The hotel management also said additional staff would be added.

At the Newport Marriott, coach Madden said he hasn't decided whether he will convoy the Raiders from UCI all the way to Pasadena and back just so they could look at the Rose Bowl in a pre-game workout. "It's more than an hour's bus travel from our hotel and I don't know that I want our people sitting in a bus for two hours. I don't know that that's as important as having a workout right here."

GURNEY TESTS 'EAGLE'

Dan Gurney's all new Jorgensen Eagle, smaller and lighter than previous models, will be given the first of many road tests Sunday and Monday. Ontario Motor Speedway will be the scene.

Duane (Pancho) Carter of Huntington Beach will be driving the sleek machine when it rolls out on the racing surface. The first test originally had been scheduled Dec. 16 but was delayed because of carburetor problems. The track was not available because of the holiday.

Gurney and his family are vacationing in Colorado but will be home early enough to put final touches on the car—hopefully destined to make history at Indianapolis in May. The car is six inches narrower, creating less wind drag. The theory is, this will up the speed yet maintain a low fuel consumption rate.

Notre Dame in college basketball Monday night.

Sowinski had a perfect shooting night, hitting six-for-six from both the floor and the foul line, although he was forced to the bench for about 10 minutes because of foul trouble.

Notre Dame used a full-court press throughout the game but never succeeded in rattling the Tigers, who worked the ball around for good shots and hit them with consistency.

By MIKE WOJCIECHOWSKI Minnesota's Vikings and Oakland's Raiders are taking advantage of Orange County hospitality while preparing for Sunday's Super Bowl, although the Vikings will slip out of the area early to avoid any rush to the game.

The Raiders arrived in Southern California Monday afternoon and checked in at the Marriott Hotel in Newport Beach, while the Vikings flew in Monday night and checked in at the South Coast Plaza Hotel in Costa Mesa.

Both squads will be using area facilities in preparation for the National Football League championship contest at the Rose Bowl on Sunday.

The Raiders will be practicing at UC Irvine while the Vikings will be using the Rams' training facilities at Blair Field in Long Beach.

The Vikings, afraid a possible traffic snarl might cause the team to be late for the Super Bowl, will be transferring to a hotel in Pasadena on Saturday.

General manager Mike Lynn completed arrangements Monday to transfer the team to a closer location to the game site.

"I asked two policemen in Pasadena how long it would take for the team bus on game day and they didn't have any idea," said Lynn.

Police officials explained that the Rose Bowl crowd, in excess of 100,000, is usually on hand for the parade and fans then continue on to the stadium. The upcoming Super Bowl will be the first time more than 100,000 fans will converge on the stadium at one time, without a parade leading the way.

"The league said it didn't consider idiosyncrasies of the coaches when they set up the Orange County facilities," said Lynn. "We don't plan on being late and we're not about to ride a bus for three hours on game day."

The bus trip would take only one hour under ideal circumstances, but Super Bowl day won't be ideal.

Minnesota coach Bud Grant was vocal about the setup in Houston for Super Bowl VIII. His Vikings were totally unprepared for what they found when they arrived, namely a high school field assigned to them for practice. And it took a 10-minute bus ride every day to get the Vikings to the practice field, while the Miami Dolphins simply walked across the street to their field, the same one that the Oilers used during the regular season.

Both the Raiders and Vikings are about 10 minutes from their practice field this time.

Grant's complaints in 1975 cost him $1,500 in fines by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle who fined him for his "editorial comments."

The change of hotels this week will cost the Vikings roughly $4,000. Minnesota reserved 40 rooms in Pasadena for a minimum of three nights for nearly $100 per player.

Concerning the training site at Long Beach, Grant said he was looking forward to the "first class" facility.

It is not known whether the Raiders, who are about 15 miles further from the Rose Bowl, will stay at the Marriott through the weekend or whether they too will be making a move closer to the Rose Bowl.

Coach John Madden and his assistant coaches arrived Sunday to scout the UCI facilities, which have been used in the past by the San Diego Chargers as a summer training site.

A crowd of 103,000, slightly less than the crowd at the USC-Michigan contest, is expected for Sunday is 12:30 p.m. kickoff. The game will be televised on Channel 4.

TARK IN TOWN — Wearing a broad-brimmed hat, quarterback Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings stepped jauntily off the team's plane when it arrived for Sunday's Super Bowl game at Pasadena. The Vikings are quartered at the South Coast Plaza Hotel in Costa Mesa. The rival Oakland Raiders are stopping at the nearby Marriott Hotel at Newport Beach and practicing at UC Irvine.

Ali Gets Divorce For $2 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — The wife of heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has been granted a divorce decree providing that he pay benefits to her in the range of $2 million, it was disclosed Monday.

Judge Robert L. Hunter of Circuit Court issued the decree Wednesday to Khalilah Ali, who had been married to the boxer for nine years and had four children by him.

The hearing was held quietly in the judge's chambers and Ali did not attend. Knowledge of the court action did not become public until Monday.

Under the settlement, Mrs. Ali will receive a large apartment building on Chicago's South Side, a home in south suburban Flossmoor and two automobiles, including a Rolls Royce. She was awarded custody of the children under the agreement, which also sets up a trust fund for the youngsters.

A portion of the money settlement, the exact size of which was not learned immediately, was paid to Mrs. Ali on Wednesday, sources familiar with the case said.

They placed the settlement in the $2 million range.

The only witness at the final hearing was Mrs. Ali, who met the boxer after he spotted her in a school hallway. She said in her divorce suit, which charged desertion, that the champion "violated his marriage vows, contrary to the teachings of Islam."

USF No. 1 In Basketball

The undefeated University of San Francisco Dons, using the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu as a springboard, have displaced Michigan as the nation's top college basketball team in the weekly Associated Press Top Twenty poll.

The Dons, in boosting their record to 15-0 last week, collected 963 points, including 28 first-place votes, in the balloting announced today. Fifty-three sportswriters and broadcasters participated in the voting based on results of games through Sunday.

San Francisco, third a week ago, won three games en route to the championship of the Rainbow Classic holiday tournament. The Dons defeated St. John's, N.Y. 80-70 and Arizona State 114-96 in the opening rounds, then captured the championship with an 86-81 victory over Houston.

Michigan, 7-1, dropped to fifth place in the rankings after an 82-81 double overtime loss to Providence in the Friar Classic last week. The Wolverines had held the top spot all season. Michigan, however, won two games during the week, beating Rhode Island and South Carolina.

Cincinnati, 9-0, took over the runner-up position with 830 points, including six first-place votes. The Bearcats, fifth last week, posted victories during the week over South Carolina and Indiana.

Kentucky, sixth last week, moved up to third with 791 points and 13 first-place ballots. The Wildcats played only once during the week, downing Notre Dame 102-78, raising their record to 7-1. Kentucky also saw action Monday night, outlasting Georgia 64-59 in overtime.

Undeated Alabama, 9-0, remained fourth, topping Western Michigan in its only game of the week. The Crimson Tide amassed 737 points with one first-place vote. Alabama played Monday night, edging Auburn 74-71.

Failures Haunt 'Super' Teams

By HAL BOCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A history of failures haunted the Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings as they arrived Monday to begin preparations for Super Bowl XI.

The National Football League extravaganza will be Sunday at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, where a record crowd of more than 104,000 is to be on hand when one of these teams finally sheds the loser's image.

Since 1970, when pro football's merger was finalized, the Vikings have the NFL's best record, 75-22-1 for .770. The second-best record belongs to the Raiders, 71-21-6 for .755.

So why the loser's image?

Well, this is the fourth Super Bowl for Minnesota, and the Vikings haven't won one yet. The Raiders have won the AFC West Division title nine of the last 10 years, but this is only their second Super Bowl. The first was in 1968 when they lost 33-14 to Vince Lombardi's Green Bay Packers.

When Minnesota kayped Los Angeles to capture the NFC championship, the first thing Fran Tarkenton said was, "We're going back to the Super Bowl, and we want the world to know that this time we're going to win it."

That was as close to a guarantee as any quarterback has given since Joe Namath said the New York Jets would win Super Bowl III. He was right. The Jets pulled off the biggest upset of the series, beating the Baltimore Colts, who had been 17-point favorites.

That was the year before Minnesota's string of Super Bowl disappointments began. In 1970, the Vikings came into the game with a 12-2 record and were submarined by Kansas City, 23-7. In 1973, they were 12-2 again but came up short in the big game, losing to Miami, 24-7. The next year, the Vikings finished 10-4 and lost the Super Bowl to Pittsburgh, 16-6.

So here they are again, determined to snap the Super Bowl hex. To do it, they must beat a team that seems just as starcrossed as the Vikings have been.

Starting in 1967, when they won their first division crown, the Raiders have come up short in the playoffs. They lost Conference title games to the Jets in 1968, to Kansas City in 1969 and to Baltimore in 1970.

Oakland didn't make the playoffs in 1971, lost to Pittsburgh in 1972, to Miami in 1973, and to Pittsburgh again in 1974 and 1975.

Grid Rankings Decided Early

(BY Associated Press) College football's national championship was officially settled in the bowl games, but it really was decided in the season opener.

On Sept. 11, the University of Pittsburgh, ninth in The Associated Press preseason poll, whipped Notre Dame 31-10. A few hours later, Southern California, which started out No. 8, were trounced by Missouri 46-25.

"I agree with that theory," said Pitt Coach Johnny Majors, who is leaving with a national title in his pocket to become head coach at Tennessee. "The Notre Dame game gave us a lot of impetus."

And Pitt's 27-3 Sugar Bowl triumph over Georgia climaxed a fantastic four-year re-birth, nailed down the Panthers' first national championship in 39 years and made them the first Eastern team to capture the No. 1 ranking since Syracuse in 1959.

Pitt officially was crowned national champion Tuesday when the 12-0 Panthers received 59 of 62 first-place votes and 1,234 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide AP panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame was not originally listed as Pitt's opener. The Panthers were scheduled to open with Louisville, but ABC-TV asked for a date switch so the Pitt-Notre Dame game could be televised.

Southern California, winner of its last 11 games after losing to Missouri, including a 14-6 triumph over Michigan in the Rose Bowl, finished second in the final rankings. The Trojans received the other three first-place votes and 1,118 points in moving up from third place in the final regular-season poll.

Report Times Will Buy Sporting News

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sale of the Sporting News, a major weekly sports newspaper, will be announced this week, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Tuesday.

C. C. Johnson Spink, president of the Sporting News Publishing Co., confirmed that he had been negotiating with a buyer whom he declined to name.

"We have been negotiating with people for a long, long time," Spink said. The newspaper has been published by the Spink family since it was founded in 1886.

The Times-Mirror Co. of Los Angeles is the likely buyer, a source told the Post-Dispatch. Times-Mirror owns the Los Angeles Times; Newsday, a Long Island, N.Y., newspaper and the Dallas Times-Herald.

Chargers Sign Rodgers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After trying for five years to get him, the San Diego Chargers on Monday signed former Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers to "a long series" of one-year contracts.

Rodgers, now 25, spent the intervening four years with the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League for whom he spurned San Diego in 1973.

"If I was ever going to move, it had to be now," Rodgers told a news conference.

No contract terms were disclosed, but owner Eugene Klein said Rodgers agreed to one-year contracts — "a long series of them."

The Chargers selected the former University of Nebraska running back and All-American as the nation's No. 1 pick in the 1973 college draft, but Rodgers instead snubbed the National Football League for a more lucrative money offer at Montreal. Coach Tommy Prothro, who went to San Diego a year later, said Rodgers is "just what we need, a wide receiver with speed...He's been the best everywhere he's played."

Rodgers averaged 18.9 yards, scoring 28 touchdowns on 186 catches over the year with Montreal.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, Sam Berger, owner of the Alouettes, was not terribly upset about losing Rodgers.

"I am not going to lose any sleep over whether Johnny Rodgers has signed with the San Diego Chargers or over any threatened law suit," said Berger after the defection by the former University of Nebraska star.

"We terminated his contract as we had a right to do. He asked for another chance and we stood many hours trying to give him that chance. During these negotiations on a new contractual relationship, the tone of our message to Johnny Rodgers was: 'Shape up or ship out,'" said Berger.

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge said Monday that any malice baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may have had toward Oakland A's owner Charles Finley is irrelevant to the outcome of Finley's $3.5 million suit against Kuhn.

Judge Frank J. McGarr told Peter Bleakley, one of Kuhn's attorneys, "I don't think if there was a feud or personal animosity between Kuhn and Finley, it has any relevance in this case."

Finley had charged that Kuhn voided the sales of Joe Rudi, Rolie Fingers and Vida Blue for $3.5 million, in part, because Kuhn had a dislike for the owner. Finley's civil suit charged Kuhn with malice.

Bleakley cross-examined Finley on the stand Monday and attempted to show that Finley himself was "difficult," "troublesome" and "obstructionist" in some baseball dealings.

But McGarr said, "I'm not interested if the commissioner liked Mr. Finley or not."

McGarr told the lawyers again the case will be decided on the question of whether Kuhn had the authority to void the June sales.

"That's the gut question that's still open," said Bleakley after the court session concluded. "I'm still hopeful of our case."

Neil Papiano, Finley's attorney, said he will conclude the prosecution's case today by reading pretrial documents into the record after which Bleakley may begin calling defense witnesses.

Earlier, McGarr told Bleakley the financial situation of Finley's Oakland club at the time of the sales "is peripheral at best. Whether he's rich or poor doesn't mean a lot to me. The issue is the commissioner's power."

After a short recess, Bleakley then cited a subsection of a baseball rule covering misconduct. No specific act mentioned in the rule, which covers violence, gambling or gifts to umpires, should be "construed as exclusively...defining acts...not in the best interests of baseball," Bleakley said.

That is the crux of Kuhn's defense — that he acted in the "best interests of baseball" when he voided the sale of Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox and Blue to the New York Yankees.

Bleakley also contested Finley's earlier contention that unsigned players on the Oakland A's were "unsignable."

Under cross-examination, Finley revealed that he made no contract offers to the players between the end of the 1975 season and the day before the trading deadline — June 15.

Finley explained that agents for Rudi, Fingers and Bert Campaneris, Sal Bando, Gene Tenace and Don Baylor insisted on multiyear, no-cut, no-trade contracts. "That's the reason we could not get together," he said. "I begged and pleaded with them to take out the no-trade provisions. I couldn't handcuff myself...or my manager."

Women's Sports May Need Court To Decide Recruiting Issue

MEMPHIS (AP) — The future of women's collegiate athletic recruiting may be decided in the courtroom, a committee chairman for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women said Monday.

"We can take a stand one way or the other, but I think the court may well say to us that you can or you cannot do that," said Christine Grant, women's athletic director at the University of Iowa and chairman of the AIAW ad hoc committee on recruiting.

Recruiting is a matter of high concern for the more than 500 representatives to the 1977 delegate assembly of the AIAW.

Under current policy, coaches in AIAW athletic programs are not permitted expenses or time off from regular teaching duties to recruit.

The policy is more restrictive than that for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which governs men's sports.

Lawyers have advised the AIAW that the restriction jeopardizes the legal position of the association and its more than 800 member institutions by forcing them to violate federal equal pay regulations. They also say the policy may conflict with Title IX of the federal education act which requires institutions which accept federal funds to provide equal facilities and programs for men and women.

NCAA rules permit full-time paid recruiters and expense-paid campus visits for prospective athletes.

A four-member committee has been working on the recruiting problem for the past year. The committee report, to be voted on this week, contains two options:

— Continue the restrictive policy, although permit coaches to discuss their programs with prospective athletes who visit the campus at their own expense and permit contact via telephone or mail.

— Permit subsidized recruiting by allowing coaches to accept summer jobs at sports camps where some recruiting contacts could be made.

The annual maximum expenditure for personal recruiting would be limited to $1,000 for sports such as basketball, soccer, gymnastics, swimming, diving, track and field and to $670 for sports such as tennis, golf and archery.

"We don't know if Title IX will allow us to do Option One," Mrs. Grant said. "We'll soon find out about that. If it is passed, then it may be that the whole thing will be decided in a court of law."

She indicated she favors limiting recruiting activities in an effort to reduce pressure on both athletes and coaches.

"I can only speak for the students on my campus, but I think the general feeling is that possibly the best thing is no off-campus individual solicitation for either men or women," she said.

"That would be the ideal thing. To recruit by telephone and mail. It's difficult for the women, when they see the men getting freebies, but if you take the legal aspect out of Option One and say what would be good for all the people, then I think it tends to support our philosophy," she said.

Hula Bowl Happy To Have Ricky

HONOLULU (AP) — Hula Bowl officials were relieved Monday to get the word that All-American running back Ricky Bell had been given a clean bill of health.

The annual all-star clash set for Saturday was being billed as a head-to-head running duel between Bell and Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh.

But the confrontation seemed threatened in the Rose Bowl game when Bell suffered a mild concussion in the first quarter and spent the rest of the day on the bench as the Trojans beat Michigan.

"The symptoms are all gone," said USC team physician Dr. Charles Semel.

"He's completely back to normal. Ricky, as of now, planning to go to Hawaii to play in the game."

The first contingent of Hula Bowl players, led by East Coach Johnny Majors of Pitt, arrived late Sunday night. Dorsett was among those expected to arrive late Monday because he had remained in Los Angeles to confer with his business agent.

The East and West teams begin workouts Tuesday. Winning players will get $1,500 each while players on the losing team get $1,250.

Proceeds of the game, sponsored by the Gannett Newspaper Foundation, go to charity.

Kentucky Needs OT To Beat Georgia

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — James Lee hit a layup and two free throws for a rare four-point play with 1:22 left in overtime Monday night to send sixth-ranked Kentucky to a 64-59 victory over Georgia in a Southeastern Conference college basketball game.

Lee, a reserve, drew Kentucky away from a one-point lead when he stole the ball, scored a layup and made both of his free throws after an intentional foul by Georgia's Pete Fusi.

Only 15 seconds later, Lee again was at the free throw line in a one-and-one bonus situation and made them both for a 62-55 Kentucky lead, and the Wildcats held on for the victory.

Jack Givens led Kentucky with 17 points and Rick Robey added 16. Walter Daniels topped all scorers with 20 points for the Bulldogs and Curtis Jackson had 17.

Georgia, using a super-slow offense, frustrated the Wildcats and took an 8-7 lead with 12:35 left in the first half and hung on to the advantage through the first period.

The Bulldogs led 25-24 at halftime, but Kentucky's Jay Shlider hit a free throw five seconds into the second half to produce the first of seven ties.

Kentucky led by four with 9:15 left in regulation, but two baskets by Jackson and one each by David Reavis and Daniels gave Georgia a four-point advantage with 5:58 to go.

Robey scored Kentucky's last eight points in regulation. With the score tied at 53-53, the Wildcats stalled for nearly a minute before Robey was called for a walking violation. Lee's block of the inbound pass sent the game into overtime.

Chris Matthews, formerly a centerfielder with the Giants, became a free agent after the 1976-77 season.

"Approval of the contract is only a technicality," Feeney said Monday. "The commissioner in suspending Turner approved Matthews joining the Atlanta organization and I will formally approve the contract today."

The Braves had been fined $10,000 last October for tampering with Matthews during the season. Those charges involved contact made by the Braves and Matthews' agent, Ed Keating.

A spokesman for the commissioner said Monday the suspension resulted only from Turner's statement to Lurie, not the earlier tampering charge.

Bartow Starts Veterans Against Oregon In Pac-8

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Gene Bartow of the UCLA basketball team says he'll be going with veteran guards at the start of his Pac-8 conference campaign on Friday night.

"I was very set in my idea in regard to sophomore guards in late November," Bartow said at his Monday news conference. "But on the basis of our last four games, it is obvious that Raymond Townsend and Jim Spillane have been playing awfully well."

So Townsend, a junior, and Spillane, a senior, will open at guard against Oregon. At the season's start the sophomores manning the position were Roy Hamilton and Brad Holland.

Bartow said the Townsend/Spillane combination "has been moving the ball with more confidence and authority."

UCLA, the defending champion, goes into the Pac-8 campaign with a 10-1 record in its nonconference games.

"I feel very definitely that this is not a push-button basketball team," Bartow declared, with the admission that perhaps that was not the best way of expressing his thoughts.

"I mean we've got eight or nine or 10 players that we think are going to contribute in different situations — some better than those who are starting. There are going to be games when we're going to be moving people in and out pretty quickly."

Bartow admitted, "On the basis of our December play (a loss to Notre Dame and seven victories) we are not where we were a year ago. When you think of losing Richard Washington, Andre McCarter, Ralph Drollinger and Gavin Smith, it would be difficult to be where we were a year ago."

On the win-loss record, the Bruins are exactly where they were a year ago.

"I don't think the Pac-8 is going to be overall quite as strong as far as having great players," Bartow continued. "I think our league will be very well balanced and I'm sure any of us who have 12 wins will feel we'll be conference champions. There will be that much balance with each playing 14 conference games."

"There won't be any team in the league that doesn't get any wins because I think there is enough balance. Even the teams that have the toughest time are going to get four or five wins."

Bartow rates his club among the top outfits in the Pac-8 and thinks the toughest competition may come from Washington State and Washington.

"I'm worried about Oregon, and also Oregon State, this weekend," the UCLA coach declared. Oregon beat the Bruins 65-45 in the final game of last season at Pauley Pavilion.

Oregon arrives at Pauley this time with a 9-2 record and Bartow says, "They've only lost two tough games to Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina. They have to be rated very high with Greg Ballard. He and our Marques Johnson might be the two feature players in the league."

Turner An NBA Owner, Kuhn's Not Involved

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Turner, the colorful owner of the Atlanta Braves who was suspended from baseball for one year Sunday, purchased a controlling interest in the National Basketball Association's Atlanta Hawks Monday.

Turner also named Mike Stoen as president and general manager of the Hawks.

At a news conference Monday, Turner said he will be a majority limited partner of the Hawks, with ownership of more than 50 per cent of the club.

The 38-year-old Turner, who owns television stations in Charlotte, N.C. and Atlanta, jokingly added he was told "no basketball owner has ever been suspended yet."

He was referring to his suspension by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for actions in his contractual pursuit of free agent Gary Matthews, a former San Francisco outfielder who signed with the Braves.

Turner, who boosted attendance at Atlanta Braves games last year with various attractions, said he did not know how much color he could add to the Hawks and said Stoen would run the basketball operation.

"I just don't have the time, what with the television stations and the Braves." Then he quipped, "Come to think of it, I may have some time on my hands now," referring to his baseball suspension.

Stoen, 41, and a former commissioner of the American Basketball Association as well as general manager of the Indiana Pacers and Kentucky Colonels, replaces Bud Seretean, who will continue as a member of the board of directors.

Tom Cousins, one of the Hawks' principal owners since the team moved to Atlanta in 1968, will remain a member of the board.

Lemaire Rallies Canadiens, 6-4

MONTREAL (AP) — Jacques Lemaire scored one goal and assisted on two others — all in a span of 2:22 of the third period — Monday night to rally the Montreal Canadiens to a 6-4 National Hockey League victory over Philadelphia, ending the Flyers' unbeaten streak at 20 games.

After a scoreless first period, in which the Canadiens outshot the Flyers 19-3, Philadelphia took a 4-3 lead in the second period on goals by Tom Bladen, Gary Dornhoefer, Harvey Bennett and Bill Barber.

But the Canadiens' relentless attacking finally made the difference in the third period.

Lemaire began the final-period scoring at 1:46 with his 17th goal of the season. Less than 30 seconds later, defenseman Guy Lapointe scored the second of his two goals to put the Canadiens in front.

Terps Richer, But Would Rather Win

DALLAS (AP) — Maryland's football team earned $452,000 for appearing in the Cotton Bowl, a balm to ease some of the pain suffered in the 30-21 loss to Houston.

But it was evident that members of the Terps' official party, despite their brave postgame front, would have exchanged great goals of loot for a victory on Saturday.

Maryland's program, making great strides since it was revived by Coach Jerry Claiborne, can be expected to retain its high level of excellence. Yet, the Cotton Bowl loss was particularly untimely.

The Terps went into the game ranked No. 4 in the nation with an 11-0 record and had a chance to silence critics who said they had played a soft schedule.

Instead, in spite of 41-16-2 record at Maryland and action in four consecutive bowl games, Claiborne had to defend his team.

Coach Bill Yeoman of Houston graciously came to Claiborne's rescue at a joint news conference, praising the Terps despite their third post-season loss in four years.

"Alabama lost seven or eight bowl games in a row," Yeoman said. "But nobody's going to tell me they have a poor team, because we've lined up against them."

Following another Yeoman compliment for Maryland, Claiborne broke in and added:

Ex-QB Choboian Dies Of Cancer

FRESNO (AP) — Max Choboian, former quarterback with the Denver Broncos and a Tulare radio sportscaster, has died of cancer at age 34.

Choboian died at St. Agnes Hospital on Sunday night.

A high school star at Tulare, Choboian played football at Northridge State in California and was a quarterback for the Broncos in 1966.

After his professional football career, he entered into real estate in Tulare. He was also active in civic clubs and was a member of the elementary school board. He had broadcast sports for radio station KCOK for three years.

Survivors include his widow, Suzette, a son, John, a daughter, Carolyn, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Choboian.

Marquette Routs Georgia Tech

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Guard Butch Lee pumped in 18 points, sinking seven of his first 10 shots, to lead 12th-ranked Marquette over Georgia Tech 83-45 in college basketball Monday night.

After a slow start, Marquette, 8-2, sank six of seven shots over Georgia Tech's zone and two free throws, triggering a 14-4 spurt as the Warriors opened a 28-12 spread.

Sweet Sorrow In Locker Room

Rickey Bell said it. Otherwise, it might have sounded immodest: "I was proud of the way the guys hung in there and won it without me."

He was talking about the University of Southern California's 14-6 triumph over Michigan in the 63rd renewal of the great commotion in the Rose Bowl.

Well, who would have thought the Trojans could produce such heroics without Bell? It is Ricky, the authorities say, who may be the greatest of all in the endless parade of tailbacks to operate at USC.

The Wolverines put the boff on Bell Saturday on USC's first series of downs after he had carried four times for 16 yards. They rang Ricky's Bell and he was still suffering from a severe headache and dizziness in the locker room when the noise of congratulatory commotion commenced.

"I wish I could have played," Ricky said, looking at the floor, "but we won and that's the idea of coming here."

Crying Shame

A guy suggested it was a crying shame Ricky Bell could not have concluded his college career with a day befitting the archives at Pasadena. But Ricky has been visited by bad luck in the months of football just passed.

Bell entered the 1976 season as one of the favorites to win the Heisman Trophy, the item of silverware which makes millionaires out of penniless football players. Bell missed one game of the regular season with an assortment of injuries and fell too far behind to catch Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett, the subsequent winner.

Now there was a report that Bell and Dorsett were planning to engage the service of the same flesh peddler and enter professional football as a package deal.

Some package. But Bell said the report may have come from a celebrant of New Year's Eve sitting alone in a wire service office someplace.

"There is no truth to that at all," Bell said. "I have offers from several agents and I haven't made up my mind."

Actually, I haven't been thinking about it much. I've been thinking about this game.

"Yes, I plan to play pro football."

A bystander expressed an opinion on such a prospect. He was O.J. Simpson, one of the Trojan tailbacks of tradition, who has been quite successful in the professional dodge.

Simpson is more than a former Trojan football player. He is an alumnus, an old grad. O.J. comes back to USC football games and waves a banner and toots a tin horn. He had lost his paper hat on the way to the locker room to slap palms and yell, "ALL...right."

One Dimension

"Michigan was a one-dimension team. A good team, mind you, but not as good as our team."

Vince Evans, the Trojan quarterback had worked a lot of months for this day. A lot of fingers had been pointed at him for the failure of the Trojans to finish with respectability in 1975.

Now Bill Schroeder, the little man who has been making the presentation for 30 years, was naming Evans player of the game and handing him a trophy.

"You guys are the greatest," Evans sobbed. "This is the best day."

"I wish I could have had a better day," Ricky Bell said. "You'll have a lot of days," O.J. Simpson told him.

Ricky Bell and Tony Dorsett in the same backfield? Quite a package.

Somebody suggested that with this kind of runner on the way, O.J. Simpson may have to make room.

"I'm way ahead of you," O.J. smiled. "I already have."

O.J. Simpson and Ricky Bell running through the same airport to car rental counter? Quite a package.

Corona del Mar Faces Rugged Fight For South Coast Title

With two big scorers in post men Jack Tuz and Alex Black, Corona del Mar has to be the favorite in the revamped South Coast League, which gets under way tonight.

But the Sea Kings won't find clear sailing in their new loop since all but one team finished the pre-league slate with winning records and four different squads nabbed tournament titles.

The Sea Kings (7-4) won the prestigious Westminster Marina Tournament, beating CIF 3-A champion Lynwood. Corona's four losses have all been to 4-A schools, including setbacks to Verbum Dei, Long Beach Poly and Compton.

Tuz and Black have supplied most of the offense for the slow methodical attack, scoring 208 and 227 points respectively in 11 games.

Corona del Mar opens league action at El Toro while Costa Mesa is at Mission Viejo, Dana Hills is at Laguna Beach and University is at San Clemente. All the games start at 7 p.m.

Costa Mesa, also 7-4, won the Anaheim Tournament as well as placing third at San Clemente and taking the consolation title at Orange. Steve Parrino, a 6-3 forward has led a balanced Mustang squad with 221 points in 11 games.

While Corona del Mar and Costa Mesa are newcomers to the South Coast this year, San Clemente is a long time resident and will be out to protect the integrity of the old timers. The Tritons are 7-3 and fresh from an impressive first place showing in the strong Katella Classic.

Led by 6-2 forward Tim Dunham, who has 183 points in 10 games, the Tritons have defeated Katella and St. Anthony, while losing to Fountain Valley, Downey and Balsa Grande.

El Toro, with a 6-4 record is the other team to win a tournament title. The Chargers defeated league foe Laguna Beach Thursday to win the Elsinore tournament. Dana Hills was also in the Elsinore tournament.

Laguna Beach is 7-5 in non-league while both Dana Hills and Mission Viejo are 6-5. University, with a 5-8 mark, is the only squad with a losing record.

La Habra, Fullerton In Key O.L. Clash

Over the last three years, the Orange League has produced some of the toughest basketball races in Orange County. But the race in 1977 could be even tighter with the addition of La Habra and Fullerton into the previous six-team league.

The two newcomers clash at Fullerton tonight in the feature attraction, while Brea-Olinda is at El Dorado, Canyon is at Sonoma and Valencia is at Esplanada. All league action starts at 7.

La Habra, currently 8-1 and ranked second in the county, could be an odds-on favorite to take the crown. The Highlanders, behind shooters Ted Whittington and Scott Schamber, have captured the Clansmen and Monte Vista Tournaments, with their only loss a setback to Sunny Hills. But several other clubs, including Fullerton, Brea-Olinda, Canyon and surprising Valencia, are expected to challenge the Highlanders.

The Tigers of Valencia haven't won an Orange League game in three years, but 1977 could be their year. The team is 9-2 on the year, capturing its own tournament and finishing second in the Anaheim and Pioneer Tournaments.

Paul Gilbert has led the methodical Valencia offense with 226 points in 10 games.

Brea-Olinda High has made a practice of avoiding big stars this year, with no man averaging over 15 points a game and three averaging over ten. The Wildcats are 8-4 in pre-league and captured the Cerritos Tournament and took third in their own Tournament.

El Dorado has won the last three league titles and is currently 7-4, having taken third at the Santiago and Troy tournaments. John Heller, a 6-4 senior forward, has led El Dorado in scoring, with 161 points in 11 games.

Canyon High boasts the third highest scorer in the county in 6-7 senior Mike Maxam and an offense which could make the Commanches contenders in 1977.

The team is only 6-5 on the year, with three of those losses to Santa Ana Valley, Lowell and Boulder City of Las Vegas.

Fullerton was champion of the Freeway League in 1976 and Hoby Brenner, and Roger Childs, both returning starters, make the Indians a contender this year. The team lost its first three games, with Childs sitting out two of them, and is now 4-6 in pre-league action.

The losses have been to highly rated teams, including a 10-point loss to La Habra in the finals of the Clansman Classic.

Esplanada and Sonoma have also struggled in the pre-season schedule. Esplanada is 6-7 on the year, while Sonoma has a 3-7 mark. Both schools have strong offensive threats though in Rich Buchanan and Charlie Amaral. Buchanan, in 13 games for the Aztecs has scored 197 points, while Amaral, an all-league selection as a junior, has 191 points in 10 games.

Lowell, Lancers Favorites

While the addition of Anaheim, Western and Magnolia High Schools may have added some traditional powers to the Freeway League football race, it has apparently worked in reverse when it comes to basketball.

When the league opens play tonight, just two teams - Lowell and Sunny Hills - will own winning records and only one other - Western - has managed to stay at the .500 level.

In the league opener tonight, Lowell is at Western, Anaheim is at Troy, Buena Park is at Sunny Hills and Magnolia is at Savanna, all at 7.

Not surprisingly, Lowell and Sunny Hills are generally favored to battle it out for the league championship, with the other six teams struggling to avoid the bottom rung.

Through relegating, the Freeway loop saw La Habra, Fullerton and Santa Ana Valley shuffled off to the Orange League in the first two instances, and in the case of Valley, the Century League.

While most of the remaining Freeway squads stubled along in the pre-New Year basketball rush, all three departed teams have winning records, and La Habra is the favorite to win the Orange title.

However, the two Freeway teams which have managed to keep their heads above water thus far in 1976-77 have proven to be among the county's finest.

Sunny Hills (7-3) has the most significant win to date - a relatively easy 66-48 victory over La Habra. La Habra's only loss in 10 games.

The Lancers' losses have come at the hands of Cypress, La Mirada and Valencia, all winning teams. The loss to La Mirada came in the finals of the Brea-Olinda Tournament last week.

The Lancers are led by junior guard Sloan Carlson (6-0), who is averaging just under 17 points per game. Forward Paul Bernstein is scoring at a 10.3 clip.

Lowell has depended heavily on a brother act to compile an 8-3 non-league mark. Senior guard Ron Hill (5-10) is averaging 14.4 points per game and brother Gary, a 6-2 forward, is right back of him at 13.5.

Lowell's three losses have come against La Habra, Los Amigos and Santa Ana by a combined total of seven points.

Western is led by forward Lloyd Johnson, who averaging 18.7 points per game.

Troy (3-6), Magnolia (2-6), Anaheim (1-8), Buena Park (1-7) and Savanna (3-6) all found 1976 a bit on the rocky side. However, two individuals have risen above pack. Troy guard Kirby Sand is averaging 15.1 points per game and Anaheim's Chad Kominek's average is at 21.1 through nine games.

Mariners Sign Three Players

SEATTLE (AP) - Catcher Bob Stinson has signed a multi-year contract and first baseman Charlie Beamon and pitcher Steve Burke each have signed one-year pacts with the Seattle Mariners, the American League expansion baseball team announced Monday.

Lou Gorman, director of Mariner operations, also said Mike Ornest, 19, a free agent third baseman, has become the fourth player to sign to play with the Mariners' Class A Northwest League farm club at Bellingham in 1977.

Gorman said the latest signings bring to 10 the number of players signed to play for the parent club next season.

Ornest, a switch hitter, played with Victoria, Texas, in the Gulf States League in 1976, where he hit .265.

Stinson, also a switch hitter, was acquired by Seattle in the November expansion draft from the Kansas City Royals. He batted .263 for the AL Western Division champions last season. A veteran of five major league seasons, Stinson has caught for Montreal, Houston, St. Louis and Los Angeles in addition to Kansas City.

Burke was also obtained in the expansion draft, from the Boston organization. Last season with Winter Haven in the Florida State League, he posted a 10-10 record and a 3.07 earned-run-average.

Chacon, Leal Fight Jan. 13

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Former world featherweight boxing champion Bobby Chacon, now on the comeback trail after losing his crown, will fight Mexico's Julio Leal in a 10-round bout at the Olympic Auditorium on Jan. 13.

Matchmaker Don Chargin announced the pairing Monday. Chacon stopped Miguel Meza in three rounds on Dec. 16 at the Olympic and now will appear in the first regularly scheduled weekly fight for 1977 at the same arena.

UCI Girls Play Cal Poly Cagers

With only two returnees from a 10-4 team that won all seven conference starts, new UC Irvine women's basketball coach Millie Burns unveils the 1977 Anteaters tonight at 8 in a league game at Cal Poly Pomona.

Her experienced players are 5-10 senior Karen Floyd, who averaged 6.1 points a year ago, and 5-9 sophomore Kim Folta, a 4.3 scorer. Junior Carol Winell (5-2), soph Marilyn Johnston (5-9) and Karen Crovella, a 5-10 freshman, complete the lineup.

Ward, Kaiser MVP On 1-A

Junior Gary Ward of the CIF 1-A champion Rim of the World High and Gary Kaiser of Bishop were named co-most valuable players in the all-CIF 1-A team, it was announced today by Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation.

Ward, DeAnza League defensive player of the year, accounted for 2,050 yards for the Scots and scored 134 points while Kaiser scored 152 points and accounted for 1,827 yards for Bishop.

Cypress Starts Title Chase

If height, court savvy and good depth win basketball championships, Cypress College may have a Southern Cal Conference cage title waiting for it in March.

Coach Don Johnson and his Chargers, all fired up with a 12-1 December record in the log, begin finding out tonight if they have what it takes to win the Southern Cal Conference championship.

Because of its near perfect December record, Cypress goes into the conference race as the team to beat but strong competition is insured by Santa Monica College, defending champ Harbor and a crew of quick Roadrunners at Rio Hondo College. Golden West draws an opening bye.

Tonight's opening volley should be an informative one

as Cypress hosts Los Angeles City College, Rio Hondo visits Los Angeles Southwest and Harbor opens at Santa Monica.

Several of coach Johnson's Chargers have taken turns being heroes while Cypress scored impressive wins over Santa Ana, Pierce, Saddleback, Grossmont, Cerritos and Pasadena, but the most consistent individual continues to be 6-6 sophomore forward Tyrone Branyan.

Averaging 19.3 points per game, Branyan is the key to Cypress' success and title hopes. He's a major force on the boards and directs the tenacious Charger defense, a glove-tight man-to-man.

Barry Weston, Rick Cromwell, Bob White, Jim Sargent, Bob Diaz and Dave Shuts also play prominent roles and will have much to say about the Cypress bid for a championship.

The conference has numerous individual standouts. Talented players to watch will include Pete Aronchick and Matt Jordan, Ray Potlongo at L.A. City, Steve McGuire and David Koza at Rio Hondo, Carl Washington, Ken Anderson, Bob Johnson and Jim Batiste at Harbor and Golden West's Tom Rowan, Todd Zierbel, John Hirschler, Dan Bush and Darrell Briggs.

Southern Cal Conference teams will play two rounds of conference games culminating Feb. 22 with the champion advancing to the Sunkist-State JC Tournament at Fresno in March.

Santa Fe Cagers At Chapman

With two wins in their last three starts for a 3-9 record, College of Santa Fe (N. Mex.) begins an Orange County invasion tonight at 7:30 against Chapman at Orange High School.

Then Wednesday the Knights move on down the road to UC Irvine for an 8 p.m. contest.

Chapman has dropped eight games in a row - the last three at home and four here in all since winning its first two outings at Orange.

Although 3-1 at home, UCI slipped to 4-6 overall by losing its last three games of 1976 on the road.

"We've worked hard in practice. When you're losing, you work all the harder," says coach Rich Rider, whose Panthers have blown some good leads and lost twice by one point and another time in overtime.

"We're all healthy so if we don't get snakebit we still could turn things around."

He plans to return seven-footer Guy Kinsley to the starting lineup after experimenting in a one-game switch to El Modena High. Ty Bauler and Tim Davis complete the front line with Reg Newson and John Johnson at guards. Bauler is averaging 13.2 points, Newson 12.4, Johnson 11.9, Davis 11.8 and Marv Thurman 10.

Santa Fe has two returnees from a 3-20 team in 6-4 Tom Flack, who averaged 15 points, and 8.5 scorer Tim Dowdell (6-0). Larry Gordich (6-10) and Greg Pope (6-3) are freshmen starters while 6-4 Phil Todd is JC transfer.

Scott Jenkins and Lou Stephens share the UCI point lead at 12.8.

They are the only sure starters, according to coach Tim Tift, who resumed drills after a layoff Monday and can scout tonight.

Kirk Christ is expected back from illness, but the academic status of Kevin Davis remains unsettled so another freshman may be added to the varsity "because we need someone scoring coming off the bench."

By WILL GRIMSLEY
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football League shrugged off scores of "kooky" suggestions and decided to let Mickey Mouse, brotherhood and 104,000 spectators reign at halftime in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"In the past we have shot cannons, staged mock wars and hoisted giant gas-filled balloons," Bob Cochran, the NFL's broadcast coordinator, said Monday. "This one will be a folksy show, produced by Walt Disney Productions, and everybody will get into the act."

Super Bowl XI matches the Minnesota Vikings and the Oakland Raiders but, if tradition prevails, the football game may be overshadowed by halftime ceremonies.

For the first time, every ticket holder—there will be 104,000 of them in the Rose Bowl—will have a part in the show.

"Midway in the second period, 90 Eagle scouts will pass through the stadium, handing out cards of four colors," Cochran said. "Pompom girls will stand in front of each of the 26 sections, choreographing the card colors."

Television viewers will benefit most from the spectacular. A television camera in the Goodyear blimp overhead will catch a sea of moving, dancing colors changing from one configuration to another.

"The scene," said Cochran, "will be a gigantic kaleidoscope—a non-stop, 12-minute spectacular."

The game will be televised nationally by NBC.

The halftime show will be embellished by 600 Los Angeles school kids, going through maneuvers on the infield: A 250-piece marching band with vocal support from Disneyland's Kids of the Kingdom and the march of the Mickey Mouseketeers.

The theme will be based on the "It's a Small World" attraction at Disneyland and Walt Disney World, with such musical numbers as "It's a Big, Wide Wonderful World," "Una Paloma Blanca" and "Brotherhood of Man."

"It will be unprecedented," Cochran said, "and it will all be on the ground."

The NFL official acknowledged that some previous halftime undertakings had been overly ambitious and not without some unenvying consequences, such as the notorious foulup in Super Bowl IV at New Orleans in 1970.

There, the presentation got off to a shaky start when one of the flame-powered "Around the World in 80 Days" balloons, with a horned Viking in the basket, was caught in a gust of wind and slammed into the stands. No one was injured.

Also, Pat O'Brien sang the national anthem a beat ahead of the band, Al Hirt and Ella Fitzgerald never got in tune.

A $50,000 float of a Mississippi River boat never got through the portals. And in a recreation of the Battle of New Orleans, British red coats wiped out Andrew Jackson and his Tennessee Sharpshooters.

"We've had all sorts of offers this year," Cochran said. "One man wanted to jetison into the stadium with the coin for the teams to flip. Another wanted to fly from atop a Los Angeles building with self-made wings. We had all sorts of kooky suggestions. We feel safe with Disney."

'200,000 To Go Bankrupt'

Even though 1977 is being touted as a "good economic year" more than 200,000 families will file for personal bankruptcy, said Leonard G. Rose.

Rose, president of Chicago-based National Accounts Systems, said the number of bankruptcies will decline this year from the 211,345 in 1976. These figures represent just a small fraction of the number that are in serious financial trouble.

This prediction, Rose said is based on the steady increase in consumer debt and the "psychological reaction of taxpayers seeing the federal government go deeper into debt — without apparent ill effects. "With government showing little inclination to reduce spending levels to match available income, the prospect is for continually greater public debt and more or higher taxes."

PERSONAL INCOME RISING

"Personal income during the past year has risen faster than prices, so many families have had a chance to catch up on their financial obligations...and to put some money into savings," Rose said.

"Much of the money now being spent represents overtime or second incomes from working wives," Rose said, "money which people psychologically feel is 'extra' income that can be spent for nonessential or big-ticket credit purchases."

"Unfortunately, that second income is often necessary to keep up the family's standard of living. The chairman of the National Commission for Manpower Policy estimates that only 40 per cent of the jobs in the U.S. today pay enough to permit a man to support a family on his income alone...a fact that may explain why over 44 per cent of the married women have joined the work force, 10 per cent increase over five years ago."

Rose points out that the consumers' income depends upon the success of the business which employs them, and many business firms are still having financial problems.

"Business bankruptcies in fiscal 1976 rose 16.8 per cent over 1975," he states, "this year averaging more than 2,900 failures per month."

TREND LEVELS OFF
"This trend has leveled off since May, but the situation is still acute in many industries, especially those related to commercial and industrial construction."

"Many such firms will succumb in 1977 to government over-regulation. Already struggling with a multitude of taxes, environmental and consumer protection requirements, their problems will be compounded by one predictable factor in government policy: almost surely, politicians on the local, state and federal levels will continue to enact new laws that require major capital expense."

"It does no good to try to spur consumer spending through a token tax cut, while at the same time increasing social security, employment, property, sales and corporate taxes in order to cover deficit spending," he said.

The political tendency to spend more tax dollars, "This must be covered somehow...and the individual and business taxpayers will pay, either through higher taxes or more inflation."

"The only things sure about 1977 will be death and taxes," Rose concluded.

Air Passenger Traffic Up As Freight Drops

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Domestic and international scheduled airline traffic increased by 5.9 per cent in November 1976 compared with November 1975, the Air Transport Association reported.

For the 11 month period, scheduled airline traffic increased 6.8 per cent from November of last year. Passenger load factor for the month was 52.4 per cent, compared with 53.0 per cent last year. Available seat miles flown increased 8.0 per cent.

In international service, revenue passenger miles increased 1.4 per cent from 1975. Passenger load factor was 49.2 per cent, compared with 47.8 per cent last year. Available seat miles decreased 1.5 per cent from November 1975.

Available seat miles flown in domestic and international service were up 6.2 per cent. Passenger load factor for 23 U.S. airlines was 51.9 per cent, compared with 52.0 per cent in November last year.

Also, the scheduled airlines recorded a 1.7 per cent decrease in air freight in November compared with November 1975, the Air Transport Association reported.

For the 11-month period, air freight increased 5.0 per cent over the same period last year.

In domestic service, air freight was down 0.1 per cent from November last year. International air freight decreased 3.8 per cent.

Total domestic air cargo which consists of freight and mail, increased 2.8 per cent from the same month in 1975. Mail was up 15.5 per cent from the same month in 1975. Mail was up 15.5 per cent.

In international service, air cargo decreased 4.3 per cent from November 1975. Mail decreased 6.9 per cent.

214,000 Shares Of WTC Stock Bought By Prexy

Harry M. Baker, president of WTC Inc., Newport Beach, announced that he has completed the purchase of 214,000 shares of the outstanding common stock of WTC Inc. at a price of $3.50 a share.

The shares were purchased from the estate of R.B. Meyers, formerly chairman of WTC.

Baker and his family now hold approximately 484,000 shares or about 23 per cent of the 2,103,150 shares of common stock outstanding.

WTC Inc. is the parent corporation having subsidiaries in air freight forwarding, surface freight forwarding and leasing activities.

As an air freight forwarder the company maintains terminals in 19 major metropolitan areas, and as a surface freight forwarder maintains 32 terminals. The company also operates a truck equipment leasing division.

Company-Govt Cooperation A Must -- Rocky

CLEVELAND (AP) — Industry and government must stop thinking themselves as antagonists if U.S. productivity is to improve, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller told Industry Week Magazine.

Rockefeller said productivity doesn't simply mean "work faster" but consists of making the most efficient use of resources.

Accomplishing this, the outgoing vice president continued, involves the cooperation of labor, management, science, technology and government, Rockefeller said in an interview which appears in the magazine this week.

He said that productivity not only "relates to growth. It relates to jobs. It relates to our competitive position in the world. It relates to our ability to preserve national security and world leadership and world peace."

He told the trade publication that other industrialized nations have very active government inspired productivity programs — largely because exports are far more important to their economies than to the largely autonomous U.S. economy.

Rockefeller concluded that young people need a better education in economics and politics to learn about "the American enterprise system and what makes it work."

Mazda To Bring New Cars Into Port Hueneme

PORT HUENEME, — Mazda Motors of America, Inc. (MMA, Inc.) and the Oxnard Harbor District have signed a final agreement for the lease of a 10.6-acre dockside area here to be used for the importation, storage and processing of automobiles by MMA, Inc.

The five-year lease is renewable for four additional terms of five years each for a total of 25 years, and could generate up to $3 million in rent payments from Mazda to the Oxnard Harbor District.

Akira Toriyama, president of MMA, Inc., said, "By opening our own port operation facility, Mazda gains greater quality control of vehicle preparation, more efficient distribution of automobiles and the inherent economies in the consolidation of our current two-port operation in Long Beach and Richmond to a one-port operation here."

Jerry Mickey, port operations manager for MMA, Inc., will direct the day-to-day operation of the processing facility that serves Mazda's seven-state Pacific area.

MMA, Inc. is responsible for the importation and distribution of Mazda automobiles in the 12 Western states of California, Nevada, New Mexico, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, Utah, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Oklahoma.

Coffee Futures Advance Limit

NEW YORK (AP) — Coffee futures were higher on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange Monday.

Futures prices rose the daily 3 cents a pound limit and the March 1977 contract reached a record $230.00 pound. Buying was prompted by news that Brazil and Colombia had changed their coffee regulations increasing prices for green Brazilian beans by almost 16 cents a pound and those from Colombia by 44 cents a pound.

Hoover-Ugine Closes Michigan Steel Wire Unit

BRIDGMAN, Mich. (AP) — The Hoover-Ugine Co. has closed its steel wire manufacturing plant here and laid off nearly its entire work force of some 110 employees.

"We have a complete shutdown," said Glenn Dixon, general manager of the plant. "At the present time, there are no definite plans to reopen for production. A skeleton crew will maintain the facility."

The four-year-old facility ceased operations last Thursday, eight weeks after the company had denied a rumor that it intended to close.

At the time, the rumored shutdown was attributed to a drop in demand for steel products.

When the $15 million plant was put into operation in 1973, it was hailed as the first of its kind in the world to convert scrap metal into hot rolled, low carbon bar and wire rod by a unique extrusion process.

The firm is owned in part by Hoover Ball and Bearing Co. of Ann Arbor.

Magazine Staffers Strike In Effort To Prevent Sale

The Register BUSINESS-FINANCE

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of editorial staffers of New York magazine and its West Coast counterpart threatened Monday to strike to prevent sale of the property to Australian press lord Rupert Murdoch.

Spokesmen said 57 staff members of New York and New West magazines voted to join a walkout Tuesday unless there was a 10-day postponement of the sale to allow a search for "a far more acceptable buyer, such as the Washington Post." The two publications have a total of 153 editorial employees.

"We are doing our damndest to see that Mr. Murdoch doesn't get control of this magazine," political writer Richard Reeves said at a news conference. He added he would resign from the staff if the sale went through.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Griesa refused to lift a restraining order barring transfer to Murdoch of 24 per cent of New York magazine Co. stock held by City Councilman Carter Burden.

A court hearing has been scheduled for today. The order had been obtained by Clay Felker, president and chief executive officer of the New York company, who has been fighting to prevent its sale to Murdoch. He reportedly brought the Washington Post into the bidding for the property, but the newspaper later dropped out.

Murdoch announced Sunday that he had an agreement to obtain controlling interest in the magazine company for a sum in the neighborhood of $7.5 million. The company publishes the weekly newspaper Village Voice, as well as New West and New York magazines.

There was no immediate indication of what part the Voice would play in any protest against the sale.

It was Murdoch's second multimillion dollar publishing deal in New York within the past two months. Only last Friday, he took control of the New York Post after paying a reported $31 million for Manhattan's only afternoon daily.

"We do not deserve and are not willing to be sold in a 48-hour deal," read a statement to the board of directors by dissident staffers of New West and New York.

"Accordingly, if you will not show us the respect of waiting for at least 10 days before making such a drastic decision, we intend to withhold our work beginning tomorrow morning."

"We feel we have been sold out and dealt with in extremely bad faith...to someone we don't know," Reeves said.

Starting with an Australian daily, Murdoch built up an empire of 84 newspapers in that country, Great Britain and the United States. He has drawn criticism in some quarters for the sensational tone of some of his papers.

Westgate Sues Insurance Firm

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bankrupt Westgate-California Corp. says it discovered in 1974 the loss of $100 million as a result of employee fraud and theft but its insurance carrier refused to pay the claims.

The Insurance Co. of North America said, however, the coverage was cancelled long before that when wrongdoing first was being reported by newspapers.

In two suits filed simultaneously in state and federal courts, Westgate accused the insurance firm of breach of contract. It said the money, securities and other properties were taken for their own use between Jan. 1, 1972, and March 28, 1974, by Westgate employees, "many of whose identities are unknown." Westgate was founded and headed by financier C. Arnold Smith until it collapsed and filed for protection Feb. 16, 1974, under the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Last October, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., as receiver for Smith's U.S. National Bank filed suit against Insurance Co. of North America for more than $126 million.

The suits filed by trustees for Westgate and 20 of its wholly owned subsidiaries said the insurance company and Westgate entered into an agreement Jan. 1, 1972, for coverage against employee fraud. The $100 million in losses was discovered on or about Aug. 19, 1974, the suits said.

Although Westgate said the agreement covered previous losses discovered after Jan. 1, 1972, the conglomerate's suits said the claims were denied. Insurance Co. of North America said Westgate knew of wrongdoing as early as 1969 and no later than its 1970 annual report issued in May 1971.

The insurance was cancelled when that information became public, the firm said. Smith, 74, has pleaded no contest to bank fraud and put on five years' probation.

Lowest Level Jobs Seen Becoming More Available

By JACK HOUSTON
Chicago Tribune

Guess where you might find a job in the near future without having to beat out the competition?

A study prepared for the United States Department of Labor found that the supply of workers available for the lowest level and least desirable jobs will drop in the next 10 years.

Lower-level jobs are chiefly the less skilled and lower-wage blue-collar and service jobs. The most undesirable of these include domestic servants, janitors and cleaners, cooks and kitchen workers, laundry operators, helpers, and laborers.

Such jobs will be yours for the asking in the coming decade.

The National Planning Association, which conducted the study, found that even under a

Champ. Home Loses Despite Rising Sales

DRYDEN, Mich. (AP) — Champion Home Builders Co. had losses in both its third quarter and first nine months of fiscal 1976 despite increased sales, the firm reported Monday.

Champion, which builds mobile homes and recreation vehicles, said it had a net loss of $2.06 million, or six cents a share, in the quarter, compared with a loss of $1 million, or three cents a share, in the same year ago period.

Third-quarter sales were $62.5 million, up 29 per cent over $48.5 million in the corresponding quarter of 1975.

For the first nine months ended Nov. 26, the firm reported net losses of $608,000, or two cents a share, compared with a loss of $1.15 million, or three cents a share, a year ago.

Sales were $227 million, up 40 per cent from $161.9 million in the comparable period of 1975.

full employment economy (with unemployment at 4 per cent), fewer workers will be available for these jobs.

That's because of an expected decline in the proportion of younger workers in the labor force, the continued rise in the educational attainment of adult workers, and an expected exodus of black workers from low-status jobs.

The study, "The Labor Study for Lower Level Occupations," concludes that there is a sharp contrast between the limited demands and limited rewards of many jobs and the abilities, skills, and aspirations of workers.

The trend away from low-status jobs will cause a number of problems, the report suggests.

Better educated young people entering the labor market can expect increased competition for the better jobs, and they may be forced to take something that will not fully utilize their education.

Already, more than a third of the nation's workers consider they are educationally overqualified for their jobs and they have much less job satisfaction than other workers, the study reports.

Women and minority workers, seeking a fair share of the preferred jobs available, will face increased competition from the majority group of workers. There could be the danger of increased confrontation on equal employment opportunity issues.

Employers will be faced with high job vacancy and high turnover and the increased problem of poor worker morale, as they try to fill their low-skilled, low-status jobs.

Colleges and universities will be forced to re-evaluate their programs and their enrollment prospects in light of an altered job market outlook for college-trained personnel.

Public manpower agencies and employment services could be faced with conflicting demands for their services on the part of the better educated worker. In the past, their primary clientele consisted of the disadvantaged.

Families now using the services of paid domestics may be forced in the future to seek other substitutes for getting the housework done. Either they will be forced to do the work themselves or to use commercial services for housecleaning.

The study points out that workers have "built-in" occupational preferences in which jobs tend to be ranked in terms of their desirability. Preference is based on the work to be performed, its rewards, the conditions of work, and the prestige associated with it.

The study also describes the criteria used to identify what it calls "lower level" occupations, provides a broad perspective on past sources of work on past sources of workers for these occupations, and analyzes the relationship between labor supply factors and relative wages in lower level jobs.

EVER STRIVING FOR SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Serrano Again

The California Supreme Court last Thursday reaffirmed its 1971 stand, in Serrano v. Priest, that the property tax is an unfair means of financing the compulsory school system. The temptation is to welcome the new stand as an official acknowledgement of the unfairness — and the exorbitance — of property taxes. There will be halleluiah coming, not only from the "poor" school districts the court meant to assist, but from suburbia as well.

Nonetheless, it is difficult to believe the justices acted with firm constitutional resolve. The decision seems more a reiteration of their predilection for ideologized visions of equality. Nor, in the long run, will the decision greatly benefit the quality of education. The real world simply does not work the way the justices would have it be enforced. They would have all sub-university education be "equal" — as elusive a concept as ever was — to all comers. Ultimately, we suppose, the state should be carved up into school districts of equal size, geographic as well as demographic. Why rest a design on the economic only?

Surely, if education means learning how the world operates, it means growing up mature. It means understanding there are certain disparities of livelihood, of homelife, of intellectual equipment and, yes, even of social cruelties that can be surmounted only with individual initiative. It is abundantly clear that the nation's leaders did not all come from the "best" schools; many were graduated from what educational theorists, to whom you may now add state Supreme Court justices, thought the worst.

Furthermore in these times especially, when school systems everywhere function as enmeshed bureaucracy, in which youngsters can no longer write grammatically or perform computations, there is probably more hope in isolated backwater schoolhouses whose only violence is the noise of hydraulic furnaces. These are cozy reassurances of common sense, which has all but evaporated in the modern compulsory system.

So the court gave the state legislature less than four years in which to enact a substitute means of financing. In effect, the decision all but mandates a statewide property tax of some sort. California's political script for the rest of the decade is written: local government units hassling over ways to get local taxes down. That's not as happy as it sounds: the statewide tax will be new, additional, on top of the rest.

The so-called "voucher" plan, which has not enjoyed favorable reception in the courts thus far, will be re-examined. The plan, devised in the 1960s by the likes of Milton Friedman and Christopher Jencks, would allocate chits to parents who would then send their children to the schools of their choice. The plan has the virtue of reintroducing competition to the schools, and it is a positive response to the requirements of Serrano.

But the voucher plan too rests on shaky assumptions. Redistribution of personal wealth, filtered through government agencies, can never be "fair."

Better yet to arrange for tax credits and for a free-market system in which parents and students shop around for suitable classrooms. Why not the best? Why not liberty? Never mind what educational theorists say, ultimately the families themselves know best where to purchase instruction.

NATION'S PRESS

Local Socialism

(The Gastonia Gazette, North Carolina) Socialism, like twins, is something that happens to the other guy. It doesn't really relate to us or anybody we know personally. Sweden and Russia and places like that have socialism, and they're messing around with it in Washington and even in Raleigh, but there are no socialists in Gaston County. Check the party registrations if you don't believe it. How many friends and neighbors ever told you they were socialists?

Still... The most classic example of socialism is a tax-supported school system; but that isn't really socialism because it's local and the people on the board are all good free enterprisers who hate socialism and are smart enough to know it won't work, right? So, cross that one off.

We have a city-owned power distribution system, which an objective observer might call an example of socialism, but there is not a single socialist on the city commission so how can that be socialism? Not a chance.

Now the city is thinking about some other enterprises which might be mislabeled socialism if we didn't know that there aren't any socialists around here.

only Democrats and Republicans. Take, for example, the proposal that Gastonia join with other cities and electric cooperatives to buy a nuclear power plant which Duke Power Co. wants to get rid of because it is such a dreadful dog. The city is, as they say on the farm, "in season" over this proposal which, as we said, would be termed socialistic if we didn't know there weren't any socialists around here.

There is another local proposal which could be mistaken for socialism and that is a suggestion that the local government take over the bus system, also a loser.

Operating schools, transportation facilities and sources of energy are cornerstones of basic socialism, even the Marxist brand. It is queer, indeed, how socialism becomes respectable and plausible when it's done on a local rather than national scale.

But that, of course, is because all the damn fools who believe in socialism are in the cuckoo nests of Washington or one of those bankrupt little places in Europe, and we don't have folks around here who believe in this political witchcraft. It's not really socialism when it's done by folks we all know and love.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 4, the fourth day of 1977. There are 361 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1790, George Washington delivered the first annual presidential message to the nation.

On this date: In 1943, Christopher Columbus sailed from America for Spain aboard the "Niña."

In 1642, the mathematician who discovered the law of gravity, Sir Isaac Newton, was born in Lincolnshire, England.

The Insiders

In the fall of 1976, NBC treated its viewers on a series of Thursday nights to Taylor Caldwell's novel of political power and intrigue entitled "Captains And The Kings." Many of those viewers were surprised to learn that, even in the imagination of the author, if not in reality, there existed a behind-the-scenes group that controls elections in the U.S.A.

Such an organization does indeed exist. It contains names from the top levels of industry, labor, government, education, finance, entertainment and communications. It is the Council On Foreign Relations, Inc., or CFR, with headquarters in New York City. Of its total membership of 1,725, 1,152 reside in the Boston, New York and Washington areas, while the remaining 573 are scattered elsewhere.

The CFR is sometimes referred to as "The Eastern Establishment" or "The Invisible Government" or "The Insiders." Since its founding in 1921, its membership roster has provided hundreds of top-level appointments in the administrations of ten presidents, including Jimmy Carter.

Of the dozen and a half persons selected by (or for) Carter for cabinet-level jobs and announced publicly prior to Christmas Day, no fewer than eight are CFR members. They are: Cyrus Vance, Harold Brown, Ted Sorensen, Zbigniew Brzezinski, Michael Blumenthal, Joe Califano, Patricia Harris and Walter Mondale.

The head man at CFR is David Rockefeller, its board chairman. Its vice chairman is Carter's Secretary of State, Cyrus Vance. CFR directors include Carter's Treasury Secretary Blumenthal and Carter's National Security Adviser Brzezinski.

Based on policies pushed by CFR members in prior administrations, the prime dedications of the CFR appear to be: increased domestic socialism or collectivism with the attendant increased cost and power of government; disarmament of the USA along with increased exportation of U.S. products, weapons, technology and money to communist governments, thus enabling the merging of the USA into a one-world collectivist system of government. The code word for this among the insiders is "new world order" or if you prefer the Latin

Antiquated Defense

The latest edition of Jane's "All The World's Aircraft," the most authoritative annual on comparative air power in existence, has made the very alarming claim that the Soviet Union is so far ahead in military airpower that the U.S. might be forced to use nuclear weapons if war broke out between the two countries.

It documented its grim warning by contrasting our aging and rickety fleet of B-52 bombers of 1950 vintage with the vast aerial armada of Russia's sleek supersonic swept-wing bombers and fighters, being feverishly built by the Soviets. It urged quick production of our new B-1 bomber to offset this wide lead the Russians have.

By way of contrast, the publication cited Russia's fleet of over 100 new Backfire bombers, which can strike targets in the U.S. from bases inside Russia, flying at a speed greater than that of the British-French Corcorde. Yet the Russians continue to demand that this bomber be considered a tactical or close support weapon and therefore not be considered under the umbrella of the new SALT agreements. J.W.R. Taylor, editor of this publication, flatly stated that if we accede to this demand, we will in fact be lessening the chances for a lasting peace.

When one recalls that the companion publication, Jane's "Fighting Ships," recently gave a similar second ranking to our navy vis a vis the Russian navy (an evaluation essentially seconded by no less an authority than retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt), one is forced to question the viability of our military forces to defend this nation in the event of a Soviet attack.

Yet our bemused liberals in Congress continue to opt for greater cuts in defense spending and to hold up production of our B-1 bomber, the long overdue replacement for the antiquated B-52. Americans can only hope that President-elect Carter, whose campaign rhetoric included an equally alarming promise to cut our defense budget by $15 billion (later toned down to $5 to $7 billion), will take heed of this warning and urge Congress to make whatever expenditures are necessary to regain our lead as soon as possible. Americans should write President Carter and their own representatives in Congress and demand this.

History's bloody trail of communist conquest, inexorable and on-going, assures us of one thing — we will not be second rate militarily very long, and still remain a free people.

County Politicking

The County Planning Commission has suffered a great loss by the recent removal of Ralph Benson as legal advisor to the commission. In my four years on the commission I have never known Mr. Benson to fall short of his responsibilities to the county and to its citizens in any of the legal advice that he provided.

I know that those who have served on the commission with me share my feelings and observations in this regard. Apparently Mr. Benson's legal advice, although professionally sound and correct, has not been satisfactory to certain members of the Board of Supervisors and we are left with the conclusion that Mr. Benson's removal could only be for political reasons.

The citizens of this county have suffered another loss in this, the latest of a series of board actions designed and masterminded solely to facilitate the political power of the board over the commission so as to accommodate the campaign fund tradeoffs that have become a way of life with certain members of the Board of Supervisors.

I for one can not condone the removal of any competent and highly-qualified individual with the outstanding character of Mr. Benson from a position of public trust. I sincerely hope the citizens of this county write to their supervisor and let him know of their dissatisfaction with this latest action.

The Terrible Nonsense of Licensing

By BUTLER SHAFFER

The licensing of professions has been one of the most dishonest of schemes foisted off onto the American public.

While theoretically promoted as a system for "protecting the public" from dishonest and incompetent practitioners of a trade or profession, the actual purpose of licensing has been to protect members of the profession from competition. This is accomplished through (1) limiting the entry of would-be practitioners into the profession, and (2) controlling trade and pricing practices by threatening to remove the license of those who are too aggressive in seeking business.

Those who defend this system argue that licensing exams do not keep any "competent" person from entering the profession. "After all," they reason, "he has only to pass an examination to prove his competence." While this argument may have a superficial ring of truth to it, a closer scrutiny of the licensing system shows what any freshman college student has long known: whether one "passes" or "fails" an exam is, more often than not, determined less by what the student "knows" than the grading standard used by the instructor.

A really tough standard will result in a high failure rate than a more lenient standard. Thus, in such states as California, it is not uncommon for 50 per cent of the applicants for the state bar exam to fail, while the failure rate in less populous states is often below five per cent. Does this mean that California lawyers are ten-times more interested in "protecting" California citizens than, let us say, lawyers in the Dakotas? Or, does it mean only that California lawyers are ten-times more concerned that lawyers from other states may be attracted to move into California to practice?

Those who seriously contend that licensing is designed to rid the profession of incompetents, should explain the so-called "grandfather's clauses." Whenever any profession is successful in getting licensing required for itself, there is invariably included in the enabling legislation a provision exempting present practitioners from having to secure a license. They are, instead, automatically granted one.

There is a terrible contradiction in this for the argument on behalf of licensing is always predicated on the contention that there are far too many "incompetent" and "unethical" practitioners in the trade. If this is so, then why automatically award a license to the very persons whose alleged inadequacies have precipitated the need for licensing? The reasons are rather apparent.

It is quite amusing to listen to the preposterous nonsense that has been offered by trade members as their rationale for limiting competition for themselves. In one state, a system of licensing was promoted to regulate those who make duplicate keys. The best scare-tactic that the promoter of this legislation could come into a drug store to have duplicate key made, and the "unlicensed" clerk who waited on her might make an extra key, follow her home, and let himself into her apartment and attack her! That the individual who offered this brilliant piece of reasoning just happened to be president of a state locksmith's association was, of course, purely fortuitous.

A system of licensing is nothing more than a legal device for fixing prices, and eliminating competitors — all features we normally associate with monopolies. It is important to note, however, that this anti-competitive and anti-consumer racket is possible only because the state lends its coercive power to the practice to make it legally enforceable upon all members of the regulated profession. One who sought to engage in such a trade without having secured the permission of his fellow "competitors," would find himself subject to a court injunction, or a fine and/or imprisonment.

At a time when so-called legislation that serves to increase prices and restrict consumer free-choice, serious attention might well be given to eliminating one of the more harmful — and dishonest — "consumer frauds": licensing.

INSIDE LABOR

The World Welfare Record

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — An ancient wise man once admonished his peers to "anticipate charity by preventing poverty." More recently, hordes of less wise professionals in the poverty industry loudly proclaim that our system does little indeed, for the needy, the aged, the motherless and fatherless children of the inner cities, the handicapped, the luckless.

Well, some methodical research reveals that our much-harpooned capitalist United States spent $440 billion on social welfare of all kinds in fiscal 1976. That's right, billions.

Thus did the private and public "sectors" with hearts as open as their coffers, help the poor of our land. It's a note to be struck this Christmas-New Year's season.

Of this outpouring of billions the year round for everything from food stamps and home nursing for bedridden aged and on to training of minority youngsters for jobs and for income maintenance, and for health services, the public sector contributed $331 billion in fiscal '76. This "sector" is made up of your hometown, your state and the federal government.

It's a pity one must call in the auditors to refute the legions of self-appointed social "activists" who specialize in perpetual conscience-pricking. True, the time when government and national leaders shouldn't be needed must never come. But it does happen that the federal government disbursed 56 per cent of its total expenditures in 1976 on social welfare.

The public sector social welfare bill this past fiscal year was actually some $45 billion higher than the previous year.

This vast sum $440 billion worth of the people's money, went for programs which include public assistance, supplemental security income, food stamps, emergency employment and manpower training programs, as well as jobless insurance, aid to children, Medicare, Medicaid and home relief and many other types of cash payments to those drifting out of life's mainstream.

Thus, by adding the private sector contributions to what the federal, state and municipal governments distributed to the unfortunate and the aging — (that's the $440 billion) you find that this comes to over 27 per cent of America's gross national product.

This past fiscal year, this gargantuan social welfare expenditure rocketed at a swifter rate than did the gross national product. The welfare-health-income maintenance spending rose by 15.9 per cent in fiscal '76. But the GNP rose 11 per cent.

And, according to the government experts, 67 per cent of state and local expenditures were for social welfare in fiscal '76. That gets right to the town in which you live.

This isn't a story which lends itself to the swinging phrase of the macho metaphor. One can't Elizabeth Taylor statistics. But these do add up to a national sense of brotherhood (and sisterhood) much more munificent than that of any land any side of any curtain.

So much so that the government is beginning to tilt in the direction of ever-churning money machines. Before 1966, says a government report, the federal share of social welfare was less than half then being provided. By this past fiscal year, 60 per cent of these help-the-needy expenditures were federally funded. This jump in just one decade.

As these vast public purses open up, dirty hands reach in. I have estimated that up to $10 billion is being ripped off the anti-poverty system annually. The answer to this charge generally has been a "don't call us, we'll call you" response, from the highest bureaucrats here. They are men and women who have been in the federal woodwork for years.

Now comes Robert Fulton, a new Health, Education and Welfare Department administrator of the Social and Rehabilitations Service. He wasn't in office very long when he did return my call. We did meet. He did pledge to steamshovel the grafters out of the welfare trough. And he is.

On Dec. 16, Fulton reported that federal and state dollars "lost through errors in eligibility or overpayments had been reduced" from 16 per cent to almost 9 per cent recently, in just one program. This in what's called Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Since his office began the drive to slash "errors" through a "Quality Control Campaign," some $1.1 billion has been saved. Some 490,000 ineligible (about 175,000 families) have been cut from the welfare rolls.

This is an enormous sum. But still it's penny ante when compared with the $440 billion worth of the people's money. If there is any truth in statistics, there must be a fundamental, or a universal average appliance of the current percentage of "error." Some call it "fraud." If in one small section of the spoilage comes to almost 10 per cent, then there could be ripoffs and mismanagement costing this nation tens of billions of dollars annually.

It isn't the poor who bite the hand which feeds them, it's the thief on the backs of the needy who rips off the cash.

Too bad such rot spoils the image of this nation which gives more to aiding its poor than to any other pursuit.

Magi Explained

My girlfriend and I are writing regarding information on the article on last week's front page: "The Star of Bethlehem? Answer is Offered to Ancient Mystery". It incited our curiosity to do further research because we felt his theory was neither complete nor clear. For your readers who might agree with us, we'd like to share this information.

First - with reference to the Hebrew magi's (wise men). We found some interesting information commenting on who these magi were.

The Imperial Bible Dictionary says: "According to Herodotus, the magi were a tribe of the Medes, who professed to interpret dreams, and had the official charge of sacred rites; they were, in short, the learned and priestly class, and having, as was supposed, the skill of deriving from books and the observation of the stars, a supernatural insight into coming events. Later investigations tend rather to make Babylon than Media and Persia the centre of full-blown magianism. Originally, the Median priests were not called magi. From the Chaldeans, however, they received the name of magi for their priestly caste, and it is thus we are to explain what Herodotus says of the magi being a Median tribe." (Also J.C. Muller in Herzog's Encyclo.)

The name "magi" became current as a generic term for astrologers in the East." - The New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclo., Vol. XXII, p. 8076.

How many of these astrologers "from eastern parts" brought "gold and frankincense and myrrh" to the child Jesus is not disclosed; there is no factual basis for the traditional notion that there were three. (Matt. 2:1, 11). As astrologers they were servants of false gods, and unwittingly led by what appeared to them as a moving "star". They alerted Herod to the fact that the "king of the Jews" had been born, and Herod, in turn, sought to have Jesus killed. The plot, however, failed. Jehovah intervened and proved superior to the demon gods of the astrologers, so instead of returning to Herod, they headed home another way after being given "divine warning in a dream." Matt. 2:12, 13.

However we would like to agree on his opening statements that "the star couldn't have been a mere physical star to go before and to stand over a house or even a village at one and the same time."

It is also notable that only these pagan astrologers "saw" the star. Their condemned practice of astrology and the adverse results of their visit, placing in danger the life of the future Messiah, certainly allow for, and even make advisable, the consideration of their having been directed by a source adverse to God's purposes as relating to the promised Messiah. It is certainly reasonable to ask if the one who "keeps transforming himself into an angel of light," whose operation is "with every powerful work and lying signs and portents," who was able to make a serpent appear to speak and who was referred to by Jesus as a "manslayer when he began," could not also cause astrologers to "see" a starlike object that guided them first, not to Bethlehem, but to Jerusalem, where resided a mortal enemy of the promised Messiah. - 2 Cor. 11:13, 14; 2 Thess. 2:9; Gen. 3:1-4; John 8:44.

We hope your readers find this information as interesting as we did. Thank you.

New Law

I would like to take this opportunity to remind all Mobile home owners, and trailer owners, of the new law that goes into effect Jan. 1, whereby they will be allowed to put a "for sale" sign in their window, or on their trailer, if they so wish.

Until now, they have been denied this right, by park owners, allowing the owners and/or managers to discriminate against anyone they didn't want in the court.

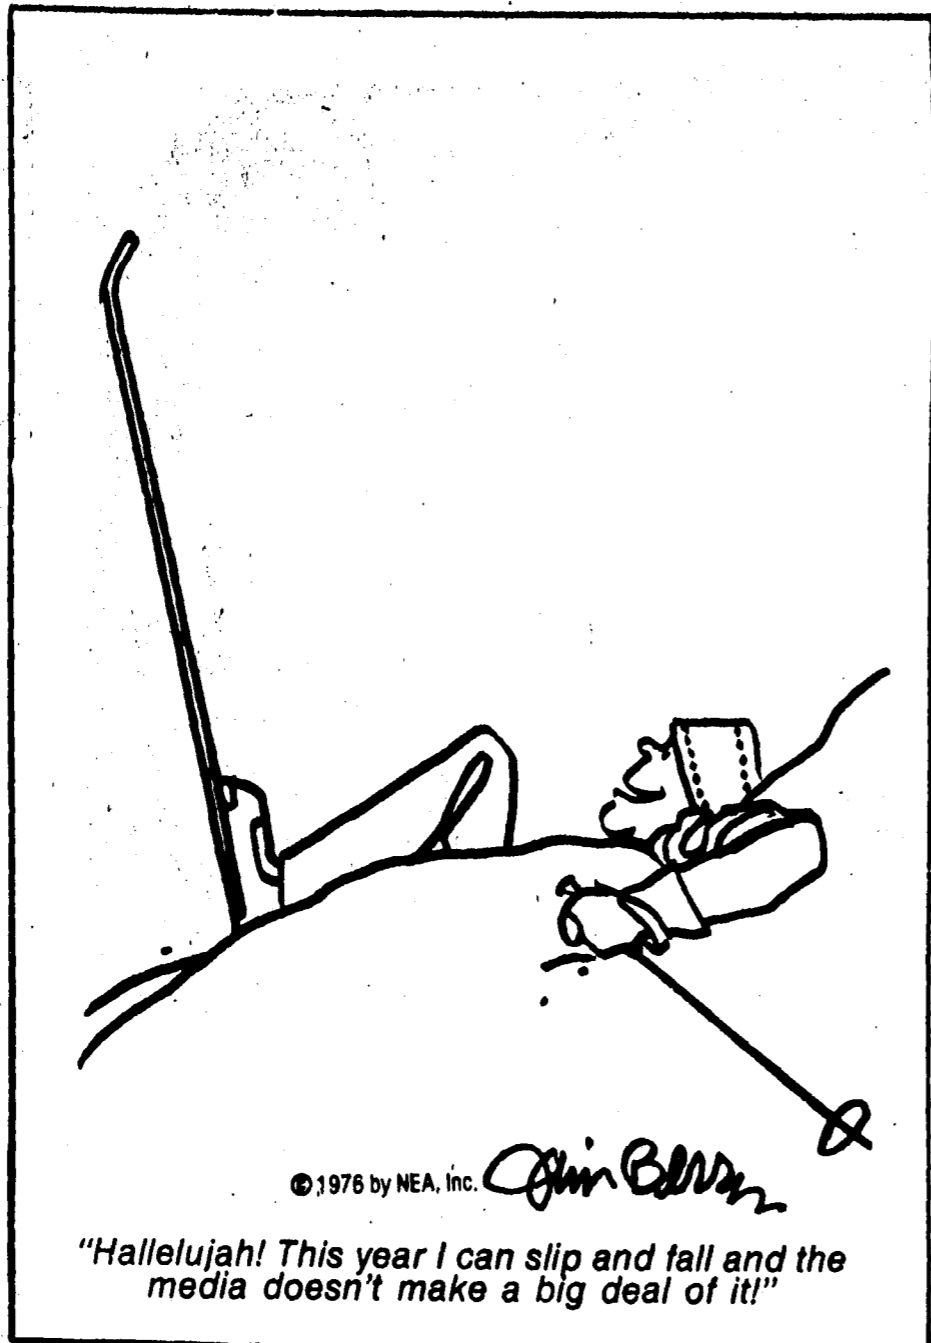

There seemed to be a deal between dealers and park owners and/or managers whereby if a mobile home owner wished to sell his mobile home, he either had to put expensive ads in the papers, or sell it through a dealer, or depend on the court manager to, at his own discretion, tell anyone inquiring, whether or not there was a mobile home for sale in that court. Many times the home owner has had to sell at a big loss to a dealer or manager, who in turn, sold it for a huge profit!

By the same token, anyone wishing to buy a mobile home or trailer, instead of being able to drive around a nice neighborhood, as you would when buying a house, looking for a "For Sale" sign, had to go through a dealer, or manager, and pay several thousand, yes I said thousand, (and can prove it!) dollars more than the owner himself had been asking!

This unfair practice was finally brought to the attention of the powers that be, and now, starting Jan. 1, mobile home owners and trailer owners, can display a "For Sale" sign just like any other person who wishes to sell something, whether it be a car, boat, unwanted chair, garage sale, or whatever. This new law will go a long way in bringing mobile home prices back down to the supply and demand level, rather than the big monopoly racket it has been up to now!

Thank you for helping to spread the news.

"Hallelujah! This year I can slip and fall and the media doesn't make a big deal of it!"

Jody And Jimmy: Too Close For Comfort

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON - (NEA) - The way Jody Powell explains it is that he was walking through a Georgia shopping center, minding his own business, when a man grabbed his hand, smiled, and said: "Hi, I'm Jimmy Carter and I'm running for governor."

That was a decade ago. The incident changed the face of American politics. Powell is now the 33-year-old press secretary to the president-elect. But more than this he is the loyal companion and baggage bearer without whom next month's inaugural would be substantially different. If Jody Powell has arrived where he is because of Jimmy Carter, the reverse of this proposition is equally true and obvious.

Carter has said it himself, remembering how it was to get started in national politics. At first it was only "Jody and I." Family members were added. Then others. But in the lean days, the era of "Jimmy Who?" Powell was Carter's principal courtier; if he hadn't existed, he'd have had to be invented - if he could have been.

So when the new chief takes office he will have as his spokesman a devoted servant, a surrogate son, and to a very real degree a partner in power. The two are as close as hens on a January roost, as they say in Plains. It's expected that Jody will know whatever Jimmy knows. The relationship has few White House precedents.

Presumably, there is much to be said for the setup. For the first time in years, perhaps the first time ever, the hiring who speaks to the nation for the president will know absolutely what he's talking about. Besides this he will himself be part of the administration's decision-making process. What he says will have weight.

And yet the prospect is not altogether bright. The idea of Jody Powell controlling White House news for the next four years is, quite frankly, most disturbing. Powell is quick, witty, intelligent and should have no trouble administering the 50-person White House propaganda staff. But the job is simply too important for a president's alter ego.

Already it is clear that Powell is much more a professional Carterite than a professional communicator. He is not with his boss for money or for public service, but rather he is with him for love. For years it has been his duty to promote and protect Jimmy Carter, and no doubt the ethic will carry on into Washington.

It is true that all presidential press secretaries are fond of their employers. Ron Zeigler was so loyal to Richard Nixon he chose disgrace rather than morality as his guide. Ron Nessen, too, has been embraced by brainless devotion, growing contemptuous of any who would question Jerry Ford. Given human nature, it is probably too much to expect more dispassion and detachment in the work.

But Powell's fidelity to his champion is of a singular kind. When Jimmy is wounded, Jody feels the pain. During the campaign his periodic raging at critical press coverage took the character of personal bitterness. Conversely, when Powell liked coverage, he rewarded the reporter with special treatment. Without question he did these things because of his own stake in the campaign's future.

So, here is the insurmountable weakness of Jody Powell as the White House spokesman: his own stake in the regime's success is too high. He will not only be the mouthpiece but the architect of the administration. Doubts about it will therefore be doubts about him. As no other press secretary in history, then, he will have enormous personal and emotional reasons for coloring the news flow.

And surely the doubts will come. The Carter administration will almost certainly fall into severely controversial times. Soon enough Jody Powell will be locked in the White House briefing room with a gaggle of reporters demanding to know of the nuclear scare, or the Soviet blackmail, or the sex scandal, ad infinitum. What then?

Maybe Powell will rise to the occasions. It may be he will set aside personal gain in favor of public good and adhere to plain truth no matter the face it puts on his benefactor. One hopes, but is wary. Jody and Jimmy may be too close to be divided by propriety.

And I Quote

"You don't realize the importance or significance of such a thing (as citizenship) until you lose it."

- Iva Toguri d'Aquino, known during World War II as "Tokyo Rose," on her request for a pardon from President Ford.

Mr. A: Feeling deprived by society, decides to lash out by mugging Mr. B. in a dark alley.

Mr. B: as a result of the beating loses his health, his job, his family and takes up window washing and begging.

Mr. A: Is caught and sentenced to business management courses that enable him to become independently wealthy.

Mr. B: Is waiting for Mr. A in a dark alley.

How Government Created Energy Shortage

By ALLAN C. BROWNFELD

WASHINGTON - Now that he has been elected president, Jimmy Carter has the opportunity to abandon the political rhetoric about energy which so characterizes most of the discussion of that subject - on the part of both Republicans and Democrats.

The "solution" to our energy difficulties, which are real enough, are not price controls on natural gas, lowering the oil depletion allowance, increasing emission controls, and making the Arab oil producers into scapegoats. These, in reality, are all factors which have contributed significantly to creating the problem.

Government intervention in the economy is the single most important cause of all energy problems today facing the nation. Why, for example, are we so dependent upon oil? One reason is that the federal highway program accelerated such dependence at the same time that the nation's railroads were subjected to heavy taxes at all governmental levels and were, in addition, forced by government to submit to union featherbedding and other uneconomic labor practices. Thus, it was largely government planning and subsidies that shifted the nation from more to less efficient means of transportation.

That, however, is only one contributing factor. Another is the Federal Power Commission's policy which has held the price of natural gas far below the price at which it would be profitable to explore for new sources. If natural gas prices had been allowed long ago to move naturally, they would have stimulated greater development of supplies while encouraging a more realistic appraisal of various alternative energy forms.

Still another cause of our problem are the emission controls enacted by Congress. These lowered automobile gasoline efficiency, thereby increasing demand. At the same time, import quotas kept down the supply. The result, of course, was higher prices and sporadic shortages. Then, on top of all this, Congress in 1969 passed an act which lowered the oil depletion allowance to 22 per cent, making it more expensive and less attractive to search for new petroleum sources.

Thus, while government pays some Americans, such as farmers, billions not to produce, it penalizes oil and natural gas developers who would like to produce, but cannot do so under the controls imposed upon them by government.

Politicians have been demagogic in their repeated attacks upon the oil companies. They have counted upon the fact that the average voter is totally ignorant of economics and have not been mistaken in their calculations.

From 1945 to 1974, the price of gasoline increased 86 per cent. At the same time, the U.S. government increased the cost of first class mail from three to eight cents and the penny postcard to six cents - while it reduced postal service in half. Thus, while the price of gasoline went up 86 per cent, the government was increasing the cost of first class mail approximately 300 per cent and the postal card approximately 1,000 per cent - when you consider a 50 per cent reduction in service.

Why did oil prices increase dramatically in 1974? Was it simply the fault of allegedly greedy Arab oil producers? Such an analysis may serve the interests of some politicians, but it has nothing to do with reality. The sharp increases in the last three years were caused in large measure by the devaluation of the dollar - and our continuing high inflation. The fact that the U.S. government, in effect, declared bankruptcy and refused to convert dollars any longer into gold, had its impact upon Arab thinking. The Beirut newspaper Al Anwar, quoted Libyan Premier Abdel Salem Jalloud as saying that, "Libya will no longer accept payment in U.S. dollars. The dollar has lost its value and we want a currency that is convertible in gold." Similarly, the Shah of Iran declared that, "We have no interest in hoarding paper money in banks if inflation makes it worthless."

In his book, "The Biggest Con," Irwin Schiff states that in real terms oil prices have hardly risen at all: "On April 14, 1971, the day before the U.S. government repudiated its obligation to redeem Federal Reserve notes for gold, Middle East crude oil went for $2.33 a barrel. On Dec. 12, 1974, when rates were set at $10.73, gold went for $179.75 an ounce. So, on April 14, 1971, when 35 U.S. dollars equaled an ounce of gold, an ounce of gold bought 15.02 barrels of oil. However, on Dec. 14, 1974 an ounce of gold bought 16.75 barrels of oil so that the price of oil had been reduced 11 per cent in terms of gold, the only legitimate money measurement. Had the U.S. Government managed its fiscal affairs responsibly and held the value of a U.S. dollar at one thirty fifth of an ounce of gold, the price of oil in terms of dollars would not have risen at all."

Yet, despite our real energy problem, government continues to interfere and make matters worse. Government is still maintaining a ceiling of 43 cents per thousand cubic feet of natural gas. This must be decontrolled so that the price can seek its own realistic level. Domestic oil prices must be decontrolled. If Mr. Carter really wants to move in the proper direction on energy, the best advice is: get the government's hands off of the industries which provide energy and let them do their job! Demagoguery may get you elected, but it won't increase our energy supplies.

A 'Shadow Government' For America?

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN
Copley News Service

CHICAGO - "We have demonstrated in New Hampshire," asserted Gov. Mel-drim Thomson Jr., "that conservative principles can produce results and fulfill the promise and confidence of the Founding Fathers of this Republic."

Thomson last November was reelected to another full term because he had given the citizens of his state an honest and frugal government.

New Hampshire has no income tax, no sales tax and ended its fiscal year with $6 million surplus in the state treasury.

It also has the lowest unemployment rate in the nation. This record is nothing short of remarkable when you survey the "State of the Union" of all other individual states and at the national level.

Thomson was in Chicago to deliver an address titled "A Conservative Look at the State of the Union" at a national conference of the Conservative Caucus, a 200,000-member grass-roots effort formed in the last two years.

As national chairman of the caucus, Thomson believes that the political alternative for Americans is the New Hampshire experience applied to the state and national levels. In line with this, the caucus national director, Howard Phillips, unveiled a concept that has the potential for changing the very nature of our political life.

As both Thomson and Phillips explain it, most Americans are not certain that conservatives can govern if given the chance.

"If conservatives are to ever govern America," they assert, "we must first persuade our fellow citizens that our goals are consistent with their interests - that our vision for the nation deserves their confidence."

What they plan to unveil shortly after Jimmy Carter takes office is a "conservative shadow government," similar to what has been in operation in British political life for decades. The party out of national power appoints various individuals to be responsible for individual phases of the national government and they speak for their party, posing alternative policies to the party in office.

In the past, the major and principle weakness of the Republican Party has been its failure to communicate clear alternatives to the Democratic Party when it was in power during the Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson years. Now having lost the White House with Gerald Ford and with the inauguration of the Democratic administration led by Mr. Carter, the same problem faces the party.

The Conservative Caucus' concept of a shadow government that consistently poses alternative policies to the Carter administration puts the Republican Party in an embarrassing position. The GOP must either devise a similar shadow government, thus running the risk of stealing the idea from the Conservative Caucus, or refuse to adopt the idea and be accused of offering no real alternatives.

The caucus also is planning in conjunction with its shadow government to deliver a "Conservative State of the Union" statement in February in which it will critique the Carter-Democratic State of the Union, but at the same time will offer its own "vision of the future."

Both Thomson and Phillips, spearheading the Conservative Caucus, are clearly blazing new political paths. What most of the media did not grasp in the unveiling of the shadow government concept here at the national conference is that it represents a realistic compromise to an outright formation of a third party.

The caucus' shadow government will have the effect of outflanking the Republican Party as the alternative public opposition to the Democratic Carter administration in power.

Yet, at the same time the caucus has grown spectacularly since its founding two years ago by appealing to conservative Republicans and Democrats.

'Tony Orlando And Betty' Why Not?

By MICHAEL KILIAN
Chicago Tribune

As much as I am interested in the migratory habits of unwed pregnant movie actresses, I try my best never to read gossip columns.

One of the few occasions when I do read them, I always seem to come upon frightening little items like "the one I read the other day. Indeed, my bones jangle with a nervous chill just to think about it."

It reminded me of the little gossip column item I encountered some years ago which said that Sargent Shriver had tired of being ambassador to France and was thinking about returning to the United States to get back into politics.

I thought nothing of it then, but a few months later found myself having to endure the screeching horror of the McGovern-Shriver campaign.

I thought nothing of this little Ford item, but then I did begin to think about it, and my elbows began to knock. Ford? The William Morris agency? Talent?

The entire Ford family - Jerry, Betty, Susan, and those three forest rangers I can never tell apart? Going into Show Biz?

Time was when our distinguished former Presidents retired gracefully. Washington, Jefferson, and Jackson went back to their plantations and wrote thoughtful letters. Ulysses S. Grant wrote his memoirs. Grover Cleveland slipped off somewhere with his nubile young wife.

You'd think Mr. Ford would at least be content to follow in the late President Eisenhower's footsteps, leading as they do to the first tee. It's not so bad living quietly in Palm Springs on a $100,000-a-year pension and playing golf with captains of industry.

For $100,000 a year, I'd be happy if I were living noisily in Paramus, N.J., and playing golf with privates of industry.

Or even Phyllis Diller. But the William Morris talent agency? I'll concede that we might have the makings of a good situation comedy here - a marvelous combination of Ozzie and Harriet, My Three Sons, and the Adams Chronicles. Mr. Ford's Whip Inflation Now presentation from 1974 would make an excellent pilot.

But do we want our President remembered by posterity for his Nielsen rating? Dancing the "Bump" for a nationwide television audience during the Republican convention was one thing, but do we want history to record "Tony Orlando and Betty?"

Whatever could the Fords be thinking? Perhaps the President really did enjoy being ridiculed live from New York on NBC's "Saturday Night." Perhaps he still is relying heavily on Ron Nessen for advice. Perhaps he saw Jimmy Carter on the recent Barbara Walters special and got jealous.

Maybe he learned about Barbara Walters' $1 million salary and got jealous.

Indeed, if a quarterback like Joe Namath can make a fortune doing shaving cream commercials, why not a center from Grand Rapids?

He'd better skip the hair spray stuff, though.

It's not that I really mind the Fords going Show Biz. I always did find them wholesome entertainment. What scares me is the example it will set for all his soon-to-be unemployed cabinet officials and aides and assistants.

In the past, such men have taken jobs with defense contractors and wealthy Washington lobby, or, uh, law firms. Or, more recently, they've become columnists with the New York Times, or celebrated journalists like convicted criminal John Dean.

Does this mean now a trend to The Tube? Oh dear. "B-1 Bomber" starring Donny Ramsfeld. "The Earl Butz Mins-trel Hour." "The Henry Kissinger Show," starring Henry Kissinger and the Henry Kissinger Dancers.

I only wish Mr. Ford had leaked this to the gossip columnists before the election.

I would have voted for him.

Doctor Prescribes Protein Drink For Quick Weight Loss

DR. PAUL LESSLER, PROTEIN-SPARING FAST ADVOCATE

His Clients Hail From San Diego, Orange and Los Angeles Counties

BY KARI GRANVILLE
Register Staff Writer

Dr. Paul Lessler's patients come in all sizes - extra-large, large, medium and some even border on small.

No matter what the differences in their dimensions, though, all Dr. Lessler's patients call on him for one reason.

They all want to be a different size, a smaller size.

Dr. Lessler is a weight control specialist who sees obesity as more than just a problem. It is a disease, he says, which requires medical therapy, rather than do-it-yourself treatment.

According to Dr. Lessler, obesity can cause or complicate other conditions such as diabetes, back problems, high blood pressure, heart disease and emphysema.

And, obesity can take a psychological toll as well, he warns. "It's ruined a lot of people's lives. They don't go out. They don't go looking for jobs," Dr. Lessler says. "They get depressed and stay at home and eat more."

In all, there are an estimated 80 million Americans who are obese, Dr. Lessler says, citing U.S. Public Health Service figures.

And, he says, there is a difference between being obese and over-weight. "Obesity means you have too much fat," Dr. Lessler explains, be it 5 extra pounds or 200. "Over-weight means you have too much weight for your size," he says, pointing out that a muscular, 265-pound football player would fit this category.

What Dr. Lessler offers the patients who come to his Newport Beach and Beverly Hills offices, he says, is medical therapy by which they can lose weight quickly and learn to keep it off.

He doesn't offer a cure to obesity, since there is no known cure, Dr. Lessler says. Obesity is "usually a life-long" disease that can only be controlled, according to the doctor.

Dr. Lessler's patients lose their unwanted fat without the help of amphetamines, reducing aid candies and diets consisting solely of bananas or meals faithfully preceded by half a grapefruit.

In fact, what Dr. Lessler prescribes is no food, not even a bite, until a patient's "target weight" or new, smaller size is reached.

The diet program is called the protein-sparing fast. And, in place of food, dieters who follow Dr. Lessler's orders subsist on four to seven ounces a day of a pure protein liquid called Way-less, depending on their size.

In addition to the protein liquid, people on the fast take vitamins and nutrient supplements and are allowed to drink coffee, tea and diet soft-drinks.

In the first month of the fast, Dr. Lessler says, people lose between 20 and 25 pounds and thereafter lose 15 to 20 pounds a month.

And, he says, those lost pounds are nothing but fat. There is no danger that the weight-loss will come from what is called lean body mass, or vital organs, according to Dr. Lessler.

"This is no magic liquid in itself," Dr. Lessler warns. Instead, he says, it merely serves to replace necessary protein while the body sheds unnecessary fat.

He adds, "People aren't hungry with this fast. They produce their own natural appetite depressant. It's like using biology for you rather than manipulating it with chemicals."

The diet was developed by researchers at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology about four years ago, Dr. Lessler says.

A book dealing with the fast, entitled "The Last Chance Diet" by Dr. Robert Linn, stresses that the diet should be used only when done under medical supervision.

"There are some people who this particular type of therapy is not made for," Dr. Lessler explains. People who have had recent kidney or liver failure or a heart attack can be included in that list.

To weed out those who can and can't, Dr. Lessler begins his patients' treatment with a battery of tests, including an electro-cardiogram, a five-hour glucose tolerance test and a health screening chemical examination that tests about 25 chemical aspects of the body.

Those who are given the go-ahead make daily visits to Dr. Lessler's offices for the first two weeks they are on the fast.

By the third week, Dr. Lessler says, patients become more accustomed to the absence of food. At this point, weekly visits replace daily ones until the "target weight" is reached.

Once that is accomplished, "the most important" aspect of the program begins, according to Dr. Lessler. It's called "re-feeding" and it is done gradually.

The patients work with a registered dietician to learn proper nutrition. Eventually, the dietician establishes an individualized "eating regime" for each person.

"Every person who is over-weight has this fantasy that once he loses the weight he will never gain it back," Dr. Lessler explains, adding that it just isn't so.

"Most obesity is caused by behavioral habits," Dr. Lessler explains. "Eating is a learned behavior and it can be unlearned and relearned in the proper manner," he says, adding that the aim of his program is to condition people to eat only when they are hungry.

As a supplement to his program, Dr. Lessler advises his patients to do aerobic exercises for cardio-vascular conditioning.

"Exercise doesn't really help you lose weight, but it tones up your body," Dr. Lessler says.

When therapy has been completed, Dr. Lessler advises his patients to come in every three to six months to catch those five regained pounds before they turn into 50.

Dr. Lessler admits that the protein-sparing fast is not the ultimate solution to obesity.

"This is not a panacea. This is not the final answer to the problem," Dr. Lessler says. "You can lose weight by a lot of different methods. No doubt about it."

But, he adds, "I believe currently it is the best medical therapy to lose weight. It is the quickest and simplest method to follow because it removes the choice of how much food to eat or what foods to eat."

Dr. Lessler, a trim and fit-looking 38-year-old, lost 45 pounds following the therapy he prescribes.

"I was a victim of a sedentary profession. I had the same bad eating habits as my patients," Dr. Lessler says of his over-weight years.

Dr. Lessler, a Los Angeles resident who divides his time between his Newport Beach and Beverly Hills offices, is actually an anesthesiologist turned weight control therapy specialist.

He received his medical degree from State University of New York and his anesthesiologist training at Columbia University. He is a member of the teaching staff at the UCLA Medical School and the American Medical Association.

As Dr. Lessler explains, his interest in nutrition and his own weight problem led him into the study of weight control.

About a year ago he left anesthesiology to set up his Beverly Hills offices to specialize in weight control therapy. About two months ago, he branched out, establishing his Newport Beach offices, because "I had so many patients coming from the San Diego and Orange County areas," Dr. Lessler explains.

In fact, he says, "I've had patients come from as far away as Chicago, Texas and San Francisco."

Dr. Lessler finds his new specialty to be a satisfying one. "There is a lot of personal gratification in what I do," he says.

For example, he says many of his patients find new self-worth and a sense of accomplishment once they have slimmed down to a new size.

"They never realized they had so much self-discipline, self-control. It gives them a good feeling," he says.

But, he adds, "I can't make anyone want to lose weight. It has to come from within."

NEW YORK IMPORTER SAYS

There Is More Than One Way To Skin A Snake

By JOY KLEIN
Women's News Service

NEW YORK (WNS) - Pinching a snake's belly, to most people a repugnant thought, is all in a day's work for Carmen Zollo, who each year purchases half the world's available supply of reptile and elephant skins.

"We have 12,500 feet of wall-to-wall exotic skins," says wife Bridget, an expert cutter, who works closely with her husband. They include everything from the South American anaconda (30 feet long) to the very rare Thailand anteater, to the relatively inexpensive whipsnake skins from India.

Carmen Zollo, born in Boston and a graduate of Boston University, summa cum laude, 16 years ago predicted the future scarcity of reptiles and the need for skins precut for manufacturers.

He left his managerial position with a reptile shoe manufacturer to become the largest importer of exotic skins in the United States.

This has been no easy feat. There are strict federal and state laws governing the import of these skins. The Department of the Interior issues a federal registrar listing the endangered species status, a list that is ever-changing.

As of June, 1976, the Indian python, for which there is a major consumer demand, has been added to the vastly rising list of endangered reptiles. Carmen predicts that in the near future the elephant and all python snakes will also become seriously endangered.

Despite the import restrictions covering reptile and elephant skins, Carmen has managed to emerge as the nabob of this unusual profession.

Once the skins are cleared through the maze of customs regulations Carmen, along with his wife Bridget, matches and cuts these skins to the exact specifications of various manufacturers. Carmen's standard for quality makes this a laborious procedure. The bulk of the skins are cut primarily for cowboy-style boot manufacturers, who sell them for anywhere from $350 to $1,200 a pair.

Exotic skins are in such demand that large barrels are placed under each cutter's table. The scraps are then sold by the pound to various manufacturers for watch straps, wallets, belts and other small accessories.

The snake that first tempted Eve is currently tempting the contemporary Eves, who are purchasing the new and popular Art Deco and patchwork skin handbags, paying from $45 to $350 per bag.

Carmen recalls more bizarre customer purchases. A major law firm in New York has covered all of its office walls and chairs with expensive python skins. He estimates this to have cost thousands of dollars. An antique Buick automobile, the interior of which is completely upholstered in black and silver snake skin, travels the streets of New York.

Most people, however, prefer to see these skins less mobile. Pucci once designed a pair of red, white and blue snake-skin pajamas for a mere $1,000.

Carmen Zollo's business is listed in the Manhattan yellow pages under "Reptiles." Frequently he is called by some frantic person with pleas for help because his or her pet boa constrictor is throwing up. More common queries are from panic-stricken snake fanciers, fraught with anxiety when their pet serpents play their favorite game of hide-and-seek.

"I know it's in the house, but I can't find it. What shall I do?" All such questions are referred to the curator of the Bronx Zoo.

Although these skins have borne the stress of capture, slaughter, shipping, tanning and the manufacturing process, Carmen Zollo does not recommend their by-products for wear in inclement weather.

DEAR MOTHER EARTH: Can Landlubber Be Successful With Sea Grape?

BY LYNN AND JOEL RAPP

Dear Mother Earth: During a recent visit to my local plant shop I discovered a plant I'd never seen before. It was labeled "Sea Grape," and it came in two different "flavors" - hanging in a basket and growing up a pole. Even though it was just a green plant with large round leaves, I was attracted to it, so I bought one that was growing up a redwood pole. The store owner really didn't know too much about this plant, so I thought maybe you could fill me in on how to care for it. Thanks, just in case. - Linda from Los Angeles.

Dear Linda: The sea grape is a plant that isn't often seen outside the Southern California area as an indoor plant. Its botanical name is Cocoloba uvifera and it's native to Southern Florida and the West Indies, where it grows outdoors along beaches as a shrub or tree up to heights as tall as 20 feet. Outdoors, in its native habitat, it will bear white flowers and, eventually, purple fruit resembling grapes that they say (we've never tried it) make excellent jelly. Indoors, however, it can be cultivated as a foliage plant only.

Since yours is on a pole, the best thing to do is keep it in a bright spot, water frequently and, most important, keep pinching back the new growth at the top as it appears. This will keep the lower leaves from falling off and also help maintain their large oval shapes.

In the case of any plant that is growing up a stick - philodendrons, sea-grapes, and so forth, it is always wise to snip off the new top growth to insure a full, bushy plant all year long.

You haven't unearthed a real rarity, but you have bought a good, hardy plant, so put on your sailor's cap and prepare to embark on a long voyage with your new sea grape. - Happy growing!

The Formula

By NORMAN STARK
PROTECTIVE HAND CREAM

Hands take a lot of abuse. We subject them to all kinds of indignities every day, and then many people spend a lot of money on a myriad of potions in an attempt to restore them to their normal condition. It is said that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. So why not protect your hands before you expose them.

Here's a simple inexpensive formula for a cream that works well. You'll need one tablespoon GELATIN, three-fourths cup GLYCERIN and one and a half cups WATER. Stir the glycerin into the water. Heat in top of a double boiler and add the gelatin. Cool and store in glass or plastic jars. To use, rub into hands thoroughly before exposure.

Glip&Save

Besides the satisfaction you get by making your own products for personal or home care, most formulas are real money-savers that enable you to beat the prices of store-bought items.

(Now you can obtain THE FORMULA BOOK 2, the exciting follow-up to THE FORMULA BOOK, with all new easy-to-make formulas for personal, home, and pet care. Price only $5.95. And we now have available both FORMULA books in a handsome gift pack - two oversized paperback books in a durable slip case, ideal for gift giving. Only $11.90. Please indicate whether you want FORMULA I, II or the two-volume gift pack. Write to THE FORMULA, in care of The Register, 6700 Squibb Road, Mission, Kan., 66202.)

Some Robes Can't Go Out On The Town

Barbara Walters once related how she was invited to a state dinner in the Philippines. The dinner was to begin in ten minutes and Barbara had not brought along a long dress. She was about to decline the invitation when she had a flash. She would wear her red bathrobe, thus saving the day.

I have two acquaintances who have worn nightgowns to dinner parties. One was on the campaign trail and also didn't have a long dress and the other just thought her nightgown too pretty to waste in bed.

Don't those stories just turn your stomach?

I don't have a nightgown in my drawer that would get me through an eighth grade prom - or a house call from my doctor, for that matter. Somehow, I cannot imagine myself showing up for a state dinner in the Philippines in a pair of blue scuffies, a flannel robe with a stomach button missing, spit-up on the shoulder (the baby is 18 years old) and pockets bulging from nose tissue that smells like vapor-rub.

I took a turn the other day through the lingerie department and frankly, I can see how they got away with it. I've never seen so many beautiful gowns and robes in my entire life.

"Here's one that's a luv," said the salesperson.

She held up a satin gown. (The last time I saw anything that narrow, there was toothpaste in it.)

"I'm afraid not. I have made it a rule of thumb that I do not wear anything to bed I have to wear a girdle under."

"What about this one?" she asked, holding up a transparent bit of nylon.

"I have also promised myself that I would never wear anything in bed that you had to wear a coat over."

"What did you have in mind?" she asked.

"Something with sleeves, a turtleneck, and a zip-in floor."

Then she held up a robe that was a knockout. Let me put it another way. If I had worn it to the ball when my husband was elected governor, it's something I'd wear again to his inauguration as President.

"I'll take it," I said impishly.

Last weekend, I took the plunge and decided to wear it as an evening dress. As I entered the room... all eyes were upon me when my husband looked up and said, "Hurry up and get dressed. We're leaving in ten minutes."

Whatya wanta bet? Barbara Walters could have worn the same thing and looked like a million dollars.

FOR MOMS, DADS

Stork Club Provides Quiet Before Storm

Knight News Wire
DULUTH, Minn. — It is not as well known as New York City's famed Stork Club, but the group of the same name at St. Luke's Hospital here has been gaining in popularity in its first year.

The Stork Club at St. Luke's is for mothers and fathers.

A special dinner — just for mom and dad — is served at the hospital after the birth of their baby.

It's the last peaceful meal before the deluge, says Gary Kawala, food service director at the hospital.

To Larry and Louann Stanius, who are now home with their daughter Amy Marie, it was like a celebration.

"It certainly helped to bridge the gap between the hospital and home," said Louann. "The dinner was really good — there was everything."

Everything includes filet mignon, baked potato, salad, beans almondine and strawberry sundae. The champagne is served chilled and the bottle stood in the shadow of flowers and on snowy white linen in sharp contrast to the traditional hospital tray.

Kawala said he realized early in the year that mom was on the sixth floor eating from her hospital tray, and dad was often downstairs sipping a malt through a straw and eating a tuna sandwich.

"It was a patient-oriented pattern, and we thought that something should be done," Kawala said.

Each mother selects the evening she wants the Stork Club treatment. It's usually the night before she goes home, the "quiet before the storm."

Music Theatre Guild Plans Gathering

The Musical Theatre Guild of Newport Beach will hold its first gathering of the new year at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club, 1601 Bayside Drive, Corona del Mar.

Beginning with coffee, the affair will include a business meeting scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. and a special musical program set for 11:30.

Jeanne Keller Bentley, a resident of Laguna Hills, will accompany herself on the piano as she sings "There's No Business Like Show Business" program. Miss Bentley has appeared in nightclub acts in Palm Springs and Europe.

Following the program, luncheon will be served and may be attended by prospective members as well as members. Luncheon reservations may be made at the club.

NEW OFFICERS — An installation dinner will be held for new officers of the Silver Anchor Auxiliary of Huntington Hospital, Huntington Beach, at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Newport Beach Marriott Hotel. Helen McGinley, right, has been reelected president. Serving with her will be Catherine Meurer, left, and Kathy Sprague, vice presidents. Also, Patti Ornelas, vice president; Christine Buck and Corliss Elliott, secretaries; Lillian Rose, treasurer; Jean Brunick, scheduling; and Elena Boulter, public relations; and Elena Boulter, junior advisor. Following the installation, the Marlon Meyer Award to the outstanding volunteer of the year will be presented by Richard Grundy, hospital administrator. During 1976, the volunteers have donated more than 7,500 hours to the hospital and raised $2,500 in student medical scholarships.

Three Movies To Be Shown In NB Library

A screening of three films, sponsored by the Newport Beach Public Library will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 5, in the multi-purpose room adjacent to the Mariners Branch Library, 2005 Dover Drive, Newport Beach.

"One-Eyed Men are Kings," a 1974 Academy Award winner, is a tale of contemporary life in Paris, told entirely without words.

"Braverman's Condensed Cream of Beatles" shows the personal and musical evolution of the Beatles rock group from their youthful beginnings to more sober days of social consciousness.

"Solo" is a visual portrayal of the efforts of a mountain climber to ascend and descend a snow-covered peak.

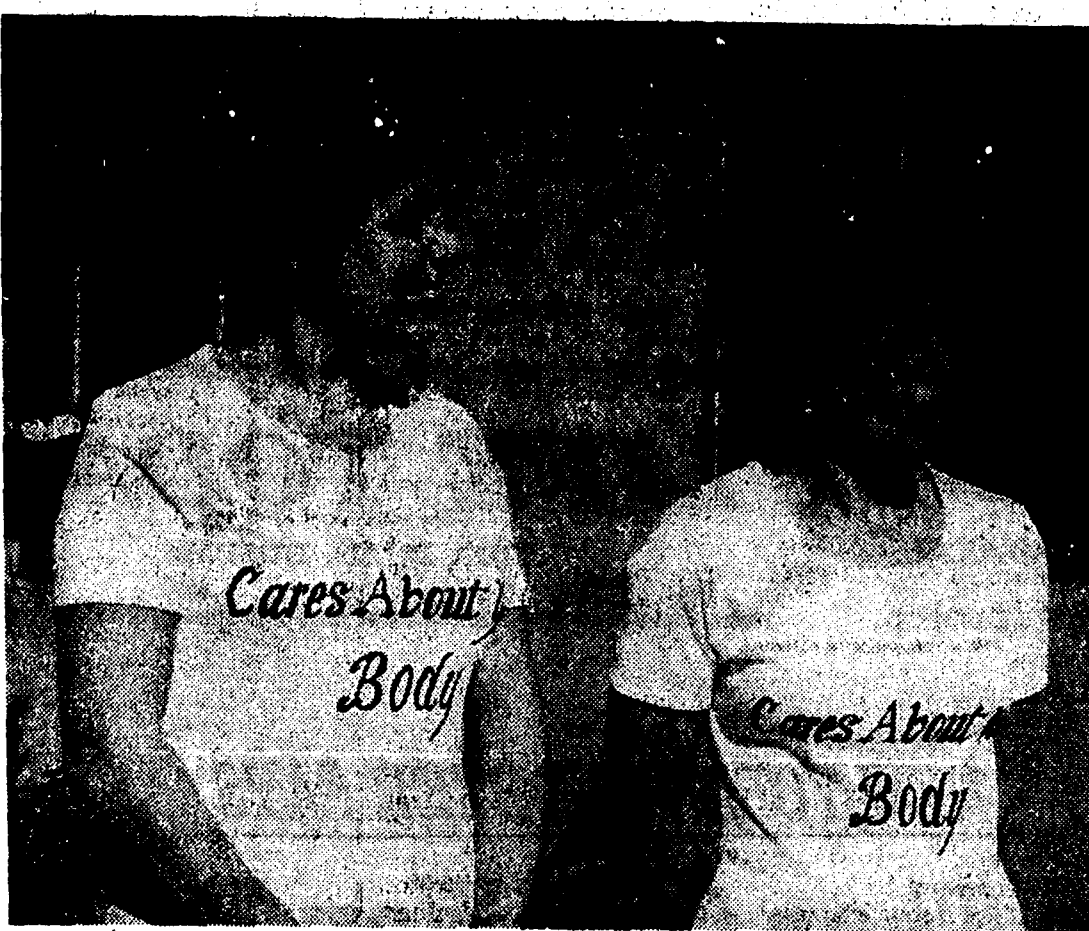

There is no charge for admission.

Powers' Speaker Plans Program For Y-Women

A presentation on figure control, poise and confidence will be given by Bobbie Gee of the John Robert Powers modeling school, Orange, during the meeting of the South Orange County Y-Women. The event will begin at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 6, in the South Orange County YWCA, 1411 N. Broadway, Santa Ana.

The meeting is open to the public, and child care will be provided.

ANAHEIM ANGELS
Anaheim Angels Chapter of American Business Women's Association will meet at 7 p.m. today in Marmac's Prime Rib Restaurant, 12777 Knott St., Garden Grove. A social hour at 6 p.m. will precede dinner.

T TIME — Employees, patients and volunteers at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital Beach are currently sporting T-shirts emblazoned with their new slogan, "Hi Hospital Cares About Your Body." The shirts are available to the public in children's sizes 2-4 and men's and women's sizes 18-20, and may be purchased through Silver Anchor Auxiliary members at the hospital, 17772 Beach Blvd. Proceeds will be used for medical and nursing scholarships. Modeling the shirts are auxiliary vice president Patti Ornelas, left, and treasurer Lillian Rose.

Short People Find 'Heightism' Exists In Business World

By JACKIE ROEDLER
Knight News Wire

Short people are like Avis rent a car. They have to try harder.

At least, that's the conclusion of one of the country's most successful personnel authorities.

Robert Half, the 5-foot, 10-inch president of Robert Half Personnel Agencies, Inc., of New York City, which has more than 50 offices throughout the country, believes the careers of millions of Americans have been hampered — and sometimes destroyed — because of society's negative attitude toward shorter people.

Half maintains there is hard evidence to substantiate the charge that a person's lack of physical stature is far too often interpreted to mean that he or she is also lacking in such qualities as character, personality and skill.

In effect, he said, "people are often rewarded just because they're tall."

Although Half contends that discrimination against the short, in general, and in the job market, in particular, is still very much with us, he's somewhat encouraged by Jimmy Carter's election victory over Gerald Ford.

Half points out that in each of the presidential elections from 1900 through 1968, the taller of the two major party candidates always won.

It wasn't until the 1972 election when Richard Nixon, 5 feet, 11 1/2, topped George McGovern, 6 feet, 1, that the pattern was finally broken.

And Jimmy Carter's (5 feet, 9 1/2) win over Gerald Ford (6 feet, 1) may, says Half, "reflect a change in the way we evaluate and choose our national leaders."

While the election could mark a turning point for the nation's short Americans, Half said "heightism" remains an "unhappy fact of life for countless men and women, even in this supposedly enlightened age."

Heightism, Half said, is the term coined by sociologist Saul Feldman of Case Western Reserve University to describe the damaging prejudicial attitude toward the short.

As Feldman, who is 5 feet 4, told the American Sociological Association: "To be less than average height in American society is to fall short of the mark in almost all aspects of everyday life."

Half became interested in the short-tall question, he said, because "way-out prejudices have always fascinated me."

Earlier he did a study on weight and jobs, and he found that over-weight people generally earn less than people of normal weight.

"Unfortunately, people are hired by image," he said. "This means that people are hired because of looks rather than ability."

Half referred to a study of University of Pittsburgh graduates that revealed men 6 feet, 2 or taller received starting salaries 12.4 per cent higher than equally qualified men who stood 6 feet or less. And tall men entering the education professions, he said, averaged 10 per cent higher salaries than their shorter counterparts.

Although short women may be positively looked at as being "petite," Half said they're not immune from prejudice in the job market.

Those women 5 feet, 3 or less placed through the University of Pittsburgh's educational placement service earned measurably less than their taller female classmates, Half said.

While small people may be discriminated against in the job market, it certainly doesn't mean short people are prohibited from succeeding in a big way.

One striking example of success by any measure is James P. McFarland, the 5 foot, 5 board chairman of General Mills.

Although height and weight still are included on most job applications, Half said, he thinks eventually these questions will be outlawed.

"Imagine," says Half, "what a poorer place the world would be today if height had been used as an excuse to deny opportunity to Christopher Columbus, Andrew Carnegie, John Paul Jones, Pablo Picasso, Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Fiorello LaGuardia, Lawrence of Arabia and Arturo Toscanini — all of whom were under 5 feet, 5."

Installation Set Wednesday By Beauceant

New officers of Santa Ana Assembly No. 61, Social Order of the Beauceant will be installed at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Santa Ana Masonic Temple.

Mrs. C.B. Hamilton will be the new president, assisted by Mmes. Gerald Udell, oracle; Eugene Plantoni, first vice president; Richard Meeder, second vice president; Perry Schroeder, preceptress; Lawrence Jordan, recorder; Robert Thomas, treasurer; James Graham, marshal; and Milan Pakaski, assistant marshal. Nine other officers will also be installed.

Also taking their oaths will be Mmes. Charles W. Niblack, director of music; Raymond Jones, standard bearer; Walter L. Coleman, color bearer; Danis S. Kimball, mistress of the wardrobe; C. Robert Beck, daughter of the household; Guy Vanderstraeten, inner guard; John M. Lamson, outer guard; Gordon H. Purdy, instructor and C. Fred Schroeder, prompter.

A reception will follow in the temple, chaired by Mrs. Roy Wheeler.

YW Workshop Will Focus On Fashion

A 10-week fashion coordination workshop will begin at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday in the South Orange County YWCA, 1411 N. Broadway, Santa Ana.

Fashion coordinator Marcia Yust will present such topics as reorganizing a wardrobe, accessories, choosing clothing, achieving a total look and hair styling.

There is a fee for the course, and the Y may be contacted for registration and information.

Polly's Pointers

Not-so-simple case of caviar stains

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Recently I served a black caviar spread to my guests and it made stains on my white tablecloth that I cannot wash out. How can I remove these caviar stains? — MRS. M.Z.

DEAR MRS. M.Z. — Caviar is not an everyday food so I can find no stain removal suggestions for it specifically. Since caviar is fish eggs you might try the following remedy suggested for LINENS stained by eggs or meat juice. Soak in cool water. Apply unseasoned meat tenderizer to stain, keep moist and when satisfactory results are obtained rinse out in warm water. Good luck for this is just a gamble. Repeat if necessary. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — One of my Pet Peeves is with pattern companies for not having more patterns for costumes that can be worn on various occasions. It seems they could be a standard item that would seldom have to be changed. — SHARON.

DEAR POLLY — Those who take camping trips might like the following. Take a new trash can along to wash in. The kids will love this. Clothes could be stored in it for the trip home and then use it for the trash. Also save old clothes and socks and take them along to wear while camping, even old mismatched socks could be worn. Then nobody has to then worry about their clothes, since they can be thrown away as they are taken off. Of course, they would be put in the proper trash containers and not be left scattered about the camping site. — KATHIE.

DEAR POLLY — I clean cloth shoes by spraying them with rug shampoo at night, let them dry and then brush the next day and they look like new. (Test first to see effect of spray on color and fabric.) — KIT.

DEAR POLLY — I just read a Pointer in the column suggesting vinegar on the hands for removing an odor. This was a good idea, but I thought I would tell the other readers that I use an after shave lotion for this. — FRANCES.

DEAR POLLY — To save drawer and cupboard space, I put the plastic lids from my bowls in plastic bags. The small lids are in one bag and the larger ones are in another. It is easy to find the right top and have no clutter. — MRS. F.F.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards. Ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of The Register, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana 92711.

Uterine Cancer Linked With Overweight

LA JOLLA (AP) — University of California researchers say overweight women run a greater risk of uterine cancer after menopause than those who stay trim because fat in the brain converts male hormones to female.

Dr. Howard Judd said that deposits of fat in certain areas in the brain apparently are capable of converting the male hormone androgen into the female hormone estrogen. "It is possible that most if not all estrogens produced in post-menopausal women come from this conversion mechanism," Judd said in an interview.

He said scientists believe estrogen may set the stage for cancer of the uterus by stimulating the smooth lining, or endometrium, to grow to a "hyperplastic" state — that is, enlarged because of an abnormal number of cells, creating an environment in which cancer might emerge.

"Since fat itself makes the conversion," he said, "the more obese a woman is, the more androgen she converts to estrogen," he said. "In fact, some obese post-

Water Saving Talk Set For NARFE Meeting

Southern Orange County Chapter 1266, National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE), will hold its 4th anniversary meeting at 11 a.m. Wednesday in Murdy Community Center, 7000 Norma Ave., Huntington Beach.

Ms. Jackie Kirby of the Orange County Water District will speak on water conservation.

In addition, delegates and alternates to the NARFE State Convention to be held May 18-19 in Sacramento will be elected, and appointments of committee chairpersons for the coming year will be made.

Retired federal employees, spouses, survivors of annuitants as well as active federal employees with five years of service who have reached the age of 50 may attend the meeting and join the organization.

Delta Zeta OC Alumnae To Hear Model

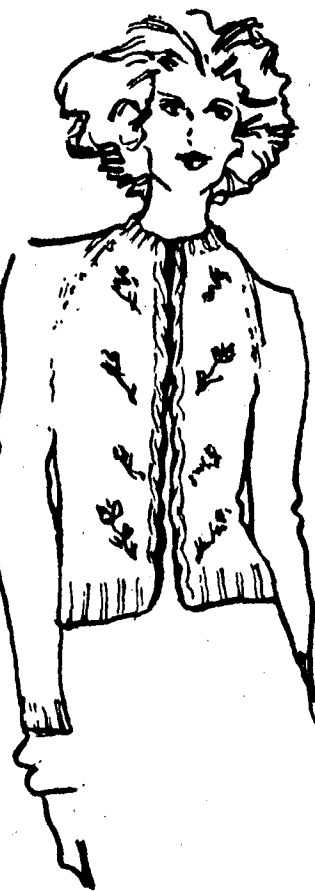

Miss Ingrid Adams of John Robert Powers Finishing and Modeling School will address Orange County Alumnae members of Delta Zeta Sorority at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 6, when they convene in the Anaheim home of Mrs. Leonard Brinley. Miss Adams' topic will be "The Daring Woman of 1977."

Members of the group's morning bridge club will meet at 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 14, in the home of Mrs. Allan Davis, Anaheim. Mrs. Joseph Gryder of Anaheim will be hostess for the evening bridge club at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 20.

PROTECT SKIN
Fifteen minutes before you go out to jog in the cold, bracing air, treat your skin to a rich moisturizer to help prevent chapped skin.

menopausal women make as much estrogen through this conversion method as a pre-menopausal woman will produce in her ovaries."

Judd, an associate professor of reproductive medicine at UC's School of Medicine, is principal investigator for a $160,000 study recently awarded by the National Institute of Health to pursue his research.

Judd said that before menopause — when ovulation, or the production of eggs is occurring regularly — there is natural protection against the abnormal enlargement of the lining of the uterus.

During ovulation, he explained, the ovaries release the hormone progesterone, stopping the growth of the endometrium and preparing the walls of the uterus for the implantation of a fertilized egg.

TAKE CARE
Dandruff shampoos containing zinc pyrithione, and not sulfur, are perfectly safe to use on colored hair.
